Yugoslav Troops Fling Challenge To Hungarians

Serbian Soldiers Cross Border; Clash Feared Imminent.

Nations' Relations At Breaking Point

Belgrade Order Ousting 27,000 Immigrants Stirs Trouble.

Szeged, Hungary (Friday), Dec. 7 (AP).—Serbian troops, of Yugoslavia, wearing a skull and cross-bones emblem, crossed the Hungarian border three miles from here early today and nearly precipitated a battle with Hungarian forces.

Only with the greatest difficulty were the Hungarian officers able to restrain their men from accepting a Yugoslav challenge. The situation was most tense and serious trouble was feared.

Yugoslav soldiers shouted threats and imprecations across the frontier at the Hungarians, as thousands of Hungarians expelled from Yugoslavia continued to pour across the border.

Szeged and nearby villages were choked with the refugees. Thousands more were coming and fierce indignation prevailed against Yugoslavia in the Hungarian border towns where it was recognized the Hungarian army is far too small to challenge Yugoslavia.

Diplomatic Relations Near Breaking Point

Budapest, Hungary, Dec. 6 (U.P.).—Diplomatic relations between Hungary and Yugoslavia hung by a hair tonight as thousands of ejected Hungarians continued to pour over the border.

The Hungarian government sent a sharp protest to Yugoslavia against the mass deportation of thousands of Hungarian residents in that country in the past 48 hours.

Hungary also called the incident to the for...d attention of the League of Nations and various powers individually.

Two Hungarian commissioners were despatched to the Yugoslavian border to attend to housing of the thousands of refugees streaming across the frontier, forced out of the land of their adoption.

The commissions are to prepare a detailed report to the league on the deportations.

Cruelty Charged.

Advices from various border towns reported many refugees were beaten by the Yugoslav police when they failed to entrain quickly when ordered to get out of the country.

Scores of Hungarian homes were reported plundered. Hundreds said they had to leave without a chance to pack their belongings, which they feared would be stolen or confiscated.

Authorities estimated that 27,000 Hungarians resident in Yugoslavia would be affected by the order there ousting practically every person of Hungarian blood. An official said 2,000 already had crossed from Soubotica, on the Yugoslav-Hungary frontier.

Most of them, including women and children, were panicky and practically penniless.

Hundreds are virtually without a country, for, although of Hungarian descent, they chose to continue to reside in Yugoslavia, a nation born in the World War. Hence, now that

Baton Yielded By Stokowski

Effective December 26, the Polish maestro will leave, after 22 years, the orchestra he built into one of the foremost musical institutions in the world.

In an open letter to the board of directors, Stokowski outlined two major reasons for refusing the new contract offered him:

1. Inability of the board of directors to select in time to allow for preparing the coming season's plans a successor to Arthur Judson as executive director.

2. "Deep-lying differences" with the board.

Early next month, Mr. and Mrs. Stokowski and their children will leave on a trip to the Orient. The conductor will make a study of Japanese and Chinese music and make guest appearances with several Japanese orchestras.

Further than this, his plans for the future are indefinite.

Gen. Von Hutier Dies.

Berlin, Dec. 6 (AP).—Gen. Oscar von Hutier, 77, who held important German commands on the west front in the World War and captured Riga from the Russians in 1917, died today.

Grew Heiress Guarded After Kidnap Threat

Girl Trailed, Then Father Receives Phone Call; Summons U. S. Aid.

Boston, Dec. 6 (AP).—Two apparently unrelated incidents which he feared might indicate an intention to harm his daughter, Eugenie, led Randolph C. Grew to call in Department of Justice agents, he said tonight, but added no actual attempt had been made to kidnap her.

Grew, brother of the United States Ambassador to Japan, said that the Federal operatives had been summoned as a precautionary measure and that his daughter now was safe at home.

"Last week," he said, "she was followed from Gloucester by two men in a car and then last Tuesday night a man telephoned me at my home. After becoming quite abusive, he said, 'How about kidnaping you and your daughter?'

Called in Justice Agents.

"I think, myself, the man was drunk," said Mr. Grew. "I have an inordinate fear of kidnaping so I decided to take no chances and called the Department of Justice at Washington. They sent two operatives who advised that my daughter, who was staying at Manchester, be brought here."

"My daughter is safe at home," the father said, "and, on the advice of Department of Justice men, no attempt has been made to restrict her movements."

Mr. Grew declared, "No demands have been made, no threatening letters received, and no other developments have occurred which indicated that there was any seri-

Woman, 4 Men Saved As Fire Wrecks Wharves

Portland, Me., Dec. 6 (AP).—Fire swept a 300-yard stretch of the waterfront today, destroying two wharves, and damaging several small vessels, entailing a total loss estimated by officials at $200,000.

A woman and four men on board the schooner yacht Caronet leaped into the harbor when flames broke out on a wharf to which the craft was moored. They were rescued by four men in a rowboat.

Trade Seeks Super-Plan Of Recovery

Roper Offers Six Points to Bring Harmony to Campaign.

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—The congress of American industry tonight pledged cooperation with the Government in working for recovery. Appointment of a nation-wide committee was authorized to formulate a superprogram for prosperity.

"A program for recovery, upon which all business elements of the country may unite in cooperating with Government, is of the utmost importance," stated the resolution authorizing the move.

C. L. Barbo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, the group sponsoring the congress, was asked to name a committee of manufacturers to work with a similar committee from the United States Chamber of Commerce in formulating the program.

Seek Superprogram.

It was recommended that the committee jointly invite other representative business men to constitute a larger committee working out the superprogram.

"The congress of American industry is conscious of the high obligation of industry to cooperate effectively with every sound effort of the Administration to meet and overcome the economic crisis that confronts the Nation," it was stated in the congress' own "platform for recovery" adopted tonight.

"It recognizes the serious burden of responsibility which the Administration faces, and pledges its support and cooperation in all efforts, both public and private, to help the Government * * *."

Final work of the congress was speeded by a Roosevelt Administration request for cooperation.

Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Commerce, plumped a six-point cooperative program into the laps of the business men at the congress, and every point was applauded.

Urges Cooperation.

"Business and Government must work cooperatively in this program," said the Commerce Secretary.

Point by point he told the congress it would be necessary to:

Restore relief responsibilities and administration to States and localities to relieve the Federal Government of large expenditures.

Plan a public works program of worthwhile projects not conflicting with private business and private enterprise.

Open foreign markets without injuring domestic industry.

Prepare suggestions and recommendations looking to preservation of workable and successful features of the National Recovery Administration; discard others.

Seek every possible means to release and reemploy capital.

New Phase of Program.

Secretary Roper characterized the present as the beginning of the second phase of the recovery program where the tasks "are the assessing of the values and lessons of the emergency, the consolidation of the improvements and gains thus far recorded and the concentration of our attention upon those aftermaths of the depression which require time * * * to rectify."

Gulf Refining Company Indicted on NRA Charge

Philadelphia, Dec. 6 (AP).—A Federal grand jury today indicted the Gulf Refining Co. on 72 counts listing charges that maintenance department employes were compelled in July, during labor difficulties, to work longer hours than prescribed by the NRA petroleum code.

In some of the indictments the company is charged with forcing its employes to work 48 hours without rest. Conviction on the charges could result in fines totaling $36,000.

Kingsford-Smith Says Ulm's Alive, Urges Search Go On

Honolulu, Dec. 6 (AP).—Navy fliers pressed their search at sea today for Lieut. Charles T. P. Ulm and two fellow Australian aviators lost since Tuesday, and authorities announced the efforts would continue "while there is any hope."

Although prospects for rescuing the trio dwindled on the third day of fruitless searching, a heartening message was received from Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, trans-Pacific flier, in which he expressed belief that Ulm's plane might float "several days."

Telegraphing from Los Angeles, Kingsford-Smith, companion of Ulm on trans-Pacific and other flights, said:

"I definitely believe Ulm's machine is capable of floating several days and strongly urge that the search not yet be abandoned."

"We have no intention of abandoning the search while there is any hope," responded Commander E. W. Tod. "The Navy has 13 planes resweeping parts of the area already covered by other ships in the search of yesterday and the day before. We are checking all reports to see that no small part of the surrounding water shall be neglected."

The Navy, Army, Coast Guard and a large number of sampans are working night and day in the search.

Belief was expressed that Ulm and Copilot George Littlejohn and Navigator-Radio Operator J. L. Skilling might be anywhere within a 200-mile radius of the Hawaiian Islands.

With their gasoline exhausted, they descended on the sea Tuesday after radioing that they were lost on their flight from Oakland, Calif.

Roosevelt and Garner Confer As Both Return to the Capital

President Moves Into New Executive Offices, Then He and His Second-in-Command Look Over the Agenda for Congress.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

President Roosevelt and his second-in-command, Vice President John Nance Garner, lost no time yesterday in putting their heads together over the broad legislative program which the Administration will present to Congress next month.

Arriving from Warm Springs, Ga., at noon, Mr. Roosevelt went immediately to the White House for lunch, and shortly thereafter moved into the executive offices which were completed during his three weeks' absence from the Capital.

Vice President Garner, who came in on an earlier train from the West, was on hand to greet Mr. Roosevelt at Union Station, and a few hours later visited the President's new offices for their first conference since last June, when Congress released him to his Uvalde, Tex., ranch.

As hale and ruddy as ever, after a summer spent fishing and hunting on his home grounds, the Vice President took occasion to proclaim the New Deal's neutrality in the fight for Speakership of the House. He added that he and the President had discussed legislation and "a little bit of everything else."

President Roosevelt, he declared, is a "Constitutional President" and, as such, interferes with neither the legislative nor the judicial branches of the Government. Concerning the Speakership race, he continued: "My understanding is, the Administration is not taking any stand. I think that is good policy. I have not seen any exhibition of interference with that policy since 'His Nibs' has been here."

In view of the reluctance with which Mr. Garner leaves home, his return so far in advance of Congress was regarded as a significant

Children to Hear Symphony Today, 'In Person,' on Air

The entire program of the third children's concert by the National Symphony Concert under the direction of Dr. Hans Kindler, to be given this afternoon at Eastern High School, will be broadcast by Radio Station WRC, enabling "shutins" and others to enjoy the program arranged under the sponsorship of The Washington Post. The program will begin at 3:15 p. m. and will be completed at 4:30 p. m.

This concert is one of four, presented in order to give children in the city's public, private and parochial schools an opportunity to become acquainted with the music of the masters. Dr. Kindler will explain the use of each instrument.

Tickets for the concert, which are 25 cents each, are distributed through music supervisors and teachers in the neighboring grammar, junior high, private and parochial schools, or may be purchased at the auditorium.

PWA Agrees To $1,500,000 Hospital Loan

Tuberculosis Institution Must Be Erected in 18 Months.

After many delays, the Public Works Administration late yesterday moved to make available $1,500,000 for the construction of a District of Columbia tuberculosis hospital.

PWA sent a contract to the District Commissioners outlining the terms under which the money will be granted. This must be signed first by the Commissioners and then by Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

As drawn, the contract specified that the tuberculosis hospital would have to be completed by July 1, 1935—only six months from now. Obviously this would be impossible. It would take six months to complete the plans alone.

Mistake of a Year.

Following a flurry at the District Building, PWA officials said a mistake must have been made; that July 1, 1936, had been meant as the date of completion.

That gives the city a year and six months in which to put up the hospital, and no difficulty is expected in meeting the requirement.

Under the terms of the contract between PWA and the District Government, Administrator Ickes is not only advancing the money but he is the foreman on the job.

The contract says that the hospital must be erected "on a site satisfactory to the Administrator." Since a committee of physicians appointed by President Roosevelt picked Glenn Dale, Md., where the city owns a big tract of land, there has been no question this would be the site.

However, Mr. Ickes, who was opposed to Glenn Dale, apparently believes there still may be complica-

Middle West Hit By Subzero Wave

Minnesota Town Reports Mercury 16 Below.

Old-fashioned winter, with snow and all the subzero trimmings, made itself at home in the North and Middle West Thursday, the Associated Press reported.

As far south as Kansas City there was a preview of Christmas weather, a dash of snow and a zippy temperature of 24, while up along the Canadian border thermometers fell as low as 16 below. Bemidji, Minn., reported the minimum reading.

Probers Link Aims of Dye, Gun Makers

Tell of Drive to Sway Sentiment From German Firms.

By Robert C. Albright.

Evidence of a powerful publicity campaign by American dye interests to influence high tariff sentiment against German dyes just after the war, and efforts by investigators to link dyes with munitions was presented yesterday to the Senate arms investigating committee.

Disclosures came after a verbal clash between Senator Bennett Champ Clark and Irenee du Pont, of the Delaware firm of powder makers, over industry's part in America's war entry, and denial by investigators of State Department interest in a 1925 munitions conference called by Herbert Hoover.

From Palo Alto, Hoover has announced that former Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg suggested the conference. Testifying before yesterday's session of the committee, Stephen Raushenbush, chief investigator, said nothing in State Department files justified that statement.

South American Sales.

Later, evidence was offered that Remington Arms Co., controlled by E. I. du Pont de Nemours, sold ammunition to both Paraguay and Boliva during the four-year Gran Chaco war, and a Remington official last year assured South American customers arms embargo legislation would be "killed."

In an apparent effort to show the dye industry has military value, preparatory to drafting legislation for Federal control of munitions firms, Raushenbush presented an exchange of letters between American dye agents, one of which declared "disarmament is a farce as long as Germany retains organic chemical monopolies."

Charging the American dye industry sent publicity men to Europe after the World War "to keep the pot boiling" in its drive to protect the American dye industry against German exports, Raushenbush placed Charles K. Weston, Du Pont publicity representative, on the witness stand.

Letter to Weston.

Weston admitted he was interested in keeping the public informed on dye developments, and made a trip to Europe for that purpose. Ben K. Raleigh, a Paris correspondent, wrote Weston in January, 1921, detailing success in getting anti-German dye articles in print, read a letter introduced in the record.

"The A. P. (Associated Press) carried a cable on the substance of an interview I had with Prof. Blondell, professor of economics and political science of the College of France, and I hope you noted it

Kansas City-New York Plane Record Is Set

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—A new transport speed record between Kansas City and New York was reported made today by a Trans-continental & Western Air Transport plane flying the 1,133 miles in 4 hours 45 minutes, an average speed of 248 miles an hour. The previous best transport time was over five and a half hours.

The ship carried ten passengers, two pilots and several hundred pounds of mail and express.

Tarzan's Creator Given Divorce by Reno Court

Las Vegas, Nev., Dec. 6 (AP).—Edgar Rice Burroughs, author of "Tarzan" books, was granted a divorce today from Mrs. Emma Hulbert Burroughs. The testimony was ordered sealed. Burroughs charged cruelty.

It was understood from lawyers of Mrs. Burroughs, who did not contest the suit, that a property settlement had been effected. The couple had been married for 34 years.

Davis Warns Against Destroying 'Equality of Security.'

Washington Treaty Defended as Vital

Our Delegates May Be Called Home if It Is Renounced.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Apparently abandoning hope for agreement at the London naval conservations, the United States Government yesterday placed at Japan's door responsibility for the imminent breakdown of efforts to continue limitation of sea armaments by treaty.

Crossing the Rubicon formally and publicly for the first time, the American Government rejected Japan's demand for naval parity in a speech delivered to the American Correspondents' Association at London by American Ambassador at Large Norman H. Davis. He argued that equality of armaments would destroy the existing equality of security.

Mr. Davis' address, which had advance approval of the State Department, if not of President Roosevelt, undertook to justify this Nation's refusal to accede to the Japanese demand and warned that abandonment of the Washington and London treaties "would lead to conditions of insecurity, of international suspicion and of costly competition with no real advantage to any nation."

May Order Delegates Home.

More than appeared in Mr. Davis' speech, however, may be said with authority. If the Japanese carry out their avowed intention of denouncing the Washington treaty, such action will be regarded here as an official indication that the Nipponese rejected the bases of naval limitation.

Consequently the American Government would feel that Japan was terminating the naval conversations and would order home its delegates in London unless denunciation of the treaty were accompanied by a new and fundamentally constructive approach to the problem of limitation.

Beyond this immediate action designed to be ready for notice from Japan in the next two weeks terminating the Washington treaty, the American Government has not formulated the policy it will pursue. But hope exists within the Administration that steps can and will be taken in the two years that must elapse before the Washington pact expires on December 31, 1936, to renew the efforts for limitation by agreement.

It is further hoped that these two years will be a cooling-off period in which the militarists and jingoes in Japan will relent in their demand for equality in armaments and the people of all the sea-powers will ponder the consequences of abandonment of the existing treaty framework.

Frown on Navy Race.

Meanwhile, those directing the policies of this Government frown and will continue to frown on those urging the United States to enter a naval race with enthusiasm, building five ships for every three constructed by Japan, as recently suggested by Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee. Until 1937 this country as well as Japan is bound by the Washington Treaty, it is pointed out, and such agitation now only complicates the situation.

France's Move For Reich Pact Alarms Soviet

Geneva, Dec. 6 (AP).—A new French move for an understanding with Germany, hailed in Geneva as likely to lay the specter of war hovering over Europe, today gave Soviet Russia, France's wartime ally, cause for concern.

The Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, Maxim Litvinoff, hurried to Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, to ask France's pledge that she would not enter any agreement with another nation without consulting Russia.

The two statesmen, who last month were reported to have agreed that the Russian army would be at France's disposal should Germany attack, decided neither nation should make political accords with third parties without consulting the other, until the Eastern Locarno security pact is completed.

Russia Fears Isolation.

Russia, it was reported, feared that the Franco-German understanding might isolate her, but Geneva was speculating tonight as to whether the reported Franco-Soviet military accord might not give place ultimately to an outright Franco-German alliance.

Laval's policy of seeking an understanding with Germany, which was evident in the agreement the two nations recently reached at Rome disposing of the Saar question and France's announcement that she would send no troops in the Saar made here yesterday, led Litvinoff to confer with Laval today.

The French statesman assured the Soviet representative that the Eastern Locarno pact, which envisages an agreement for non-aggression among Germany, Russia, Poland and other Central European nations, was not imperilled. France would not cast aside her old friends, Litvinoff was assured, in taking on new.

The "peace atmosphere" of the current extraordinary session of the league council was accentuated, meanwhile, by Germany's

French Veterans Sit In Street as Protest

'Vengeance,' Soviet Requiem For Kiroff, Assassinated Chief

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Moscow, Dec. 6.—A hero's funeral was given Sergei Kiroff, assassinated Communist leader, today as Soviet leaders renewed their vows to wreak vengeance on the "enemies of the revolution."

The bodies of 66 convicted counter-revolutionaries, executed yesterday, bore evidence to the fervor of those vows.

"Bolshevists do not know how to weep," Dmitri Manuilsky, secretary of the Comintern (the Third International), declared, just before Kiroff's ashes were deposited in the niche in the Kremlin wall, "but they know how to avenge."

"Comrade Kiroff is a martyr, like Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebnecht," he said. "Let us beat mercilessly the enemies of the revolution."

As the rigid investigation that followed Kiroff's murder in Leningrad Saturday reached out for new evidence of counter-revolutionary activity, Viacheslav Moloff, president of the Council of People's Commissars, charged his murderer was sent by "class enemies."

They must be stamped out, he insisted, even though "they have been so weakened by the Bolshevists that they can only shoot men from behind."

Josef Stalin, though he said no eulogy over Kiroff's ashes, helped carry the urn to the Red catafalque before the tomb of Nicolai Lenin, father of the Bolshevist revolution, and stood with the Communist leaders during the funeral ceremony.

After the ashes were deposited in the massive wall, the square was opened to the workers. Hour after hour they marched past Kiroff's last resting place.

A new tribute to the dead leader was the request of the city of Viatka, capital of the province where he was born, to change its name to "Kiroff".

Maryland Crash Injures Two Men

Baltimore, Dec. 6 (AP).—A truck loaded with five tons of slate for use in the schools at Fairfax, Va., and an automobile collided here today, sending two men to a hospital and scattering the building material over the street.

William Hare, of Keyser, W. Va., driver of the car, and Paul Daruon, of Piedmont, W. Va., were treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises. Francis Marr, of Bangor, Pa., driver of the truck, escaped injury.

Charged with failing to stop at a boulevard, Hare was later fined $25 and costs at a hearing before Magistrate John A. Meyer in traffic court.

Trunk Murder Charge Filed Against Engineer

Los Angeles, Dec. 6 (AP).—A complaint was issued late today charging John H. Happel, 53, a steam engineer from St. Louis, with the murder of his wife, Rosabella, 46, whose body was found in a trunk at their home last night.

Happel, who had been out of work two years because of a disabling injury, had not been apprehended. He was last seen at his home late Saturday.

Bankers Found In Opposition To Law Change

Thomas Reopens Inquiries as to Need for Money Devaluation.

(Associated Press.)

A cross-section of banking opinion was held yesterday to show a definite opposition to any further radical changes in the Federal banking laws.

Chairman Fletcher of the Senate Banking Committee reported this as "the drift of opinion" of half of the 40 bankers, economists and students of finance who thus far have replied to his questionnaire on the need of new fiscal legislation.

Fletcher subscribed to this feeling by his correspondents, but added that his committee would grant hearings on all new banking and monetary proposals, including those for a central bank and unified banking system.

Wants More Devaluation.

While Fletcher was analyzing the replies to his questionnaire, Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, started another on the way to senators, representatives, governors, bankers, economists, editors, educators, ministers and others seeking opinions on his proposal for further devaluation of the dollar.

Thomas said the dollar already had been cut from 167 to 130 cents, compared to its normal purchasing power. This, he asserted, had resulted in a shifting of $162,000,000,000 in values to the benefit of taxpayers and the public generally.

A return to the 100-cent dollar, he said, would in ten years time boost this "benefit to the masses of the people" to $471,000,000,000.

Fletcher's questionnaire also sought views on monetary legislation in addition to banking law proposals, but he has yet to study the replies.

Anderson Gets Questionnaire.

One of his questionnaires went to Dr. T. J. Anderson, jr., of the New York University School of Commerce, who advocated Federal incorporation of all commercial banks as the "most significant single prerequisite to a truly strong, well-supervised and depression resisting banking system."

Fletcher said he did not favor this at present, but it was one of the proposals that might come up and in his judgment Congress had the power to provide for such unification "if it sees fit."

Dr. Anderson said he did not believe it necessary or advisable to adopt now a system of Government owned and operated banks.

Women to Present Toys To Tubercular Children

Toys were stacked high in the Mayflower Hotel last night, brought there by members of the Dames of the Loyal Legion as Christmas presents for the 106 children of the Children's Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Glenn Dale.

While Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker presided, the group heard Mrs. Ernest R. Grant describe work at the institution and Mrs. Julia Cantacuzene-Grant ask energetic opposition to Communism.

Between You and Me

Richberg's Lyrical Appeal to Manufacturers Brings a Somewhat Startling Reply.

By Raymond Clapper

THERE was a small matter that Donald R. Richberg should have attended to before he made that speech before the National Manufacturers Association, but perhaps it would be improper at this time to go into too much detail.

Col. Richberg, though a lawyer and economist of note, remains also a poet and when he addressed the manufacturers his imagination flamed into a lyrical appeal for revival of the spirit of courage and adventure among them.

He described eloquently the daring odyssey of early traders who ventured out in little sailing vessels to find new markets, of adventurers who risked life and fortune to win wealth, to open up new avenues of commerce, of the American pioneers who blazed trails through the wilderness and pushed railroads across the continent. Descendants of these rugged pioneers, Col. Richberg said, should show some of that same spirit.

"Unless the business men of America have been shell-shocked into nervous impotence," he told them, "there must come a time when they will respond to the fighting spirit of that old admiral who signalled: 'Damn the torpedoes. Go ahead!'"

* * * *

What we wanted to bring up was the fact that out of these timid, shell-shocked business ranks there already has appeared a manufacturer of just such indomitable fighting spirit. Months ago he was saying to his salesmen, "Damn the torpedoes and go ahead."

But where is he now? Why he is up in Federal court at Harrisburg, Pa., on a criminal charge.

This defendant, Fred C. Perkins, a Cornell graduate in mechanical engineering, is a small manufacturer of wet batteries. He is charged with having violated the wet battery code by failing to pay minimum wages. The Government put on as a witness a former employe, who testified that in one instance when a competitor was bidding for a sale he closed the deal by taking post-dated checks without laying on the carrying charges required under the code. He said under oath that Perkins, when informed of this, said, "Glory to your spunk!"

The Government also produced another witness, a Dr. Edwin W. Martin, vice president of the Thomas A. Edison Co. and general manager of the Emark Battery Co., a subsidiary and direct competitor of Perkins. Dr. Martin was chairman of the committee which drafted the wet battery code and has been chairman of the Wet Battery Code Authority from the time it was organized. He insisted that the code was fair to small industries.

Last summer the Government had Perkins in jail for 18 days until a fellow townsman put up $5,000 bond for him.

They say defendant Perkins isn't a bad fellow. He had always been a law-abiding citizen and is educating a son at Cornell. It was just some of his old pioneer blood breaking out—he is a descendant of Miles Standish.

We had in mind a suggestion to revive some of the spunk among those shell-shocked manufacturers so they won't be afraid to take a chance, but perhaps it is improper to do so. It was merely that since Perkins is a fraternity brother of Richberg, and just for dear old Phi Gamma Delta, he might use his influence to get the fellow off easy.

* * * *

If the Government doesn't win its referendum to continue the Bankhead compulsory cotton-control act, there's something wrong somewhere. President Roosevelt has announced that all two-bale growers will be exempted from compulsory control in the future if the cotton belt votes to continue the Bankhead law. That takes 30 per cent of the growers out from under the act, and they ought to be willing to apply it to the others.

Frank C. Walker spent much of his time at Warm Springs recently removing hats from beds in Kress Hall where the brain trusters were quartered. He has a superstition that it is bad luck to leave a hat on the bed. When Farley, Morgenthau, Ickes and the other Warm Springs visitors heard of it they took care always to leave their hats on the bed, forcing Walker to patrol the cottage to remove them. Gangsters think that a hat on the bed means some one is going to take them for a ride but nobody knows how Walker came by his superstition.

* * * *

Senator Borah says it wasn't the arms manufacturers who caused the Senate to fail to ratify the Geneva arms convention of 1925. He says the convention just didn't mean anything. The Nye munitions investigating committee turned up evidence that Herbert Hoover, while Secretary of Commerce, had consulted with arms manufacturers on the eve of the Geneva negotiations. Mr. Hoover tossed the baby into Senator Borah's lap by replying that the convention was agreed to but that the Senate failed to ratify it. Borah was chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee while the convention was pending.

Borah held that its chief value was that it provided publicity for arms shipments but that these provisions would be automatically suspended for all signatories in event of war, which would make it possible for a third nation to supply two belligerents with munitions without any publicity of the fact being required. The late Theodore Burton, who helped negotiate the convention, told the Senate committee that the convention did not constitute any great force in the prevention of war, though a step in that direction.

A poll of the Senate was taken on the poison gas treaty and insufficient votes were in sight to ratify it, whereupon both it and the arms convention were dropped.

* * * *

Vice President Garner's exceptionally early arrival in Washington is variously explained. Some say he's here to help his fellow-Texan, Representative Sam Rayburn, campaign for the speakership of the House. Garner says he came on because the hunting season was over.

"I got my bear and there are several things here I want to look into," he says. He never before came to town so far ahead of a session of Congress.

For the first time a place has been made in the White House executive offices for the President's wife. It is a small upstairs office done in pastel green, not Eleanor blue. For many years it was a tradition that the wife of the President did not go near the executive offices, but in recent years that has gradually broken down, along with all of the other inhibitions which once kept the ladies in their places. Actually Mrs. Roosevelt doesn't expect to use her office much, but anyway it's there for her.

Occasionally she drops in at the President's press conferences and sometimes she will step into her husband's office a moment to greet an old friend. At Warm Springs, where everything was much less formal, she often participated in informal discussions with the President.

* * * *

In one respect the new executive offices which Mr. Roosevelt occupied for the first time yesterday are not so good as the old ones. Before there were only two doors through which an important caller could elude waiting reporters outside. Now there are four.

indication of the part he will play in helping to guide the White House legislative program, now taking shape.

He referred all questions to the President, but did say, eyes twinkling under his heavy sombrero, that the newspapers had put him in wrong in one respect. What really happened when they reported he fell out of a tree and injured his knee, he said, was he had merely climbed out on a limb and misjudged his jump to the ground.

Before and after the Vice President's call at the White House, Mr. Roosevelt received a steady procession of visitors, including Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Secretary of War George H. Dern, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, and Chester H. Gray, Washington representative of the American Farm Federation.

Relief Plan Before President.

Before the President lay the vast problem of putting into final form the gigantic relief program now virtually agreed on, and a host of smaller questions involving legislation. Overtopping them all is the budget, which must be presented January 4, the day after his annual message to Congress.

Cheering news came from one quarter as the President returned to his old desk in his new office building. In a statement, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, reported that for the first time since records were started in 1928 employment in the building trades held steady in November.

Employment Gain Cited.

Between August and the end of October, he said, 40,000 more men were put to work in the construction industry. Unemployment continues "even now most appalling," he added, but "unquestionably this gain, for it really is a gain, reflects the efforts of the Federal Housing Administration to break the deadlock in the building industry."

Meanwhile, Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, who was one of those returning from Warm Springs with the President, declared that 1,000,000 families on relief rolls could be put into farm-industrial communities without expense to the Government. He said there are about 4,200,000 families on relief and some 4,500,000 "employables."

Fails to Mention Outlay.

At the same time, the relief administrator was careful not to mention money figures, nor would he discuss any of the plans for converting direct relief into work relief. He replied merely that he expects no great increase in work relief the remainder of this winter. The relief administrator has been reported favoring a work relief program costing from $8,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000.

Others who returned with the President and immediately resumed work were Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, who has been advocating a huge new public works program; Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, Undersecretary of Agriculture; Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., and Postmaster General James A. Farley.

Conferences to Continue.

With Mr. Hopkins, they formed the membership of the "Swimming Cabinet," which discussed the legislative program with Mr. Roosevelt while bathing in the tepid waters of Warm Springs. These conferences will continue up to the actual convening of Congress, by which time Mr. Roosevelt expects to have his relief plans whipped into a single program.

An inkling of what might be expected may be given by the President in his forthcoming radio "fireside chat," which will be made sometime between the tenth and twentieth of this month. So vast is the whole relief program, however, involving the creation of a new set-up of modified public works, that the details will not be divulged until Congress is on hand.

Fight Is Seen On Bonus.

With Vice President Garner, the President is believed to have gone into the threat of bonus inflation, which is seen as the most serious obstacle before him. Already he has said he considers the war veterans in better condition, generally speaking, than many other classes, and there was every indication he will fight it out with Congress along this line.

Mr. Roosevelt's good health, as he stepped from the train platform yesterday morning, was apparent to the small crowd there to welcome him back. Besides Mr. Garner, he was met by Mrs. Roosevelt, who preceded him home by several days, and Secretaries Hull and Wallace. His eldest son, James Roosevelt, and Mrs. James Roosevelt accompanied him from Warm Springs.

in the cable dispatches," Raleigh wrote Weston.

"The Public Ledger syndicate and the Chicago Tribune syndicate papers are to be supplied with a story I have arranged, which will point out that the French government, upon confidential information from its investigators in Germany, regarding a coming great German dump of goods, will further increase its coefficient tariff rates on dyestuffs, chemicals, etc."

Raleigh spoke confidently of getting other "stories" on the cables, and asked authorization for "an occasional luncheon, etc., in furtherance of the project."

Among other people he said he wanted to "cultivate" he mentioned "such men as Williams, of the P. L.; Roberts, of the A. P.; Deshell, who is a good plugger, etc."

"Floyd Gibbons, of the Tribune, should be cultivated more closely, and you know how much can be done over a bite to eat and a drink," he added.

"Carl Ackerman, who dropped into the Ledger bureau while I was there, over on a short visit from London, requested me to remember him to you."

Clark, Du Pont Clash.

The brisk exchange between Senator Clark and Irenee du Pont came after the Missourian asserted the United States need not have entered the war "except to protect the munitions makers' profits."

Clark, a legionnaire who saw overseas service, asserted powder is of no aid to humanity, and was immediately challenged by Du Pont, who asked if he felt that way during the war.

"Yes," said Clark. "Naturally when we got into it we needed powder, but I don't think it was ever necessary for us to get into it except to protect the munitions makers' profits."

"Do you mean to tell me that President Wilson was dragged into that conflict by the heels at the insistence of munitions makers?" asked Du Pont.

"Nothing of the kind," retorted Clark, as the colloquy took a personal twist.

"I want to disabuse your mind of any idea that you are conducting this investigation."

Monaghan Questioned.

F. J. Monaghan, export manager for Remington, was questioned about a letter he had written last year, stating that some "mighty high officials" had been contacted on Bolivian and Paraguayan embargo proposals, and the embargo would be stopped.

"That's only a sales letter, you know that," Monaghan said.

He said his firm had sold 20,000,000 cartridges to Bolivia and 100,000 to Paraguay. President E. K. Davis of the Remington Arms Co. said his concern remained neutral by selling to both countries. H. F. Beebe, who manages foreign sales for the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., said that firm sold 2,500,000 cartridges to Bolivia.

Evidence was offered that in the face of embargo limitations, powder had been shipped to Holland by the Du Ponts, and thence to China. Maj. K. K. V. Casey, of the Du Pont concern, testified that the ultimate destination of the powder was known when the shipment left America.

Ickes Contributes To Personal Relief Fund of Hopkins

Secretary Ickes disclosed yesterday that both public and personal finances came in for consideration while he visited President Roosevelt in Georgia the last few days, the Associated Press says.

On the latter, at least, he did not fare so well.

He conceded he had played a little poker.

"Harry Hopkins (the relief administrator) can finance his relief program himself now," he said.

Norris Assails Power Trust's Fear Campaign

(Copyright, 1934, by United Press.)

Senator George W. Norris (Republican), Nebraska, last night accused the power trust of deliberately arousing fears among utility investors in the hope of sabotage in the Administration's huge reclamation projects. He threatened a congressional inquiry.

In an interview the Nebraska liberal warned that Congress was in no mood to temporize with stubborn power interests, and that the Nation-wide development project to which President Roosevelt is pledged will go forward.

"There appears to be a well-organized effort on the part of the power trust to create fear and distrust in the minds of those persons who have invested their money in utilities stocks," Norris said.

"This started when the Tennessee Valley program was launched. It has kept up ever since. It is a subtle thing. You could see it when the Tennessee Valley Authority was negotiating for property in Knoxville which was owned by a utilities group.

"A pitiable picture was painted then of widows, orphans and aged who would lose their life savings through such a deal. It was just another story—not a true one."

Norris reviewed negotiations in Knoxville, which have been temporarily suspended by court action. He pointed to the liberality of the authority's offer for the utilities property as proof of his contention that the power interests were inspiring false propaganda.

"We don't want to take a single penny of the investor's money," he said. "Investigations have disclosed already that there is more than $1,000,000,000 in watered stock in power company set-ups throughout the country. It is not fair to the consumer of electricity that he should be forced to pay high rates so the company can pay dividends on this false paper."

Crosser Joins Speaker Race; 4 See Victory

(Associated Press.)

The Speakership contest reached a new high in intensity yesterday with the formal entrance into the race of Representative Crosser, a veteran legislator from Ohio.

The announcement was a forerunner of a day of developments including victory predictions by four of the eight competing candidates.

Into the race was thrown a prediction by Vice President Garner that his Chief, President Roosevelt, would not take any part in the selection contest.

Confers at White House.

Garner, who has just returned from his Uvalde, Tex., home, did his speaking on the steps of the White House. Generally uncommunicative, as he left a conference with the President, Garner did say:

"I read in the papers that the President is not taking part in the Speakership fight. I don't believe he will. We have three independent branches of Government and I feel the President wants the legislative and the judicial branches to be independent. He has certainly pursued that policy so far."

As for his own views Garner declined to discuss the speakership race. He has been closely watched by the competitors because one of his fellow Texans, Representative Rayburn, is a candidate.

In addition to Crosser, O'Connor and Mead, both of the latter from New York, are the only Democrats north of the Mason-Dixon Line out for the high post. Mead and O'Connor, concededly, however, are making the play in an effort to obtain the majority leadership.

Candidates Confident.

Besides Byrns, of Tennessee, and Rayburn, others in the race are Bankhead, of Alabama; Rankin, of Mississippi, and Green, of Florida.

Other candidates for the floor leadership are McCormack, of Massachusetts; Greenwood, of Indiana; Arnold and Sabath, both of Illinois, and Lea, of California.

Crosser's move apparently tied up to him the 18 Democratic votes in Ohio. Representative Sweeney, of the Buckeye State, immediately sent letters to all his colleagues asking support of Crosser and describing him as a "Progressive" whose election would have a "tremendous influence for good for the party."

Questioned yesterday, Rayburn said:

"I'm satisfied with the situation and am more confident than ever."

At a press conference Byrns stated:

"I am confident of election. I will be the next Speaker."

Rankin said:

"No one has enough votes to claim election and the race is far from settled. There will be a surprise staged at the caucus."

Big Industries May Be Forced To Take Codes

By Douglas Warrenfels.

Legislative means of placing the big telephone, telegraph, shipping and meat-packing industries under codes were considered yesterday by the NRA administrative board.

With their more than 750,000 employes and billions of dollars in operating capital, the four recalcitrant groups have resisted all codification efforts. Officials regard their enlistment under pacts as essential to success of the Blue-Eagle movement.

At the same time it was learned Donald R. Richberg, national executive council director, and others named to draft a recovery program for the new Congress have definitely decided the Sherman anti-trust laws must remain suspended irrespective of protests that monopolism has flourished since they were lifted.

The administrative board, headed by Clay Williams, probably will finish its legislative studies within a week or two and vote on whether the President should be urged to seek inclusion in the revised recovery act of a provision which would make hour and wage requirements for uncodified industries particularly stringent.

Purpose of Maneuver.

None of the important hold-outs would be mentioned by name, but the purpose of the maneuver, if adopted, would be to make it so hot for outside industries by congressional edict that the telephone, telegraph, shipping and meat-packing groups would welcome, instead of scorn, codes.

All of these industries signed the President's reemployment agreement and still are subject to voluntary wage and hour supervision. The telephone and telegraph corporations have argued they already are regulated by the Federal Communications Commission, while the shippers and meat packers have contended there is no necessity for their inclusion in pacts.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson last spring threatened to impose a code on the telephone and telegraph industries. He wrote his own compact and called a public hearing for its consideration after the interests involved refused to propose a code. Nothing ever came of it, however, despite Johnson's charges that the industries were guilty of "abuses inimical to the public interest."

Telegraph Charges.

At that time the Postal Telegraph Co. accused Western Union and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. with unfair competition. Postal executives complained their company faced extinction unless prevailing conditions were remedied.

Authority over the meat packing code negotiations was transferred from AAA to NRA more than a year ago after a fight over food processing policy, marked by transfer of George N. Peek from the Farm Administration to the Export-Import Bank.

As early as November, 1933, Joseph Scott, veteran maritime operator, resigned as deputy administrator because of his inability to get the shipping industry to accept a code.

"This unfortunate situation," he declared, "has been grasped by a group of lawyers representing important groups of the industry and in some cases also representing the strong individual interests who dominate the trade and desire to avoid compliance; who have created an impasse, and who have been fiddling for months while Rome has been burning in their effort to control the industry for their own individual benefit and profit."

Cut in Personnel.

The nearest approach the shipping industry has to a code is a pact covering 1,500 Great Lakes employes. All told, the industry has 350,000 employes and investments of $3,500,000,000. The meat packers have 108,000 employes, annual sales of $3,434,000,000 and capital of $1,100,000,000. The telephone industry comprises investments of $4,269,000,000 and has 248,000 workers. The telegraph industry is capitalized at $506,000,000 and employs 50,000 or 60,000 persons.

Another plan under consideration by the Williams board would call for a two-thirds reduction in NRA personnel through absorption of some of its functions by the Labor Department and the Federal Trade Commission. The personnel problem will be studied by James L. O'Neil, New York banker, who was named only yesterday as Blue Eagle control officer.

O'Neil's services were loaned by the Guaranty Trust Co. He has specialized in personnel management more than a quarter of a century. He formerly was credit manager of Carnegie Steel Co.

fields not normally within its scope * * * should be and must be labeled 'for the emergency period only' and that private effort should be vigilantly alert to aid the Federal Government in returning these responsibilities as quickly as possible to nongovernmental sources where they rightfully belong."

He assured the Congress that "the Federal Government is following the policy of tapering off expenditures just as rapidly as possible and will levy taxes to pay for the burden of emergency costs as business is able to assume the additional responsibility."

Escaped Texas Slayer Killed by Police Guns

Amarillo, Tex., Dec. 6 (U.P.).—Irvin (Blackie) Thompson, one of a group of convicted killers who escaped from the death house at the Huntsville Penitentiary last July 22 was killed by peace officers near Conroe tonight.

The former member of the Kimes gang of Oklahoma bandits, and pal of Raymond Hamilton, Texas' No. 1 bad man, was slain in a running battle with Amarillo police and sheriff's officers.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 6 (AP).—The Continental Oil Co. refinery office here was robbed of $200 today by three men, the leader of whom was identified by H. P. Forest, cashier, as Raymond Hamilton, Southwest desperado. Forest said he had known Hamilton several years.

NRA Code Violation Testimony Ended

Defense Fails to Call Witness in Perkins Case.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 6 (AP).—Testimony in the trial of Fred C. Perkins, York battery manufacturer, charged with violating the minimum wage provisions of the NRA code, ended abruptly in Federal Court today without any defense witness being called.

Arguments by counsel will be made tomorrow.

"We're through except for arguments," said Harold B. Beitler, chief of defense counsel and former president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, after the Government closed its case. The battery manufacturer has termed it a test of the NRA authority to fix minimum wages. Perkins refused to sign the code, claiming it would bankrupt him.

Moffett Assures League That Private Enterprise Will Do Housing.

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 6 (AP).—James A. Moffett, Federal Housing Administrator, said tonight at a meeting of the National Construction League and the Construction Code Authority that he was authorized by the President to say the public works program would not compete with private enterprise in the field covered by the national housing act.

"The national housing act is to be conducted by private enterprise and is a long-range program. It can not be considered in any respect, as regards titles 2 and 3, as an emergency program, for the reason that the existing mortgage market must be stabilized and proper values restored," the administrator said.

"These have been demoralized and destroyed by the flight of capital from the realty field due to the wave of foreclosures during the depression years."

The public works program, Moffett said, was devised to "provide a quick outlet for durable goods and employment in the existing emergency and to provide homes as a relief measure."

"I am authorized by the President," he added, "to say that the field of activity to be covered by the public works program will not compete with private enterprise in the field naturally and normally covered by the national housing act.

"The housing act, then, must be construed, and the housing administration so conducted that the largest volume of business consistent with sound procedure will be created for you, the building industry and its allied professions and industries. For it is plain that, as business is created for the construction industry, just so will demand open for building materials and the other heavy, or durable goods."

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—Validity of the divorce obtained in Paris by the late Edward W. Browning, millionaire real estate man and estranged husband of Frances (Peaches) Browning, was challenged today by Mrs. Nellie Adele Browning, his first wife.

In a memorandum submitted to Surrogate James A. Delehanty, Mrs. Browning asked for an opportunity to prove her status in open court.

Mrs. De Forth, who had intended to cast her ballot for her husband, arrived three minutes after the polls closed.

Walmsley Loses Democratic Chairman's Post in Huey's Latest Coup.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 6 (AP).—Senator Huey P. Long ousted his political enemy, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans, from the chairmanship of the Democratic State committee late today and took over the office himself.

The action was made possible under one of the 44 bills recently approved by the Legislature to strengthen Long's rule, which became law during the day.

In New Orleans, however, something was happening to two of Long's supporters. A Federal grand jury indicted State Senator Jules G. Fisher and his nephew, Representative Joseph Fisher, for attempting to evade and defeat payment of income tax.

Senator Fisher, political boss of Jefferson Parish, was one of the signers of the "round robin" of 1929 in the Louisiana Legislature, composed of a group of Senators who blocked the impeachment trial of Long, then Governor.

Long's election by the State committee was by an overwhelming majority over a vigorous protest from Mayor Walmsley! The vote was 70 to 15 for the "Kingfish," who voted for Walmsley as a joke and then took the floor to deliver a eulogy to himself and Gov. O. K. Allen.

Educators to Probe Huey's Power at L. S. U.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 6 (AP).—The commission on higher institutions of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools today was requested by the association's executive committee to investigate charges that Huey Long is "running Louisiana State University."

And L. S. U.—Dean C. A. Ives, of the university's teachers' college, said—will "welcome the investigation."

Buy a Home, Take It With You, Plan Filene Proposes

Boston, Dec. 6 (AP).—A nation-wide housing project in which a worker might purchase transferable home-ownership wherever his job called him, was proposed tonight by Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant and Administration supporter.

At the same time Filene declared the proposed nation-wide home-building program now under consideration in Washington "may prove to be a menace to lasting recovery, wasting billions of dollars and leaving masses of home-owners in a condition rather worse than homeless."

The crux of the substitute plan which he advanced lay, he said, in recognition of the fact that "America is an industrial, not an agrarian, civilization and the population of an industrial civilization is more or less always on the move."

Experts Urge Broad Revision Of Income Tax

House Committee Given Report Proposing Law Like England's.

(Associated Press.)

A wide revision of the Federal income tax laws along the lines of the British tax system was recommended yesterday to the House Ways and Means Committee considering a projected new revenue bill.

The recommendations were made in a report by Roswell Magill, L. H. Parker and Eldon P. King, a trio of experts who spent last summer in Europe studying ways of improving American tax methods.

Among the changes suggested were:

Restatement of the income tax statutes to make them simple and less disagreeable to taxpayers.

Urge Civil Service Status.

Improvement in the personnel of the Internal Revenue Bureau—attracting highly educated men into making this work their career by bringing them under Civil Service, improving wages and offering old-age pensions.

Decentralization of the internal revenue set-up to permit the winding up of tax cases in the field, thereby avoiding delay in collections.

Restricting tax refunds through the courts.

The report was submitted to the committee by Parker, chief of staff of the joint committee on internal revenue. He acted in the absence of Magill, resigned Treasury expert, who headed the group that made the study.

Simplicity Declared as Aim.

In recommending restatement and improvement of the law, the report said the American laws were skillfully drafted but complicated; that the redrafting should be done by a few trained men working with a group of advisers from the Treasury, the bar and the accounting profession.

"In the course of such restatement," the report said, "it will probably be found that greater simplicity and equity could be obtained in some instances and more regard given to economic conditions if the existing law were changed."

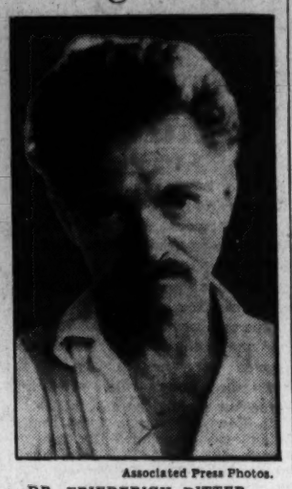
Kepner and Stevens Receive Flying Awards

Dayton, Dec. 6 (AP).—Maj. W. E. Kepner and Capt. A. W. Stevens, Wright Field fliers, today received Distinguished Flying Crosses for "extraordinary achievement in an aerial flight" during the stratosphere flight last summer at Rapid City, S. Dak.

Capt. Orvil Anderson, the third member of the balloon flight crew, is to receive the flying cross at his home field, Kelly Field, Tex., at a later date.

Missing 'Empress' Still Holds Key to 'Eden's' Tragic Secret

BARONESS De WAGNER,



Associated Press Photos.

DR. FRIEDERICH RITTER,

Los Angeles, Dec. 6 (AP).—The mysteriously missing "empress" of Charles Island still holds the key to solution of the multiple tragedy of that old buccaneer haunt, the Galapagos Archipelago.

Investigations there by Capt. G. Allan Hancock, heading a Smithsonian Institution expedition, showed tonight death in the bizarre drama had taken four persons from the equatorial "Eden."

Two mummified bodies found 19 days ago on the bleak volcanic beach of waterless Marchena Island, 100 miles north of Charles, were identified by Capt. Hancock as those of Alfred Rudolph Lorenz, of Paris and Charles Island, and Trygve Nuggrud, Norwegian navigator, of Wreck Bay, Chatham Island.

Boy's Body Missing.

A third victim, whose body has not been recovered, was a Negro boy who sailed away from Charles Isle with Nuggrud and Lorenz.

The fourth was Dr. Frederich Ritter, German nudist exile, philosopher and raw food faddist, whose death by a stroke 14 days ago in his Charles Island home was believed by Capt. Hancock to have been brought about by the mental turmoil over mysterious disclosures Ritter had expected to make to the patron of science.

Most mysterious of all, Capt. Hancock found, was the disappearance of the Baroness Eloise Bonsquet de Wagener, of Vienna and Paris, and her companion, Robert Philipson, from Charles Island July 5.

This was soon after she allegedly had driven from the island, without provisions and water, Lorenz, whom she had brought to the island with Philipson three years ago in a strange flight from civilization.

Told Him Her Troubles.

W. Charles Swett, navigator and explorer, who is with Capt. Hancock as chief officer of the exploration cruiser Velero 3d, was perhaps the closest confidant in the civilized world of this strange baroness.

She poured her troubles into Swett's ears on his annual visits at her unusual abode beneath the high cliff which buccaneers of old had used as a watch tower.

Swett said that both Lorenz and Philipson came from her gown shop in Paris, when she fled to the lonely isle. Lorenz, said Swett, appeared to be her favorite. He was older than Philipson, and seemed to worship the strange baroness.

Last January, when Swett last saw the trio alive, a change had occurred. Philipson seemed to be master of the household. Lorenz was ill, apparently suffering from tuberculosis. He seemed morose.

It was in July, the scientists now have learned from the five remaining inhabitants on the island, that the baroness drove Lorenz away, refusing him food and water, and he embarked in a small boat with Nuggrud and the boy, bound for Chatham Island some 50 miles away, in hopes of gaining transportation to Quayquil, Ecuador, 500 miles to the eastward.

A few days after this the German family of Charles Whittman, also known as Wittmer, who lived close to the baroness, found that she and Philipson had left. No trace of the means of their departure was found.

Death sealed the lips of Dr. Ritter, who had written to Capt. Hancock that he had grave news about the baroness, which the patron of science had hoped might clear up the whole case.

Oil Production Code Claimed Constitutional

(Associated Press.)

A voluminous brief contending that the national industrial recovery act, as it applies to oil production, is constitutional was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by the Department of Justice.

The action was taken in preparation for arguments next week on two cases from the East Texas oil field.

The Government supported the decision of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, which sustained the oil section of the recovery act and executive orders issued by President Roosevelt and Secretary Ickes.

Sees No Violation.

The brief asserted the production-control provisions of the petroleum code were within the commerce powers of Congress and did not violate the due process clause of the Constitution and that the production-control provisions of the petroleum code are authorized by the recovery act.

The cases were brought by the Amazon Petroleum Corporation and the Panama Refining Co.

Secretary Ickes said yesterday officials of several oil States were demanding regulation of oil through interstate compacts as a disguise to cover a desire to get away from "any control at all."

Smells Red Herring.

He was asked at his press conference what he thought of a dispute on the interstate compact plan which broke out recently at a meeting at Ponca City, Okla., of Governors-elect Allred and Marland, of Texas and Oklahoma, Gov. Landon, of Kansas, and officials of a number of additional oil States.

"I am frank to say I do not believe Governors think they can get together on oil successfully," Ickes added. "There is a red herring being drawn across the trail for certain ulterior purposes.

Motor Coach Strike Is Ended in Chicago

Chicago, Dec. 6 (AP).—The extended strike of motor coach employes that was blamed for two deaths, injury to scores and considerable property damage ended today.

Announcement was made that negotiations had brought peace to end the walkout started on August 16. Details of the settlement were not made public, but it was indicated that both sides were satisfied.

Dutch Act Against Koster.

Amsterdam, Netherlands, Dec. 6 (AP).—Capt. Paul Koster, whose name figured in the United States Senate arms inquiry at Washington last summer, was removed today from the roll of honorary membership by the Dutch Navy League.

18-Months' Research In Campbell's Racer

London, Dec. 6 (AP).—Eighteen months of elaborate research and hard work have gone into the rebuilding of his veteran car, the Bluebird, for his next assault at Daytona Beach in February on his own world auto speed mark of 272.108 miles an hour, Sir Malcolm Campbell said today.

"We have every reason to believe she will be quite a bit faster," he continued. "After all, we'll need to clip only one second off the present time of 13.023 seconds for the mile in order to attain 300 miles an hour."

Massachusetts Director Of Hospital Is Missing

Boston, Dec. 6 (AP).—Dr. George H. Bigelow, 44, director of the Massachusetts General Hospital, the State police announced tonight, has been missing since early Monday morning. Capt. Michael Barrett, of the State police, said relatives feared he might be the victim of amnesia.

Dictatorship Drive Launched in Spain

Bloc Aims Ultimately to Restore Monarchy.

Madrid, Dec. 6 (AP).—A formidable drive to end the second Spanish republic and put in its stead a dictatorship modeled after Benito Mussolini's "corporative state," with a view to eventual restoration of the monarchy, was launched tonight.

Jose Calvo Sotelo, minister of finance under former King Alfonso XIII, proclaimed the formation of his "National bloc" intended to unite Monarchists and Rightists, and demanded the creation of a "cooperative state" under a centralized mandate.

The manifesto called on Spaniards to "end disorganization and class conflict" through the formation of a powerful centralized state supported and defended by the army.

Ballet Appears In a Burlesque Of Our Foibles

New Art Makes Its Bow, a Brain Child of 2 College Boys.

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 6.—The American ballet made its formal, but not too formal, bow to the American public tonight in the Avery Memorial Auditorium. In successive scenes of plastic grace, this world premiere demonstrated convincingly that a new medium has been developed through which to interpret the American scene. Set firmly within the sculptured round of a classic art, here, nevertheless, is something glittering with a color of its own, zestful and fresh as the flash of a child's eye.

The American ballet is not merely a group of trained American dancers. It is not an accessory to opera. It is not a rhythmic precision-machine like the Roxyettes. As applied to the United States it is a wholly new institution, tradition guided, to be sure, but with a future as important and free as that of the stage itself. No one in the theater tonight could fail to be impressed with the revelation of a completely articulated art form capable of weaving a vital and original pattern from the shuttle of contemporary America.

Of the four ballets presented, three were offered for the first time anywhere. The "Mozartiana," which George Balanchine contrived out of music by Mozart and Tschaikowsky, was given in Paris last year. But "Alma Mater," "Transcendence" and "Serenade" are fresh evocations. In the case of "Alma Mater," indeed, music, book, sets, costume and treatment are so new as to be in the very mood of the future.

Burlesque on College Life.

"Alma Mater" will make the most direct appeal to the public. It is a burlesque, the first of burlesque ballets, on college life as the wishful freshman sees it. The book, by Edward M. M. Warburg, one of the directors of the ballet school and a Harvard man, gives us a delirious eyeful at Yale and is naturally written in just a spirit of good, mean fun. John Held, jr., has played around with some impishly Heldian sets and costumes, tweed tutus and panties for the cuties, and coonskin coats and silly sweaters for the rah-rah boys.

The lively music is by Kay Smith, and the composer has managed to thumb a nose and stick out a tongue at every sacred college melody which echoes through the score. Indeed, irreverence is the middle name of the entire production, as a campus Salvation Army lassie demonstrates when she sheds her regulation costume by means of a zipper and does an Oh-My dance in the more-or-less buff.

The fantasy gallops instantly into a farcical phantasmagoria. Yale has apparently just won a game and the dumb but handsome half back hero is lifted high on the shoulders of his cock-eyed college mates. Flappers flap around for autographs. A photographer snaps our hero draped against the Yale fence. The snake dance zig-zags to the goal posts which are plucked from their sockets. Boola, boola. Bam, bam, bam!

Aha, the Villain—

But, ha, what have we here? The villain, keen, corrupt and coonskin-coated, dashes upon the stage with the beautiful but dim-wit heroine, both on a bicycle built for two. One blink of those mascaraed orbs and the half back is knocked for a loop. The villain, curse him, again knocks our hero for a whole row of loops, while he is picking daisies for his sweetie.

Dreamland, a nightmare of the Rover Boys at college and the girls of Standish Hall. Our hero hesitates between becoming Queen of the May or getting married, but fortunately chooses the altar. A wedding march which is strangely like the football victory song. Then, behold, our pantied bride! Children, dozens of them, each with a college letter on his sweater, immediately spring from the union and destroy their dream papa.

Comes the dawn. A janitor with a Phi Beta Kappa key sweeps up the pieces. Our hero has it out with ye villain in a rotogravure forest. Bang, bang! So let's all get photographed for the brown sheets. Whoops! A rain squall. There goes that photographer fella, off to Heaven on his storm unbrella. Let's hope he dies for dear, old Yale.

You get the pattern? Done with a rhythmic dash and the gorgeous postures of the classic ballet, the effect is a bit bewildering, but always witty. It is youth itself making faces at itself. Provocative and saucy, irresistible in its humor, it is bound to be talked about from here to there.

In Contrasting Mood.

"Transcendence" is in a completely contrasting mood, dramatic and macabre. The title refers to the period of Liszt and Paganini, when technique and virtuosity were transcendent, when living and dying themselves were the culmination of technique and virtuosity. The dresses and decoration, strange and even sinister, are the conception of Franklin Watkins, Philadelphia, who, two years ago, won the Carnegie International Award with his picture, "Suicide in Costume."

The "Serenade" has no literary background and is pure ballet, depending for its dramatic effects entirely on the Tschaikowsky music orchestrated by the modernist, George Antheil. Scenery and costumes are by William Oakie who was associated with the staging of "Continental Varieties."

The American Ballet and this performance are first fruits of dormitory chats several years ago between Edward Warburg, son of Felix Warburg and Lincoln Kirstein, of Boston, when they were college undergraduates at Harvard. They felt that the ballet is a natural union of all the arts and regretted that the United States had no school of its own.

A year and a half ago they were able to put their idea into practice. They persuaded George Balanchine, perhaps the greatest living master of the Russian ballet and his associate, Vladimir Dimitriew, to come to this country and since then a well-equipped school, run by these four has been operating at Fifty-ninth street and Madison avenue in New York.

Routine Is Rigorous.

There, every week day, some 70 pupils go through the rigorous training necessary to fit them for the ballet. Gazing into the mirrored walls, they correct their steps or work with rosined toes against the wall braces. Balanchine is enthusiastic about these lithe American girls, and boys, too. He thinks they are "better built" than the youngsters of other nations and, while they may be slower to yield themselves to discipline, they are quicker to learn and eager beyond measure. Balanchine, of course, is responsible for all the choreographic work,, and the American ballet is performed by 24 of the more advanced pupils in the school.

Warburg and Kirstein have large ideas for their school as well as for the ballet. Some day they expect a foundation which will give them an institution where children of nine can be taken for a complete education directed, of course, at the formal dance. They believe that the idea of a native ballet will click in this country, and that as time goes on the public awareness of their self-appointed mission will be keener.

They hope to do their ballets all over the East, and next Spring they plan to open a second school at Hollywood. They already have their heads together over a ballet of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," than which, certainly, nothing could be more native. It will be longer than any of the present offerings, occupying fully two-thirds of an evening, and will have speaking parts. They also are experimenting with themes from colonial New England, the pioneers in Kentucky, the Dutch in Pennsylvania, and the aboriginal Indians.

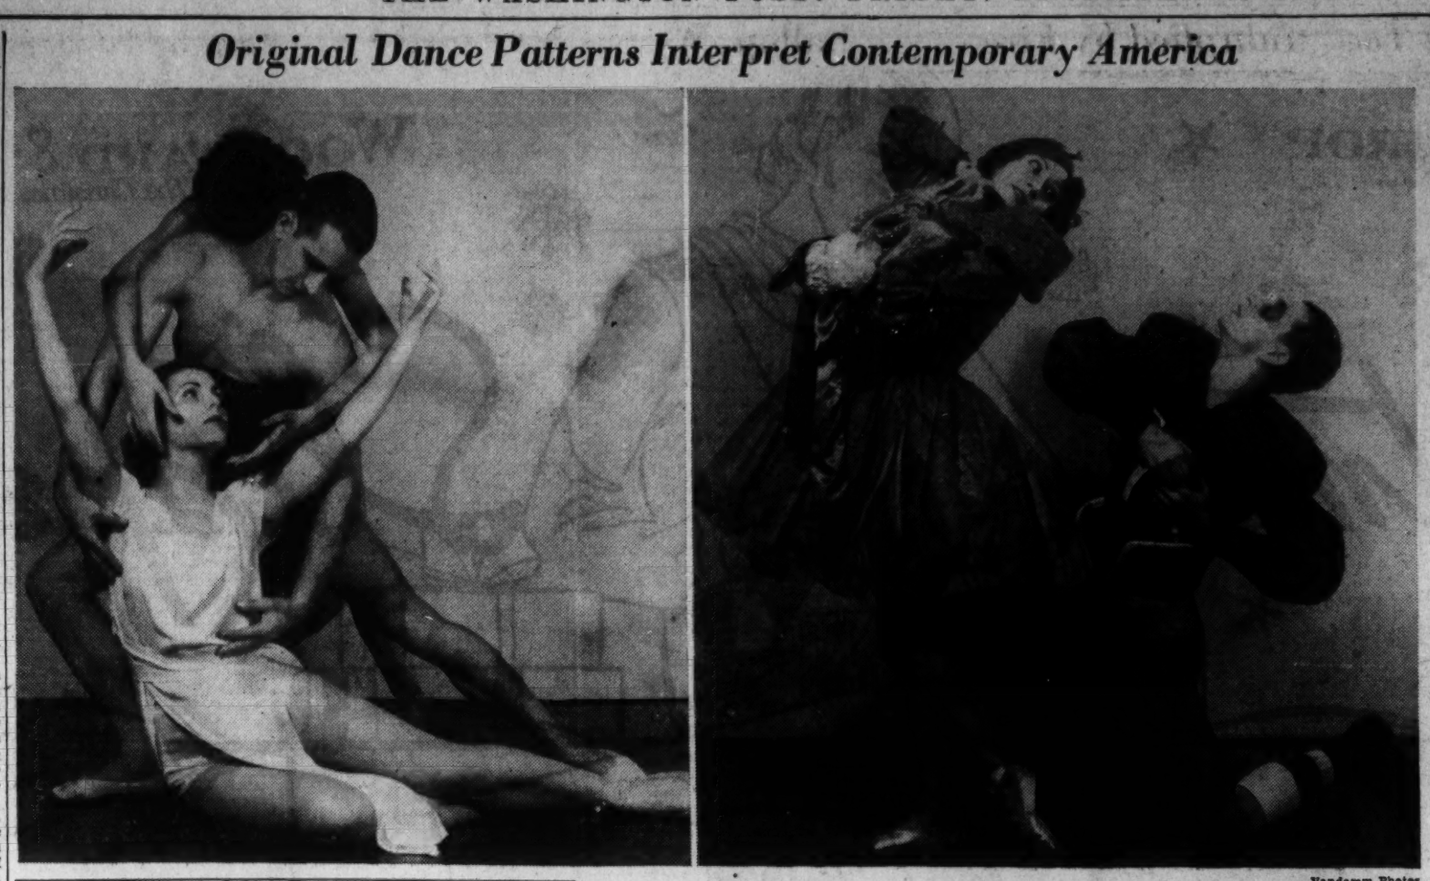
Original Dance Patterns Interpret Contemporary America



Vandamm Photos.

American ballet made its formal—and informal—debut last night at Hartford, Conn. Ballet in its purest form is expressed in "Serenada," left, offered by Heide Vosseller, Elena De Martinez and Charles Laskey. "Alma Mater," right, attracted much attention and is said to be the first burlesque of ballets.

Credit for this first American ballet goes to George Balanchine, left, who directed the choreography, and Edward M. M. Warburg, director general of the producing company. The latter conceived the ideas for the ballet, with Lincoln Kirstein.

Garment Code Leaders Ousted

Division on Cut in Hours and Wage Increase Is Blamed.

The National Industrial Recovery Board last night removed all directors and officers of the International Association of Garment Manufacturers from the Cotton Garment Code Authority.

Action was taken, it was said, because of "conflicting responsibilities" over enforcement of a recent code amendment to shorten hours and increase wages.

The NRA said that 11 of the 32 members and alternates on the code authority would be affected, according to their records. The board also ordered that property of the code authority be separated immediately and kept separate in the future from that of the association.

Representatives are to be chosen as soon as possible to replace those ousted. Meanwhile, the code authority will cease to function and its affairs will be taken over by the general NRA Code Authority.

Commodity Prices Up Slightly at Wholesale

A slight increase in wholesale commodity prices the week ended December 1, was reported yesterday by the Labor Department.

The department's index, with 100 representing the 1926 average, advanced to 76.5, compared with 76.3 the previous week and 70.7 the corresponding week a year ago.

Street Preaching Program Adopted By Church Council

Dayton, Ohio, Dec. 6 (AP).—A proposal for a national mission to reach "unchurched" groups through daily street preaching was approved today by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

The churchmen settled a dispute over a liquor resolution before it reached the convention floor, and unanimously reaffirmed their stand as "unalterably opposed to the liquor traffic."

Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, president of St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church South, of St. Louis, was unanimously elected president as the three-day convention ended.

The national preaching mission plan calls for tours of 25 great metropolitan centers throughout the Nation in 10 weeks. A team of 10 to 12 speakers will be used in each city. Prominent ministers in the United States will be asked to participate.

The fight for retention of the council's "tooth and nail" opposition to liquor was led by Bishop James Cannon, jr.

Evidence Shows Kennamer Link

Jurist's Son Believed Alone in Oklahoma Slaying.

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 6 (AP).—Phil Kennamer, 19-year-old son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, alone was implicated in the slaying of John Gorrell, 23, on the basis of evidence gathered thus far, County Attorney Holly Anderson said tonight.

Anderson said he was convinced the extortion note which has been mentioned often in connection with the fatal shooting of the dental student Thanksgiving night actually exists.

"It was a threat to do harm to a member of the family of Homer Wilcox, oil man. The letter did not mention his daughter, Virginia, by name. It was an extortion letter, and not one threatening a kidnaping."

N. Y. to Return Ivan Poderjay From Austria

Presses Tufverson Inquiry After Vienna Agrees to Give Prisoner Up.

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—Finally assured of an opportunity to question Ivan Poderjay, police attacked with newed vigor tonight the mysterious disappearance of his bride, Agnes C. Tufverson, former New York and Detroit corporation attorney.

After holding the Yugoslav for six months, the Austrian government granted the United States' request for Poderjay's extradition to face trial in New York on bigamy charges. He was named in an indictment alleging he already was married when he wed the 43-year-old woman on December 16, 1933, a few days before she was lost from sight.

The bulging dossier containing the record of the widespread search for Miss Tufverson was examined in the missing persons bureau while the district attorney's office considered the details of bringing Poderjay back to this country.

Will Return Poderjay.

The Austrian government, agreeing to Poderjay's surrender, arranged for police to turn over the prisoner to German authorities at the border for transportation to Hamburg, where New York detectives will take him in charge.

Capt. John G. Stein, head of the missing persons bureau, said he would assign Detective Jacob von Weisenstein to the task of returning Poderjay. Von Weisenstein was assigned to the Tufverson case when she was first reported missing, in June, 1934, and has worked on it continuously since then.

The search led virtually around the world, throughout the Eastern Seaboard, Canada, Europe, India and Africa. For more than three months no new clew has been unearthed, Capt. Stein disclosed, but police work has been unremitting.

Miss Tufverson, after resigning a highly paid position with a utility holding corporation, was married to Poderjay at the Little Church Around the Corner, returned to her Gramercy Park apartment with him, remained there a few days and disappeared.

Honeymoon Canceled.

A contemplated honeymoon trip to Europe had been canceled. A quarrel at the pier led them to abandon their plans, Poderjay told Vienna police, but New York detectives learned he had not reserved accommodations on the boat on which his bride told friends they would sail.

A few days later Poderjay left for Europe alone. Police showed great interest in the quantity of baggage taken with him, subsequently examined his cabin carefully for bloodstains and other evidence, but found nothing.

On his return to Austria, Poderjay was met by Mlle. Suzanne Ferrand, blonde Frenchwoman, whom he allegedly had married in England before wedding Miss Tufverson here. It is this purported record that supplied the basis for the New York bigamy indictment.

U. S. Charges Japan Ruined Parley

firm, it was neither harsh nor blunt. The speech was made only after the American delegates at London had spent a week in a futile effort to persuade the Japanese to postpone denunciation of the Washington Treaty until next year.

In justifying this Government's insistence on continuance of the 5-5-3 ratio system of the Washington and London treaties, Mr. Davis distinguished between the terms "equality of security" and "equality of armaments." At the Washington conference, he asserted, it was recognized that agreement could not be reached "through an academic discussion of what each country considered its needs to be or what it required to satisfy national pride"—the basis of Japan's present demand.

A satisfactory solution of the problem was reached by adoption of the principle of "equality of security," Mr. Davis asserted, pointing out that the benefit which the sea powers obtained for foregoing their sovereign rights to maintain such navies as each saw fit was the adoption of a series of agreements designed "to remove the causes and the incentive for aggression by establishing a collective system for cooperation among the nations concerned in promoting and maintaining conditions of peace in the Pacific and Far East."

Set Up an Equilibrium.

"These agreements," he recalled, "established an equilibrium of political and economic rights and made possible naval limitation on the basis of essential equality and security."

He pointed out that at the Washington conference no nation "attempted to impose its will on the others" and that the United States voluntarily relinquished naval tonnage actually under construction "which would have given her naval primacy."

The United States does not now seek to impose its will on other nations, he continued, asserting that his Government "does not contend that any power should against its will enter into or renew a treaty the provisions of which it does not consider advantageous to itself or beneficial to the world in general."

"It would, however, greatly regret and regard as most unfortunate the destruction of this system of naval limitation which has proved generally beneficial and which has not jeopardized the security of any nation. We do not question, in fact we affirm, the inherent right of any and every power to equality of security."

None of the five sea powers, including Japan, signing the 1922 treaty, Mr. Davis asserted, "could have accepted and agreed to the provisions of that treaty had it felt that its national security was thereby menaced or impaired." He added that "any basic alteration in this system must of necessity alter the security thus established."

The Fundamental Issue.

Pointing out that the fundamental issue at London was whether the equilibrium established by the Washington treaties should be continued or upset, Mr. Davis asserted "the American Government stands for continuance." He said the only alternative so far offered of basing new agreements on a principle of equality in naval armaments "would not give equality of security."

Under instructions from the President, he said, he had proposed "a substantial all-around reduction in naval armaments, to be effected in such a way as not to alter the relative strengths or to jeopardize the security of the participating nations, as established by these treaties."

Failing agreement on any reduction, he explained, he had made known his Government was prepared "to abide by the Washington treaty and to renew the London treaty with only such modifications in detail as circumstances require and as meet the whole-hearted support of the other parties thereto."

"We believe that only by maintenance of the system of equality of security, with proportionate reductions downward of naval strength, if possible, can there be maintained the substantial foundation for security and peace which has thus for been laid," the American spokesman asserted.

Tokyo to Be Sounded On New Naval Plan

London, Dec. 6 (AP).—Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, today discussed the American suggestion that Japanese denunciation of the Washington Naval Treaty be deferred, with Tsuneo Matsudaira, Nippon's ambassador to London, Matsudaira agreed to ask Tokyo whether it was possible to propose some new plan for naval limitation, complete with tonnage figures.

Heretofore the Japanese have given no figures in connection with their original demands that any new treaty should allow Japan naval equality and limit tonnage on the global, or total, basis.

Japanese circles, however, were doubtful that Tokyo would consent, for the Japanese Government has opposed giving any figures until the other two powers consent to Japan's naval equality.

The British continued to maintain there was still some hope for agreement, although admitting the outlook was no brighter, and the Americans therefore hesitating to take any step toward concluding the conversations.

Ballou Weighs Offer to Head St. Lawrence U.

Head of D. C. Schools Declines to Comment on College Bid.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, long the superintendent of District public schools, is pondering an offer to become president of St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., it was learned yesterday.

The offer, it is understood, first was made to Dr. Ballou last spring, and has been renewed since then. Ballou yesterday declined to comment.

St. Lawrence University now is headed by the Rev. Dr. Richard E. Sykes. However, inasmuch as he is more than 70 years old, the school trustees have been looking around for somebody to succeed him.

St. Lawrence, a coeducational institution, is located near the Canadian border, and has a student body of between 3,000 and 4,000. It is on the select accredited list of the Association of American Universities.

From 1868 to 1910 the school was directed by the New York State Universalist Church. Now it is in charge of a private corporation.

Dr. Ballou yesterday returned from Boston, Mass., where he attended the annual convention of the national board of trustees of the Universalist Church.

New Cars Given Private Preview

Hudson and Terraplane Are Shown to Dealers.

The 1935 Hudson and Terraplane automobiles were previewed here yesterday by distributors and dealers of Hudson Motor Car Co. from throughout this section of the country.

Washington was chosen as one of 30 key cities in the United States for the staging of these previews, according to word from Detroit.

Closely concealed from public view, the cars, which will not be publicly presented until later in the year, arrived in Washington yesterday from Detroit.

A complete stage with lights, sound equipment and other properties that would do justice to a big New York show, were brought here for the showing.

Distributors and dealers from Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia attended the preview. They were the guests of Oscar Coolican, head of the Packard Washington Motor Car Co., distributing organization here for Hudson Motor Car Co.

Telephone Refund Plan Is Nearing Completion

Approval of detailed rules and regulations governing refunding of $1,000,000 collected from telephone users by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. since October, 1932, is expected to be given early next week, it was said yesterday.

The rules and regulations proposed by the company were the subject of another conference between company officers, the Public Utilities Commission and the people's counsel, William A. Roberts. Study of the proposed rules is expected to be completed tomorrow.

assent to the dispatch of an international army to keep the peace in the Saar during the period of the plebiscite, at which the Saar will vote whether to rejoin Germany, join France or remain under the league.

Great Britain's initiative in proposing the army led the league to believe that there would be no difficulty in organizing it. It was expected that Britain, Italy and Belgium would furnish the largest contingents for the force, which under tentative plans would number 5,000 men.

The German consent to the plan, delivered to the league today, asked only that the force be limited in number and that it remain in the Saar only during the plebiscite period.

Slav Troops Cross Hungarian Border

Yugoslavia has disowned them and forced them to seek homes in Hungary, they have nowhere to go, and are charges upon the state.

Fourteen train coaches with 400 embittered, desperate Hungarians arrived at Szeged from Belgrade during the day. They all told tales of being uprooted on 24 hours' notice and forced to hasten over the border on penalty of arrest and forcible deportation.

The Yugoslav government persisted in denials of a mass deportation movement, declaring the reports "false and malicious," but the eyewitness tales of the persons deported verified the developments. At Belgrade, however, it was explained that when passport visas or labor permits for Hungarians resident in Yugoslavia expire, they are not being renewed, hence the possessors can not remain.

The action followed Yugoslavia's charge in Geneva that Hungary was guilty of complicity in the assassintion of King Alexander I, at Marseille on October 9. Bitter debate before the special session of the league council in Geneva is expected shortly, when Hungary will answer Yugoslavia's charges.

Premier Julius Goemboes called in Waldimar Alt, Hungarian minister to Yugoslavia, for a full report on the anti-Hungarian movement there, and observers freely predicted an open break in diplomatic relations.

A number of youths who had already served in the Yugoslav army were among those forced to flee.

One woman, expelled with three children, said she had not been allowed to collect a fourth from another town.

Liquor Dealers Press Program Of Temperance

Adopt '8-Point Plan' to Restrict Sales to 'Exclusive' Stores.

Resolutions designed to promote temperance in the District were approved yesterday by the District of Columbia Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association and will be submitted to a subcommittee of the Congressional District Committee for action.

The resolutions, described as an "eight-point plan," would limit sale of package liquor to exclusive liquor stores and forbid sale of liquor by stores handling other commodities. They provide that all stores handling liquor pay full license fees running a year from date of issuance.

They would prevent opening of new liquor stores within 750 feet of those in existence and call for the limitation of package liquor stores to 200. There are now 350 stores handling liquor here. The resolutions further demand that drug stores be permitted to sell bonded whisky on prescription only.

They ask that members of the association retain the privilege of buying liquor wares outside the District's jurisdiction. One resolution sets hours of business at from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. from Monday to Friday, inclusive, and from 8 a. m. to midnight on Saturdays. Stores are now open between 8 a. m. and midnight all days except Sunday.

The eighth resolution, described as a very important one, requires that all liquor brought by consumers into the District from other jurisdictions bear the same tax that the retailer pays the District.

It was explained that large revenues are being lost to the District through failure to tax local consumers purchasing large amounts of liquor at wholesale prices in other jurisdictions. Liquor thus purchased has no District tax nor does the consumer pay any.

Throat Malady Eases, Gaines Slightly Better

Lexington, Va., Dec. 6 (AP).—Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of Washington and Lee University, was said to be a "trifle better" tonight by attending physicians. He spent a fairly comfortable day.

Today's change was the first for the better since Sunday, when he was stricken with a severe septic throat.

Provocative.

When the Yugoslav government recently protested at Geneva regarding the alleged protection given to terrorist bands by Hungary, there were well-founded suspicions that the authorities at Belgrade had ulterior objectives in mind.

Partly this was due to the fact that Yugoslavia levelled no charges at Italy, although it is said that similar organizations have also been traced to that country. And partly suspicion was due to the fact that the other members of the Little Entente joined the Yugoslav protest in a way which made it appear that what they really fear is rectification of the present Hungarian frontiers.

These suspicions are now strengthened by the exceedingly provocative action of the Belgrade government in expelling thousands of Hungarian nationals from Yugoslavia. It is announced that the reason for this cruel and arbitrary action is unwillingness to have the presence of Hungarians in Yugoslavia cited as a reason for the return of any of that country's territory to Hungarian control.

A nervous and excitable attitude in Yugoslavia as a result of the assassination of King Alexander was to be expected. But nothing in that tragedy in any way justifies the very high-handed attitude which the Belgrade government is now taking toward a very proud and sensitive neighbor. This action, moreover, is far more likely to strengthen Hungarian claims to treaty revision than to eliminate the impressive arguments upon which they are based. Adoption of such a medieval policy as mass expulsion, in particular, will be taken to indicate a very uneasy conscience in Belgrade.

Stupid, To Say The Least.

The Russian Government has committed a major blunder—considerations of humanity entirely aside—by the mass execution of more than three-score persons suspected of complicity in the Kiroff assassination. For the only conclusion which objective observers can reach from such unbridled terrorism is that the Soviet regime is in reality far weaker in the esteem of the people than should be the case after its long tenure of power.

It is almost inconceivable that convincing proof against these suspects was available to the so-called "courts." Indeed no attempt to prove the guilt of the victims has as yet been made public by the government. But whether they were really implicated in the recent assassination or not is immaterial to the impression which these executions arouse.

If they were actually guilty, then Russia must be honeycombed with malcontents, willing to risk everything to overthrow the present regime. If they were not guilty, then the Soviet government confesses itself in such deadly fear of overthrow that it will not stop at wholesale murder in order to sustain a precarious grip on power.

No Single Panacea.

As Washington's toll of traffic fatalities approaches a new high record, the demand for remedial measures intensifies. Numerous safety plans have been offered. In fact, several programs designed to prevent accidents have been carried out, with unsatisfactory results. As the season of exceptional traffic hazards begins, about the only thing certain is that no single panacea offers much hope of making our streets safer.

On one hand, a group of civic leaders, meeting with People's Counsel Roberts, has decided that Washington ought to have a subway transportation system as soon as it can be planned and constructed. At the other extreme, Maj. Brown, superintendent of police, talks of curbing the speed of street cars. Between these viewpoints are numerous well-meaning suggestions for cutting down the traffic accident rate.

No doubt Washington will have to give serious consideration to the subway proposal in the near future. If the city's growth continues at the rate of the last few years, and if Government structures continue to be concentrated within a relatively small area, traffic congestion will soon be well-nigh intolerable. That aspect of the problem must not, however, divert attention from the acute need for immediate safety measures.

The "Voice of Safety" has not prevented a sharp rise in traffic deaths. Efforts of the committee of 100 observers evidently have not reached the heart of the problem. Some citizens believe that the return of legalized liquor is primarily responsible for the increased traffic hazards. But the statistics do not sustain this deduction. In view of the fact that it is pedestrians who are killed in about three-fourths of the fatal mishaps on Washington's streets, failure of the authorities to regulate foot traffic at intersections is probably a large factor in our disgraceful record. Still that is only one phase of an extremely broad problem.

While it is idle to seek a single panacea, it would be absurd to assume that nothing can be done to afford greater protection to the people who traverse our streets. Instead of worrying about the speed of street cars, the authorities ought to single out all the major causes of these increasing fatalities, publicize them without fear or favor, and then go forward with a relentless safety campaign on the front thus established.

Japan Against The World.

A sharp line of cleavage between Japanese policy and the interests of the organized world community was drawn by Ambassador Davis in his address to the American Correspondents' Association in London. Japan has apparently decided to pursue her own course, regardless of international opinion. Statesmen at Tokyo seem to think that only Japanese interests are affected. But Mr. Davis, speaking authoritatively for the United States, reminds them that they are taking a road which leads "to conditions of insecurity, international suspicion and costly competition, with no real advantage to any nation."

In some quarters Ambassador Davis' candid remarks may be interpreted as a threat. Rather they are an open and honest analysis of the disquieting situation which Japanese repudiation of the existing naval treaties would force upon the world. Failure of the negotiations at London can not be regarded as an isolated incident. It is intimately linked to Japan's policy in the Far East. One can not possibly understand the attitude taken at London unless it is viewed against the background of the Manchurian conquest and the aggressive commercial policy which this imperialist expansion has intensified.

Mr. Davis points out that "the essence of the Washington Treaty system was equality of security under conditions of cooperation." Tokyo's present demand goes far beyond that objective. In reality Japan is seeking political superiority throughout Asia, which would further accentuate her commercial domination of the Far East. Considering Japan's huge army, naval parity would make that country easily the strongest military power. Not parity, but political, commercial and military supremacy, in the Orient at least, is obviously the objective.

All that has been accomplished through international cooperation since the war is jeopardized by this reversion to the aggrandizement tactics of a former age. Of course, no one can tell what specific course Japan will take once she has cut loose from the naval treaties. Dispatches from Tokyo report unrest because of the enormous military expenditures while relief is neglected. But recent events clearly foreshadow increasing tension in the Pacific and progressive isolation of Japan from the world community of nations.

This is not merely a disagreement between the United States and Japan over naval ratios. The Tokyo policy runs counter to the developing trend of international political thought. Statesmen of the Occident have no reasonable alternative to opposing this policy as a throwback to the disastrous set-up of the imperialistic era. Until this is recognized in Japan, widespread international distrust and menacing displays of force would seem to be inevitable.

An Appeal To Reason.

In his address before the National Association of Manufacturers, Donald R. Richberg again sought to show that there are no insurmountable difficulties in the way of effective cooperation between business and government, if the former is prepared to recognize that we are no longer living in the nineteenth century. To the executive director of the National Emergency Council the case for some measure of governmental control over organized industry is indisputable. At the same time he objects to efforts to impose rigid State control upon industry to the destruction of individual initiative. The NRA, therefore, is expected to provide a basis for cooperative activity, under political supervision, designed to prevent exploitation of any class of citizens.

Mr. Richberg's political acumen and his philosophical approach to the problems that confront the NRA, make him an especially persuasive expounder of the principles underlying the recovery program. He frankly admits, for instance, that neither business nor government has made a very admirable record so far in carrying out this experiment in industrial control. This ability to see both sides of a controversy does more to relieve tension and assuage bitterness than either impassioned defense or violent attacks upon critics of the NRA record. Asserting that business is not yet adequately organized for collective bargaining and self-discipline Mr. Richberg concedes that part of the trouble is due to the "intermittent and uncertain" enforcement of the antitrust laws. The Government, too, he says, has been unable to avoid the bureaucracy and red tape which have involved NRA officials in a mass of intricate rules and regulations.

The speeches which Mr. Richberg is making do more than dissipate ill-will. They also show why an extension of political control over private industry has become unavoidable as a result of the growing concentration of wealth and the vast powers that have come to be vested in individuals.

At one point in this last address, however, Mr. Richberg has laid himself open to a charge of unfairness. It is when he reproaches the manufacturers for an alleged lack of enterprise and timid insistence upon certainty as to governmental policies before making commitments. Undoubtedly, as he says, business would stagnate if nobody were willing to take risks. But the risks undertaken when political conditions are relatively stable are by no means so formidable as those that must be assumed at the present time.

The way to revive private enterprise lies in removal of the obstructions that make risk-taking more than ordinarily hazardous, and Mr. Richberg's intimation that the manufacturers are victims of undue fears seems somewhat disingenuous. That unjustified attack may perhaps be explained as a concession to political expediency, and pardoned in view of the clarity and essential fairness of his general exposition.

A Boomerang.

Those who hope that effective control of the international traffic in arms will result from the investigations of the Nye Committee are being increasingly perturbed by the methods adopted in pursuing that inquiry. Sensational revelations are preferred to a systematic and impartial presentation of facts. Like so many Senatorial investigations, the main purpose seems lost to sight in an effort to discredit witnesses and to cast aspersions upon the motives of those who have had any dealings with the industry. Such practices are all too likely to arouse sympathy for the victims of prosecuting zeal and damage the cause which should be the chief concern of the investigators.

The latest indiscretion of the committee—to use no harsher word—has proved an obvious boomerang. Senator Nye's endeavor to place responsibility for American failure to ratify the 1925 arms agreement upon the shoulders of former President Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce, has brought a dignified but crushing reply. First, Mr. Hoover states briefly the pertinent facts which show the baselessness of the charges.

His offense consisted in conferring with the munitions manufacturers with the full knowledge of the State Department, whatever Mr. Raushenbusch may know or not know on the subject. Willingness to obtain the opinions of those affected by proposed regulations was in those days not regarded as a crime, whatever views may now be held of such action. In this case the manufacturers wished merely to obtain recognition of the distinction between sporting goods and instruments of war, and did not in any way attempt to block the plan to control sales of munitions.

What was the Senate doing at this time and later, when President Coolidge and afterwards President Hoover repeatedly urged ratification of the Geneva agreement? Mr. Hoover properly asks that question and the reply is that the Senate was entirely indifferent to the fate of the treaty as well as deaf to executive appeals and to repeated messages from Secretary Kellogg and Secretary Stimson urging speedy action. Senator Nye was in office during these years, among others who are now vociferous critics of the trade in arms, but there is no indication that he brought any effective pressure to bear upon any of his colleagues.

Instead of trying to place the blame for inaction upon the machinations of the manufacturers of arms, witch-burning Senators would do well to explain why they blocked this treaty for nine years, and only approved it last June in a form which has made ratification by the President impossible.

A More Important Field.

Few situations are more pathetic than that of the incompetent veteran who has been swindled of his estate by dishonest guardians. For several years the Government has been trying to throw greater safeguards around the former soldiers who are unable to help themselves. But abuses brought to light by the special House subcommittee on veterans' legislation indicate there is much yet to be done.

Comparatively little thought seems to have been given to the welfare of the thousands of insane veterans who are unable to manage their own affairs. The activities of veterans' organizations have sometimes seemed to be too largely directed toward securing more liberal allowances and bonus prepayment for those able to fight their own battle. The plight of disabled men who have not been adequately cared for, the distress of the shell-shocked and the mental cripples, offers a far more important field.

Veterans' Administrator Hines has warned the House subcommittee against encroachment upon the prerogatives of the State probate courts. He properly points out that the problem of safeguarding the rights of incompetents is a difficult one for the Federal Government. It appears, however, that much can be done to stop this despicable racketeering at the expense of insane veterans, without challenging the jurisdiction of the States.

If The China Lasts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

It is reported that $9,000 worth of china has been purchased for the White House, paid for, of course, with taxpayers' money, as to which there should be no criticism, as it may be assumed that it was needed. This china is the property of the American people, and it may be assumed it will remain in the White House for use of the successors of the Roosevelts. There is, however, an incident in connection with the matter that is the subject of legitimate comment.

The press reports that Mr. Roosevelt picked the design for the china, and, while it may be criticized on the score of artistic taste, no other objection can be made to the design. Mrs. Roosevelt, however, disclosed in her press conference that she had suggested that the three small roses of the ancient Dutch Roosevelt coat-of-arms be used for the design. It may well be asked if the First Lady had in mind the eventual establishment of a Roosevelt dynasty to govern these United States.

It is customary for kings, emperors and dictators to have their monograms and coats-of-arms on the furnishings, etc., in the palaces occupied by them, but such a procedure seems a little incongruous in a democracy and for an official who is elected by the people for only four years. AMERICAN.

Forgive Or Forget?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

After a few years of sensational search, Insull is returned and proven not guilty. Nevertheless, it is generally conceded that when the Government loses a case against a citizen it has won a point. Time even mellows justice. The spirit of forgiveness is commendable, but to forget is impossible.

Each succeeding year, we reluctantly become less critical of the past and more determined to create a better future. This attitude is also commendable. Wages, working conditions and opportunity for the future take precedent over watered stocks and frozen assets.

In many cases, industries have begun to reemploy, but they have sent hurried messages to Government agencies to call off all 30-cent workers or their previous wage scale will collapse. The 30-cent wage scale is deplorable, but up to now, it is perhaps the greatest achievement of the New Deal.

Good Enough For Him.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

This sudden clamor for liberalism of the Republican Party seems to have many guessing. From my own observation, I have come to the conclusion that the motives behind this move is nothing more than a small group trying to build their future for 1936.

The Republican Party is good enough for me as it stands and I doubt if it intends to be ruled by a small group of radical obstructionists. For Chairman Fletcher to resign now would do the party much damage. He is an able man and those who are familiar with his public record can only commend him. He did not seek this office, but rather was sought due to his record. We do not intend to depart from the principles of this party, which I firmly believe will always be controlled by conservatives.

Nodding Homers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

While I have enjoyed The Post very much under its present management, I wish that your political writers would have as much common information on historical subjects as the average 12-year-old child. One John Marshall was not the first Chief Justice of the United States, Mr. Raymond Clapper to the contrary, notwithstanding. I do enjoy most of Mr. Clapper's articles, however.

Also, every now and then the great Washington correspondents tell us how Senator Newberry, of Michigan, was "thrown out" or otherwise disposed of by an indignant Senate. This never happened. Senator Newberry resigned after the Supreme Court decided that the law under which he was convicted was unconstitutional. His right to the seat was sustained by about 14 votes.

Years ago when the Chicago newspapers were graced by my presence—there used to be lynx-eyed proof readers who really knew something. This was before the World War. They must be extinct now. BAYARD REID.

"After Van Dyck?"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Is not "The Ancestor," in the current exhibition at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, which was reproduced in The Post, October 28, "after Van Dyck?"

Three hundred years ago Sir Anthony Van Dyck painted the portrait of Beatrice De Cusance, Princesse De Cantecroix, Duchess De Lorraine. Van Dyck painted her, as seen in the portrait at Windsor Castle, with her feet on the step of a balcony attired in a black velvet dress and white gold-embroidered silk petticoat, casting a bewitching and amorous glance at the spectators, as she seems to be passing across the scene.

The "Ancestor" and "Beatrice" appear to be more than mere coincidence. I am sure that the notes on this painting as they appear in the catalogue of the "Royal Collection of Paintings," Volume II, Windsor Castle (1906) would prove of interest to many.

The Speed Danger.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The increase in motor accidents is indeed alarming. Yet nothing drastic is done about it.

It seems to me that too many irresponsible persons are permitted to drive cars. Examination for drivers' permits should be made so exacting and difficult that only persons showing a very high mental rating, and a proper reaction in regard to the handling of moving machinery, should be given permits.

Another factor which tends to increase the accident rate is that the modern car is too fast and too intricate for the slow-thinking person who drives it. Only motorists who have by careful examination proven themselves expert drivers should be allowed to drive high-speed cars. The average motorist who clutters up the highway on Sundays and holidays should not be permitted to drive a car which has a maximum speed of more than 45 miles per hour. Speed is dangerous to the man who can not think and act quickly in an emergency.

Temblor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

C. B. criticizes The Post for using the word temblor for earthquake. I did not see the text to which he refers, so I do not know what kind of earth movement was so described.

When I lived in Southern California many years ago, temblor, the Spanish word for trembling, was applied to a very slight earth movement. "Just a temblor," one would say, as one says, "Only a shower." I don't know whether the term is now used in this restricted sense or whether it was then so used all over the State. But it seems proper.

Since we have the words cloudburst, downpour, shower, drizzle, sprinkle, to describe different degrees of rain, why object to the two words, earthquake and temblor, which permit one to discriminate between a severe shaking of the ground and a barely perceptible tremor?

Organizing Congress

Our Seventy-fourth Congress, elected last Tuesday, is described as an embarrassment of riches for the Administration. Good manners are not all that prevents Mr. Roosevelt from gloating over the huge Congressional majority once more presented him. He has a real problem in keeping the illy assorted Democratic throng in order, and while it is believed he commands enough loyalty to prevent overriding of any veto the President is determined to have upheld, a bloc-ridden and squabbling House is threatened again, as when the Republicans last ruled.

Two things are counted upon to hold the House in control. One is a heavy legislative program, to keep the boys too busy to engage in experiments of their own, and the other is the election of a firm-handed Speaker. The first is the more dependable, for in the contest for a Speaker the Democrats are already splitting into blocs, the North divided against the South, and each major division subdivided by group allegiances to region, personality and program. Such a state of affairs is naturally regrettable, but is the inevitable consequence of huge majorities. The fight can not be averted. The hope must be that it will not leave bitterness and discord as its aftermath.

While the Democrats are having their organization troubles, so are the Republicans, with strong efforts indicated to wrest the minority leadership from veteran, conservative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, and vest it in some more liberal Westerner, perhaps, who will be symbolic of the party as its heirs hope to reconstitute it. The Republicans have no strong master in the White House to dictate or suggest preferences.

The way the Democrats organize will have a bearing on the course of legislation for the next two years, but the way the Republicans line up will be more interesting to the student of government, for it will forecast the future of what the British call "the King's most loyal opposition."

The Post Impressionist

The New Hats: Old Merrows.

Post Office, Friday.

"THESE new hats that the women are wearing are," said Jarvis, "simply crazy."

Irish Brian O'Brien only smiled. British George Powell declared that women's hats had always been mad.

"But this new fashion is the maddest yet," insisted Jarvis. "I examined one example at close range this afternoon, on a model. It was displayed as the very latest thing, the very 'smartest.' And what was it really? And where was it?

"It wasn't on the model's head. It was on her ear: her left ear. I don't pretend to know how it was held there. No rubber band was visible, no chin ribbon. If a hatpin had been used, it would have had to pierce the eardrum and enter the suppositious brain. For a minute, I thought the ear might be tucked into it; but investigation showed it wasn't hollow. It was simply a disc—a disc of hard black felt, and nothing else. It might have been a short-record disc for a gramaphone.

"I tell you, these new hats that the women ——"

Then O'Brien interrupted. He interrupted with that soft Irish voice of his, that quiet superior smile, that faraway Celtic-twilight in his blue eyes:

"Perhaps they're not new hats," said he. "Perhaps they're not hats. And perhaps the wearers aren't women."

"Not women?" It was practical Powell who put this question. "My wife bought one of those hats this morning."

"Perhaps not new—not hats—not women," O'Brien patiently persisted. "You'd understand these things if you'd ever read any bit of Irish folklore. Do you fellows happen to have heard of the merrows?"

None of us had.

"The merrows," said he, "are the sea-people. They live under the ocean around the Irish coasts. They're all beautiful, and they all wear a kind of cap called the cohuleen driuth. I know all about it, because I'm from Sligo and I got it there from a nurse who had merrow blood in her veins. Her great-grandfather married a merrow. She told me so herself."

Lighting his pipe, O'Brien settled deeper into his armchair.

"Once upon a time," said he, "a merrow came out of the waters of Sligo Bay to get the Irish sun on her and comb her golden hair. She was that beautiful you had to put your hand before your eyes when you looked at her. But, of course, she must take her cohuleen driuth off her head to do her combing. And a big wave washed it away.

"Now, a cohuleen driuth is a silly-appearing thing that seems of no consequence whatever. It's so simple, you'd say is was a mere ornament. It's so insignificant, you'd say it wasn't a hat at all. But it is a hat—and it's a magic hat. It's the merrows commuting ticket to her native home beneath the sea, and if she loses it down there, she can't come up, and if she loses it up here, she can't go home.

"So you can imagine how disturbed this merrow was when that wicked wave took her cohuleen driuth away.

"Now, my nurse's great-grandfather—who was Larry Kennedy, no less—he happened to be fishing near by, and when he spied that cap floating along, why, he—being Irish—at once knew the nature of it. So he looked about for its owner. . . .

"Sure enough, there she was—the lovely thing! Only one way could you tell her for not quite human, and that was when you held her slim hands and saw her web fingers. Right off, Larry fell head-over-heels in love with her.

"'What's wrong?' he asks—for she was crying something dreadful. And when she told him, the rogue helped her search for her cohuleen driuth, although all the while he had it in his pocket so's she couldn't ever leave him. . . .

"Never was a better wife in all Ireland—never better mother than her to their taree children. Years and years was so. . . .

"But at last, Larry—just like you modern American husbands—got careless with security. He stuffed that cohuleen driuth away with his old fishing tackle. And one day, his pretty wife-merrow house-cleaned an found it.

"She looked and she looked at it. She looked out to ocean. She smiled at the waves and thought she would just go and see her old friends for a cup tea. And so she tripped off and dove far, far down into the underwater-land. And Larry came home, waited and waited—and waited . . .

"Well, he waited in vain. Her 'neath sea friends must have played Larry's own trick on her; they must have taken her cohuleen driuth and hidden it, down there. For she never returned."

Larry knocked the ashes from his pipe. Saiche:

"I'm thinking you American husbands, wit your careless security and all, are perhaps like Larry. I'm thinking you'd better look out. I'm thinking perhaps these new hats are really each an old cohuleen driuth. And I'm thinking perhaps your wives may be kin to my old Sligo nurse and descendants of Mrs. Merrow Kennedy."

Blackshirts Look for Change Minus Violence

Neither Revolution Nor Dictator in Plans of Party Headed by Mosley.

The Post prints today the second of a series of two articles which analyze the British Fascist movement under Sir Oswald Mosley, whose actions recently have attracted much attention.

By Frank Darvall.
(Special Correspondence of The Post.)

London.

THERE are probably as many black shirts in Britain today as there were brown shirts in Germany in 1927. The membership of the British Union of Fascists (which is kept secret) is probably about 100,000. This is approximately the same as the membership of the German Nazi party five years before its coming to power, and much larger than that of the German Nazis at an equivalent period of growth (for Fascism in Britain is, under Sir Oswald's leadership, less than 3 years old).

British Fascists, like continental ones, are very largely recruited from amongst the young and from amongst the lower middle class. Unemployed or underpaid clerks provide, probably, the largest element in the black shirt ranks. Manual workers are not as yet very numerously represented, except in one or two areas where the depression has been acute and prolonged, and where many people have completely lost hope in all the old parties, including the Communists.

The party seems to get proportionately more support from the London suburbs, and from the northeast of England, than from other areas. There is indeed an odd coincidence between the density of Fascists and of readers of Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail (which is preeminently a suburbanite's newspaper), a coincidence which may have been as much the cause as a consequence of the support which, until a few months ago, Lord Rothermere's press used to give British Fascism.

Lord Rothermere's support has been withdrawn since British Fascism became so openly and violently anti-Jewish. These moves, too, may have been partly due to the similar localization of the Fascists' and of the Rothermere press' chief strength. For the density of Jews in Britain is somewhat similarly localized, and it is always where Jews are relatively most numerous than anti-semitism is most pronounced. But whereas Sir Oswald can, to appeal to the jealous Gentile, attack the Jew, a newspaper owner, having to consider small advertisers (many of whom are Jewish), can not.

BRITISH Fascism, like that of the continent, tries to some extent to be all things to all men. It is stronger on destructive than on constructive criticism. It is clever in exploiting existing grievances, as it has recently that of farmers against payment of tithe.

Like continental Fascism, moreover, British Fascism is radical as well as nationalist. It offers protection against internal capitalist exploitation as well as against external capitalist competition. It is as eager to control the banks and the country's monetary policy, in order to bring about a better balance between production and consumption, and more constant employment, as it is to achieve similar results by the drastic limitation of imports, and the persistent trading of import facilities for export ones.

The British Fascists, like the German, believe that no nation is really politically secure unless it is economically as nearly self-sufficient as possible. They believe also that political and economic security is to be sought chiefly, at least, in the present stage of the world's existence, through national power rather than international agreement. They want the British Empire to be free from dangerous foreign commitments, whether in respect of limited armaments or of armed guarantees. They want it to insure its freedom by its own military, naval and aerial prepardeness. They do not wish it to limit its influence by dangerous experiments, such as rapid enlargement of India's power of self-government.

THE party is convinced that most national evils flow from selfish, irresponsible competition between individuals, parties, regions and interests. They think that the present system, political and economic, encourages rather than checks such internal conflicts. They wish to establish a system, which, like the Italians, they call a corporative one, in which each element in the community will see its advantage, and seek it, in collaboration with others, and under strong national leadership.

They wish, therefore, to establish the leadership principle, with authority flowing down from above and not up from beneath. They wish also to secure, in politics and in economic life, functional rather than individual representation.

Their state, when and if it comes, would have two Parliaments, one political, the other, and more important, economic. Each would be composed of experts elected by their professional colleagues rather than laymen elected in geographical (and usually artificial) constituencies by the crude method of counting heads.

The function of these two Parliaments would be advisory rather than legislative. Legislative and executive powers would be vested in the government, which would be assisted by, not responsible to these parliaments.

The government would be appointed by the leader. The leader would draw his power from the people, and would keep in touch with them at intervals by means of the plebiscite.

This regime would come into being by act of Parliament, or more probably by detailed decrees carried out under the authority of a general act of Parliament.

• • • •

IT would employ all available means of propaganda to maintain its position and assist its policy. It would necessarily regulate, by means of a censorship and in other ways, counter-propaganda. It would not, however, so its protagonists now say, seek to prohibit criticism, or to suppress freedom of speech or thought. "Legitimate" and "fair" criticism would be allowed, and indeed, encouraged.

Force would only be used, both in the establishment and in the maintenance of a Fascist regime, to the extent to which it is absolutely necessary. It would also be used to give effect to, not to defeat, the real wishes of the nation.

Such a regime would indeed, so the Fascists claim, create for the first time a real national unity, in place of that economic class war, and political party dog fight, which now look like creating conditions in which force not reason must be the final arbiter. It would therefore, in the long run, lessen and not increase the use of force as an instrument of government.

British Fascism would therefore not, in its supporters' view, involve either a revolution or a dictatorship. Both terms they feel are unjustly applied to their objects, and are due to a faulty analogy between British and continental Fascism. For Britain's blackshirts believe that twentieth century reforms, like Fascism, can come in Britain, as did nineteenth century ones, like democracy, without the violence which characterized them on the continent, and without the abuses. And they will also assume in Britain a British form, and be far from a mere copying of foreign models.

If British Fascists can so convince the British public their chances of success will be brighter than they now appear.

The Starling Shusher.

("Fifty men started work tonight on Washington's strangest job. Their task is to shake tin cans filled with stones at huge flocks of starlings, which have invaded the city, keep them from sleeping and thus drive them away. The work pays 40 cents an hour."—News item.)

Things are picking up—I feel it
And so why should I conceal it?
I've a job at last; it came to me today—
Though at such tasks I'm a busher
I've been named a starling shusher;
I annoy 'em till they choose to go away.

It is outdoor work and snappy,
And on such a job I'm happy;
I consider it a very lucky break.
I conduct intensive searches
For the starlings on their perches
And I do my best to keep the birds awake.

With a can with pebbles in it
I can set up such a din it
Is disturbing to the uttermost degree;
It keeps nervous starlings leaping
So they get no time for sleeping,
And they quit the town to get away from me.

I get forty cents an hour
For my noises harsh and sour,
And it isn't bad in trying times, you know;
Starling shushing is employment
With a measure of enjoyment,
And I really hate to see the birdies go.

Oh, I love all little birdies
With their tunes like hurdy-gurdies,
And for starlings I've a fondness, oh, I say!
Chasing birds is not much trouble
And for some birds that goes double—
May it prove a major industry some day!

That Bankhead Act!

ONE gathers that the celebrated Bankhead act restricting cotton production must have really been in peril for the Agricultural Administration boys to throw off their mask and fall on bended knees to plead for its retention. It means a lot to them, this changed attitude does. It removes their greatest asset. It more than affects their pride. What it does is to completely debunk them.

BARGERON.

From the beginning they have professed not to want the increasing authority given them. They have decried it at every turn. It was their angelic attitude always that it was being pushed down their throats.

Many times we were given the belief that we were breaking Henry Wallace's heart. "Oh, oh," he would say, "this is no way for a people to do in a democracy." And in our simple way we would observe that Henry was such a good man to be taking on all of our burdens. Never once did it occur to us that he was just eating the additional authority up.

We may have thought at times that Frisky Tugwell and some of the others were grasping, that nothing would suit them better than to set up a rigid bureaucracy. But of Henry our thoughts were always of sympathy.

In fact, he confounded all our conceptions of the bureaucrat. No bureaucrat had ever before acted as he. When Frisky Tugwell or some of the other boys would so forget themselves as to gloat over some additional authority or to speak inadvisedly of the authoritarian state, it was always Henry who reassured us with his innate goodness and dreaminess. No bureaucrat was he. He was a pillar of democracy.

• • • •

No one of us who has been through the revolution can forget that picture of the Senators shoving the Bankhead act down Henry's throat. Over his steadfast opposition they shoved it, over his warnings that it was not the thing for a democratic people. It was cited at the time as a way a democratic people do their servants. Making Henry take this additional authority showed just how ungrateful the people were. It is a wonder that some progressive editor didn't launch a movement for two Secretaries of Agriculture.

Henry and his associates kept that mask for a long time, too. Only now in their desperation to retain the Bankhead act have they thrown it away. One of the best pieces of authority they have was endangered and, of course, if one piece is chipped away a general disintegration of their authoritarian structure might set in.

The story of their retrogression from the martyr state to their one now of just plainly wanting to hold onto the authority is as interesting as man's evolution upward from the ape. It has been slow and by degrees.

When told by Senators that opposition was now overwhelming to the act they sighed and said well, they guessed it might as well be dropped. Then they decided, however, still with that air of resignation so pronounced in Henry's brochure, "America Must Choose," that they might as well take a poll of the cotton growers. Not that they didn't believe the Senators, but what was more democratic than to let the growers express themselves.

The next step was to let the agricultural workers out in the fields, whose jobs are dependent upon the continuance of the act, "tell" the growers about it, explain it to them. This was simply in the interest of enlightenment which surely a democracy should enjoy.

Through all of these stages, however, Henry's attitude was one of unconcern. It was still one of unconcern, in fact, when it was discovered that some of the agricultural agents were pleading with the growers to vote for retention.

"Oh, they shouldn't do that," said Henry. "I'll have them stopped."

But apparently neither the campaign of enlightment nor the one of importuning was getting anywhere. So, with the vote right here upon us, they threw their false garments aside and got Mr. Roosevelt to intervene.

"Please, Mr. Roosevelt," they begged in effect, "ask the farmers to continue to let us have that authority which we don't want."

And Mr. Roosevelt did. Yet no one can look so pathetic as Henry when he says that he supposes the growers will now vote "yes."

No End of Books

"News From the Past," an Antiquarian Plum Duff From British Papers, 1805-1887.

By Theodore Hall.

I ONCE spent a summer reading old newspapers in the Library of Congress. The topics for which I was looking came to light easily enough, and yet it was one of the hardest jobs I've ever tackled. For you would scarcely believe how tempting it was to let your eye slip nimbly over the bird in hand and go skipping down the pages toward every sort of quaint, incredibly fascinating item on earth.

Old newspapers, did I say? They were of the years 1915-17.

If less than 20 years could have made antiquarian pudding of the New York Tribune, let us see what a century does to the London Times and its contemporaries. Here, in the 649 pages of "News from the Past: the Autobiography of the Nineteenth Century" (Viking, $2.75), are gathered newspapers and magazine items from English journals of the years 1805-1887.

It is the handiwork of Miss Yvonne ffrench (yes, that is correct with two small "f's" — surely the supreme gem of British nomenclature!), a miscellany which includes everything from Napoleon's obituary to the report of a hermit cat which lived in a covered ditch on Tower Hill. Sir John Squire contributes the most graceful preface I've seen this year, and leads us direct to these fire-fly glimpses of English life and manners in the Good Old Century.

• • • •

Any reader of the Saturday Review of Literature's amusing columns of personal advertisements (in the last few weeks sadly adulterated with book ads) will smile at this hopeful plea from the Morning Chronicle of 1807:

"Patronage—Wanted by a Gentleman of high honour and character, a respectable Official Situation, in England (either a Sinecure, or one which does not require constant attendance), for which and adequate compensation will be given."

• • • •

Society item from the Observer, 1810:

"Lady L—— E—— is the most dashing of the fashionable belles at Tunbridge Wells. In the morning she appears with purple stockings and gown; at noon she wears pink stockings with crimson clocks and changes again in the evening for white; her coats on each occasion being shortened sufficiently to shew the symmetry of her ancles."

• • • •

Testimonial note on the Duke of Wellington's taste, just after his death in 1852:

"As to his household, even the French cook, overlooking Waterloo and his Grace's indifference to the science of gastronomy, mourns for his death. He had exhausted all the efforts of his art in vain to elicit condemnation from the Duke who showed no preference for a good dinner over a bad one. This troubled the chef de cuisine, but he admits that his master was a very great man, notwithstanding."

• • • •

The English in 1824 (as we in a late era) look across the fence at greener grass:

"In America nobody gets drunk, except a few emigrants from the Emerald Isle, although the landlord of an inn puts spirits on the sideboard for his customers to help themselves ad libitum, without any additional charge to the price of his ordinary. No man intoxicates himself with any kind of liquor merely because it is cheap and common."

• • • •

But in spite of these notable items, you must not think "News from the Past" dwells solely on British "Americana." Miss ffrench includes many a footnote to history among these hundreds of items.

"It has been some time announced, that the New Machine for traveling without horses, being impelled entirely by Steam, was matched to run 24 hours against any horse in the kingdom." (1808.)

"Politicians must perceive with some anxiety, that the destinies of the monarchy are now transferred to, and wound up with, the life of an infant girl." (1821, after the death of Queen Caroline, and referring to the 3-year-old Princess Victoria.)

And on one page you will find the modest announcement of the first traffic lights—a tower 20 feet high, with red and green gas lamps for stop and go. "Should the anticipations of the inventor be realized, similar structures will no doubt be speedily erected in many other parts of the metropolis." The date—believe it or not—is 1868.

This whole magnificent dish of plums and prunes from the last century is topped off with 40 reproductions of contemporary prints. One shows the scene of "Billy, the unrivalled dog, performing his wonderful match of killing 100 rats in 6½ minutes."

But my favorite is a pastoral landscape scene of one of the newfangled steam carriages drawing up before a Georgian portico. Everyone is in bonnets and flounces, or high hats and stocks, and there is the usual running dog.

Edward Irving

By Wm. Lyon Phelps

DOWN in the crypt of the cathedral at Glosgow in Scotland I stood by the tomb of Edward Irving, who died exactly 100 years ago today, December 7, 1834.

Long after his death the distinguished novelist, Mrs. Oliphant, published a biography of him in two volumes; and every one should read the account of him in Carlyle's famous Reminiscences. They were dear and intimate friends and their friendship was not concluded by the fact that they were both in love with the same woman, who is known to the world as Jane Welsh Carlyle. In my opinion, if she had married Irving, as she ought to have done, she would have been far happier; there can be no possible doubt of this, to those who know the individual history of these three singular individuals. It is probable, however, that she would not be nearly so well known today, if that is any comfort to a woman after she has left the planet.

Edward Irving was one of the best men who ever lived; and Carlyle, who grew worlds apart from him in his philosophy, remembered him with intense affection.

Irving was 3 years older than Carlyle, having been born in 1792. He was a tall man of magnificent physique, with a dark complexion and a beautiful melancholy face, and a voice of such resonance and splendor as to be hypnotic on listeners, whether in conversation or from the pulpit.

He believed that the metropolitan men and women of fashionable society needed the Gospel more than any others; and although he several times as a youth planned to be a foreign missionary, his stunning success as a preacher was in London, where his church was crowded, and his eloquence became the talk of the town.

• • • •

Later he became obsessed, as so many have been, with the idea of the Second Coming of Christ, and he was expelled from the Church of Scotland. His followers were called Irvingites by outsiders, but they called themselves members of the Holy Catholic Apostolic Church. The service had an interesting ritual and the hierarchy of the church included leading divines called Apostles and Angels.

When I was a boy in Hartford I used to attend (out of curiosity) the services of this church which were held in a small edifice on Spring street or Garden street, I can not remember which; and I suppose the entire church membership was insignificant in number, though it included some distinguished scholars and theologians. But when in Edinburgh in 1911, I attended the Catholic Apostolic Church, I found the services were held in an immense and splendid edifice, crowded with worshipers.

Irving's tremendous labors, the excitement of certain aspects of his faith, and the sadly bitter theological controversies in which he became involved, ruined his health, and he died when only 42 years old.

I have read certain biographies of Carlyle that dismiss him with a few contemptuous words, as if he were remembered only because he was Carlyle's friend.

Irving and his influence will never entirely cease; and I should not be surprised, in our biography-loving age, to see a new life of this tremendous personality.

Housing Seen as Key To Quick Recovery

First Principles of New Deal Spokesmen All Call For Action in This Field.

By Elliott Thurston.

CLEARLY, the most important thing for the Government to do is to lose no more time in getting action in the enormous field of housing and construction. Every first principle professed by Roosevelt, proclaimed by Mr. Richberg and other spokesmen, and implied in the fervid appeals for "cooporation," demands practical application in this field.

Whatever the causes, the fact is that nearly six months after the passage and signing of the much-ballyhooed housing act there is still inaction and inertia so far as new construction is concerned. The Federal Housing Administration has undoubtedly done well in stimulating modernization of homes. Administrator Moffett estimates that by the end of the year some $1,500,000,000 of work will have been undertaken as a result of the modernization campaign.

Yet important as this is, it is insignificant when contrasted with the opportunity for a tremendous recovery movement in making the most of the really vital parts of the housing act. Mr. Moffett cites that fully 5,000,000 new homes are needed in this country as soon as they can be built. One of his assistants notes that less than 50,000 houses have been built in this country during the current year, whereas in England, with one-third of our population, 300,000 houses are being put up this year.

By conservative estimates, there is a pressing need for upward of $5,000,000,000 of new housing each year for the next 10 or 20 years. This does not take account of anything more than making up a housing shortage resulting from the depression years. Nor does it take into account the conservatively estimated $10,000,000,000 of needed construction, repair and new equipment of plants and factories in order to bring them up to date.

EVERY hour that is lost in initiating action adds to all the perils of budgetary collapse and reckless inflation. The longer the delay in restoring private investment in construction the greater the burden on the Government for supporting the unemployed—the greater the temptation of Congress and left-wing New Dealers to turn to permanent forms of Federal usurpation of and substitution for private enterprise.

No more conspicuous example of the failure to get into action so far can be cited than the City of Washington. The Capital is and for many months has been facing a serious shortage in both residential and commercial accommodations. Rapid growth of the population, due primarily to increases in Federal activities, has outrun the housing and office space available. Yet in the face of the danger that the city will experinece a wave of high rentals, inviting the Government to do its own building, private activity has yet to get going. While the need is more pressing in Washington than elsewhere, no doubt, the inaction is true of the rest of the country.

Many reasons, if not excuses, can be given. The FHA gave precedence to modernization. The housing law was only outlined by Congress. Details had to be written in at the FHA. A large organization had to be created. Banks and other prospective lenders had to be instructed in the law and the regulations. The New Deal has been flirting with, if it is not in fact wedded to, plans for subsidies and for the low-cost housing visioned by Mr. Ickes. Such supplements or substitutes have tended to thwart FHA, to incline potential borrowers and lenders, under FHA, to wait to see whether better bargains could be had or what room, if any, was to be left to private capital in the housing field.

MOREOVER, NRA had frozen prices of building materials, and labor has been waging jurisdictional and high wage maintenance battles, especially in the building trades. These and other complications, confusions and cross-purposes have had a paralyzing effect. Yet what appears to be the greatest trouble has been a failure by the Government to grasp the nettles and to drive through to action.

Time is the vital factor. Had the way been resolutely cleared weeks ago, there might have been real progress by this time in launching new building. The practical and psychological benefits might have been sufficiently plain so that a persuasive answer would be furnished for those who contend that private enterprise will not revive, that the Government must occupy the field itself, and that the unemployed can only be suported out of the Federal budget.

All the pressures, political and otherwise, for panaceas of one sort or another, for more monetary expedients, for more price-raising, gather force as the failure to initiate action in the building field continues. The housing act offers lenders the nearest thing conceivable to fool-proof, air-tight guaranteed mortgages affording far more attractive interest rates than are discoverable anywhere else in the realm of sound investment.

Borrowers are offered better terms than ever before. The opportunity exists. It promises more than all the rest of the Government recovery program. It is the main road to restoration of private profits and private initiative—to preservation of the "American system," proclaimed and espoused as the bed-rock foundation of the New Deal.

By all the logic of its own avowed purpose, by all the soundest tests of known facts and the most competent economic judgment, the New Deal needs to concentrate on getting action where, for whatever reason, inertia and lethargy have continued over-long.

Niagara's Table Rock Safe, Officials Report

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Dec. 6 (AP). Table Rock, the point where tourists gain their closest view of the Horseshoe Falls of the Canadian side of the Niagara gorge, today was reported safe by the Niagara Park Commission despite the 200-ton fall of rock from its face.

Cline Services At Falls Church

Rites for Widow of Newspaperman to Be Held Today at 10. A.M.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Brigham Cline, 55, who died of heart disease Wednesday, will be conducted today at 10 a. m. in Falls Church Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in Oakwood Cemetery, Falls Church.

She was the widow of Sheldon S. Cline, former managing editor of the Washington Star and earlier a member of The Washington Post editorial staff. He died in May, 1928.

Born at Delta, Ohio, Mrs. Cline was the daughter of Col. and Mrs. J. H. Brigham. She met Mr. Cline in 1900 while he was secretary to her father, then Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

Mrs. Cline has been a resident of Falls Church for the past 25 years, where she was active in social and civic work. She was a member of Acacia Chapter, Order of Eastern Star; the Presbyterian Church, the Garden Club of Falls Church, the Parent-Teacher Association, the Women's Club, the Evening Study Club, Music Study Club, and was a director of the Associated Charities of Falls Church.

Mrs. Cline is survived by two sisters, Mrs. R. H. Dunbar, of Klamath Falls, Oreg., and Mrs. Felix T. Moore, of Falls Church; two sons, John H., of the Washington Star staff, and Sheldon S., jr., both of Falls Church, and six daughters, Martha, Betty, Jane and Ann Cline, and Mrs. Kenton Hamaker, all of Falls Church, and Mrs. Luey Rushmer, of Ogden, Utah.

Police Guard Court During Attack Trial

Trial of Alexander Jones, 35, colored, alleged attacker of a 16-year-old Chevy Chase girl, will begin today in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md. The courtroom will be guarded by 20 county policemen and a number of deputies from the office of Sheriff G. Edington Bell.

Jones was arrested several weeks after the attack, which took place September 30, at the county jail in Bel Air, Md., where he had obtained lodging in return for doing chores around the building. He had been there several days when a descriptive circular revealed his identity.

The attack took place in the underbrush near Wisconsin avenue on Western avenue where the girl and her companion were dragged from their parked car by two Negroes. The other man, James Poindexter, escaped and has not been captured.

"I do not believe the two incidents were actually related," the girl's father said. "I attribute the telephone call Tuesday night to a man who had had a dispute with me on a business matter several days earlier.

"The two Department of Justice men and a local policeman from Manchester escorted by daughter from our summer home in Manchester here Tuesday night. There have been no further developments since that time."

The Boston Daily Record said tonight that it had learned that threats of various sorts had been made to no fewer than 15 other wealthy families in the exclusive colony here. The newspaper said that in a number of instances the families threatened had paid large sums to kidnapers to insure the safety of their children.

Mexico Divorce Is Invalid Here, Court Decides

Local Tribunal Gives Annulment Decree to T. A. Cover.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins, in the District Supreme Court, yesterday handed down a decision repudiating the validity in the District of Columbia of divorces obtained in Mexico.

His decision was rendered in an annulment suit brought by Thomas Austin Cover to sever the marital ties that held him to Georgia V. Foster Mattingly, to whom he was married after she had obtained a Mexican divorce from her first husband, Louis R. Mattingly.

Both Mattinglys, it was shown, never resided in Mexico and Cover, the second husband of Mrs. Mattingly, paid part of the expense incurred in obtaining the Mexican papers.

The Covers were married at Gettysburg, Pa., in 1932, and came to the District to live. They separated in September, 1933, and Jean M. Boardman, attorney for the husband, filed a suit asking that the marriage be dissolved on the theory that his wife had never obtained a legal divorce from her first husband.

Justice Adkins held that Boardman's contention was accurate and he issued a decree annuling Cover's marriage to Mrs. Mattingly. In the meantime, Mr. Mattingly, accepting his wife's divorce, has married and has a child by his second wife. The ruling merely pointed out that both Mattingly and his second wife believed they were legally able to marry.

Jail's Jail, But Work Is 'Out,' Sing Trio Back From Pillory

Paintsville, Ky., Dec. 6 (AP).—The boast of the three young men pilloried on Main street here yesterday that they would stay in jail the rest of their lives rather than "put in a lick of work" was countered today with an ultimatum from city officials there would be no liberty without work.

As James Price, William Dills and Oscar (Blackie) Pelphrey continued passive resistance against going to work for the city street department to liquidate fines and costs of $28.50 each for drunkenness, City Attorney Clifford F. Price announced other work would be found for them. A large pile of bricks owned by the city needed cleaning, he remarked, and the prisoners could be profitably employed on that job.

The young men were pilloried in log chains on a street corner for several hours yesterday morning because they refused to work out their fines at the customary rate of $1 a day. The chilly weather and the excitement stirred up in this mountain town, however, prompted Police Judge R. A. Patrick to abandon the public punishment.

"If we give in to these boys we might as well close up the police department," said the city attorney concurring today with Judge Patrick in the view the fines must be paid or worked out. Pace and Police Chief Powell Williams stated the young men had been in jail before on drunkenness charges.

City Attorney Pace indicated the youths would be given the choice of staying in jail indefinitely or working out the fines on the brick pile. If they insist upon loafing at the brick pile, he added, the loafing would have to be done standing up.

Drys Demand End Of Liquor Profits

A demand that all profits from liquor be abolished came yesterday from the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, according to the Associated Press.

"The Government," the statement said, "is seriously compromising itself, and imperilling the strength of our democracy by accepting a profit from the liquor traffic, or by allowing individuals to make profit therefrom. These evils should be terminated."

The board protested "all forms of advertising alcoholic beverages in our public press and over our radios" and called on the Government to "advertise the dangers inherent in the use of intoxicants."

Hospital Grant Given Approval

tions with respect to that site, particularly in connection with the water supply.

The contract states that the "quantity and quality of the water supply" must be satisfactory to the public works administrator, and it adds that the cost of providing this water will come from the allotment of $1,500,000.

As interpreted by city officials, this means that Ickes thinks there is a chance that wells might not produce the necessary water, and that, therefore, it might be necessary to pipe water from the city's reservoirs.

This would cost something like $100,000 and it is believed that Ickes, foreseeing such a contingency, wanted the Commissioners to know that this sum would come from the $1,500,000 allotment and reduce the scope of the hospital project by just that much.

The Commissioners, however, are confident that the wells at Glenn Dale would provide an adequate water supply. Wells already are producing water for the Children's Tuberculosis Hospital at Glenn Dale, it was pointed out.

The contract further specifies that all engineering and construction contracts for the new adult hospital shall be submitted to PWA.

The $1,500,000, the contract says will be advanced to the District in whatever form desired, either piecemeal or in a lump sum. Thirty per cent of the money will be a Federal grant to the District; the other 70 per cent must be repaid. There will be no interest on the repayments for the first three years, but after that the interest will be at the rate of 4 per cent.

Col. Dan I. Sultan, District Engineer Commissioner, said that while the requirement for construction of the hospital by July 1, 1936, calls for speed, he was confident that it would be fulfilled.

OLD OVERHOLT

is back again!

IT TOOK FOUR YEARS to make this Christmas gift — four years of patient waiting, while this treasure of famous Pennsylvania Rye lay quietly locked in bonded warehouses, and gathered the rich ripe flavor and exquisite bouquet which only years can give.

You will read the story on the U. S. Government bottled-in-bond seal. "Made—Spring 1930"—"bottled Fall 1934"—and what a story that tells!

For this particular stock was deliberately held through an extra summer. It not merely complies with bonding requirements, but is five summers old, and as experienced whiskey men can tell you, summer is when aging in wood yields the richest rewards.

So now, you can get bottled-in-bond Old Overholt — that fine old Pennsylvania Rye first made by A. Overholt a century and a quarter ago — and we hardly need to add that it flatters the taste of the man who gives it as well as the man who receives it for a Christmas gift.

Firemen's Unit Names Leaders At Alexandria

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 373.

Norman Roberts has been elected president of the Columbia Engine and Motor Company, officially No. 4 Company of the Alexandria Fire Department, for his fifteenth consecutive term. Other officers chosen were Leo Moore, first vice president, third term; John McDermott, second vice president; Lester McMenamin, secretary, third term; Samuel Berman, assistant secretary, second term; W. H. Wood, treasurer, second term; Noble Smith, captain, third term; Frank O'Chesky, first lieutenant; Joseph Padgett, second lieutenant, third term; Lewis Latham, commander of hose; William Baggett, assistant commander of hose; Henry Metzger, trustee for six months; Ernest Duffey, trustee for 12 months, and Bussey Brenner, trustee for 18 months.

A new constitution and by-laws have been adopted by the company, and many applications recently have been received for membership. This is rated as one of the most efficient of the volunteer companies of the fire department. Its station is on the 100 block North St. Asaph street, and its territory the northeastern section of the city.

It is announced that the company will not this year go into the repairing of toys, as has been customary for several years, but will receive gifts of toys at the engine house, which will be distributed to the poor children of the city.

Miss Sara Lantz, a representative of the State department of public welfare, addressed the members of the Alexandria advisory board of the local department on the work of the department in Virginia.

The Children's Bureau, Miss Lantz explained, is an organization set up to give care to delinquent children committed to the State Department by trial justices of the State. While this bureau does not care for neglected or dependent children, it does offer its services in an advisory and consultant capacity.

In the United States Court for the Eastern District of Virginia yesterday, Judge Luther B. Way, presiding, a jury returned a verdict of guilty in the case of Harry B. Davies, charged with a violation of the internal revenue laws, and he was sentenced to servie six months and to pay a fine of $200. The same jury reported inability to agree in the case of Virgil Williams, charged with a similar offense.

Claude H. Brawner, charged with violating the national bank act, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a year and a day in an institution not yet decded upon. It s understood Brawner was formerly conected with a bank in Quantico, Va.

Earl Posey was fined $200 and given a three-months sentence on one charge of violation of the internal revenue law and found not guilty on another. Thomas Daymude and Frank Williams, on similar charges, were given suspended sentences.

The annual ladies night entertainment of the Alexandria Kiwanis Club was held last night in the George Mason Hotel, presided president of the club. Invocation over by Thomas M. Jones, the was by the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, the "sky pilot" of the club.

At the dinner special guests were introduced, among them, Louis Bruninger, president of the Washington Club, and Mrs. Bruninger; Frank Rowe, president of the Arlington County Club, and Mrs. Rowe; Miss Elizabeth M. Ramey, president of the Alexandria Business and Professional Women's Club; Louis DeMoll, vice president of the Alexandria Lions Club, and Mrs. DeMoll; Mrs. Mary Cabell Callaway, Irving Diener, lieutenant governor of the Lions Capital District, and past president of the Alexandria Club; Mrs. Diener and Miss Celestine Diener.

Mrs. Thomas M. Jones, the mother of the president, received a basket of flowers from the club.

The entertainment was in charge of Robert W. Eaves, first vice president of the club. Musical numbers were given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sanderson, of Washington. Dances were presented by Harriet and Jane Hullfish, and an old-fashioned skit by a group of men and women under the leadership of Frank Sanderson. Dancing was from 10 to 12 o'clock.

Troop 127, Boy Scouts, which is sponsored by the Russell Mitchell Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars of Alexandria, will go on a hike tomorrow, when several of the troop members will be given preliminary tests for the Court of Honor to be held soon. The troop is understood to be organizing a drum and bugle corps, under the leadership of Scout Committeeman Nolan. Boys between the ages of 12 and 15, not identified with any other troop, have been invited to join.

The annual visitation of Alexandria-Washington Lodge, No. 22, A. F. & A. M., to Andrew Jackson Lodge No. 120, was held last night in the Masonic Temple on Cameron street. Worshipful Master A. L. Ladd, of Andrew Jackson Lodge, was in charge of an entertainment program for the visitors.

Prince Georges Split Is Urged For Economies

Town Officials Offer Plan for Consolidation of Several Towns.

The establishment of a new county in the metropolitan area of Prince Georges County has been suggested by town officials and representative citizens of "the upper end" of the county.

The suggestion was introduced by Walter H. McClenon, of Takoma Park, during a meeting Wednesday night at Hyattsville, called to consider the consolidation of commercial interests of towns in the metropolitan area.

No immediate action was taken on either this or the several other plans proposed at the meeting, although it was agreed that the matter would be taken up again December 11 at the municipal officers association meeting at Riverdale.

Another plan, introduced by Bird H. Dolby, corporation counsel of Mount Rainier, included the formation of a federation of the towns in the upper end of the county. This federation might have a legal status, he said, and effect economies in road, police, lighting and other municipal functions.

Thomas E. Hume, Hyattsville town councilman and a member of the municipal consolidation committee of the county chamber of commerce, presented figures to show that a consolidation of commercial interests would result in a savings of $23,100 a year.

He estimated that the towns now spend $139,000 annually. The consolidation budget was estimated at $115,900 a year for eight towns. These would be Mount Rainier, Bladensburg, Colmar Manor, Cottage City, Hyattsville, Edmonston, Riverdale and Brentwood.

He pointed out, as striking examples, the salaries paid town treasurers. The total treasurers salaries for the eight towns were placed at $10,000 a year. This, he said, was in outstanding contrast to the $9,000 appropriated for the entire county treasurer's office.

It was pointed out that before the project can gain in popularity with the citizens in general, the populace must be shown that such consolidation agreed upon would not raise taxes out of proportion to benefits to be accrued.

The meeting was presided over by Walter L. Green, chairman of the committee, in whose office the gathering was held. He reviewed the history of the consolidation efforts in the county, which included the attempt to establish "Maryland City."

The "Maryland City" idea, though dormant, has not been discarded and is still the subject of research on the part of the county chamber of commerce and other organizations. It includes the establishment of a city out of the consolidation of Hyattsville, Riverdale, University Park and surrounding communities.

Telephone Refunds NotforMontgomery

Washington Action Not Carried to County.

Reduction of telephone rates and refunds to Washington subscribers will not extend to users of telephone service in Montgomery County, Md., according to officials of the company. The announcement was made in response to inquiries made by several local civic groups seeking to determine whether telephones in the Wisconsin and Shepherd exchanges would share in the Washington refund.

At the present time, it was said, these two exchanges are relieved of toll-call charges to Washington and the monthly minimum charge is only 25 cents in excess of that levied in the District. In addition Wisconsin subscribers are not charged a toll for calls to Bradley, nor are Shepherd subscribers charged for calls to Silver Spring.

All of the Montgomery County exchanges, however, are a part of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Baltimore system. As such they are not affected by the earnings of the District of Columbia system and consequently can not share in reductions made possible by profits of that company.

Mrs. Wallace to Attend Home Makers' Council

Final plans for the annual conference of the Montgomery County, Md., Homemakers' Council have been completed and the program was announced yesterday by Miss Edythe M. Turner, county home demonstration agent. The conference will be held at the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church South, in Gaithersburg December 13.

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, will be the guest of honor. The principal speakers will be Miss Grace Frysinger, senior home economist of the Department of Agriculture, and Miss Venia M. Kellar, State leader of home demonstration work in Maryland.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Lyman M. Kelley, removed early in November from his position as chairman of the Arlington County Board for malfeasance in office, won the first point in his struggle for a new trial yesterday when Judge Frederick W. Coleman, in the county circuit court, took the motion under advisement. Both Kelley's counsel and the Commonwealth's attorney, Lawrence W. Douglas, were invited to submit briefs.

Mr. Douglas' motion that the court was without jurisdiction was denied by Judge Coleman, who allowed the defense to introduce what was claimed to be new evidence.

One of the counts on which Kelley had been found guilty was that of soliciting a bribe from Clyde C. Lamond, principal State witness in the trial during October. Kelley stated on the stand yesterday that he had had a telephone conversation with Lamond after the trial, in which Lamond had admitted that Kelley had never solicited a bribe from him. This conversation had been recorded by a dictaphone, and the dictatphone records constitute new evidence, according to the Kelley defense.

Mr. Douglas asked Kelley, "Did Lamond at any time tell you that his testimony at the trial was wrong?"

"He told me that it was misunderstood," said Kelley.

After Kelley's testimony the State sought to have Lamond called to the stand, but Judge Coleman did not deem this necessary.

When Mr. Douglas admitted that the conversation between Lamond and Kelley had taken place, Judge Coleman ruled that the introduction of the dictaphone records as evidence also was unnecessary.

Plans for the annual meeting of Arlington County Chapter American Red Cross were announced at a meeting of the chapter board at the home of Vice Chairman E. C. Butterfield last night.

A feature of the annual meeting will be the election of a chairman to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Mrs. Bertha Kelley. The date of the meeting was tentatively set for Monday evening, January 14, 1935. George A. Collier, county roll call chairman, and Miss Gertrude Smith, Junior Red Cross chairman, were named a special committee to select a place for the meeting and arrange the program.

A committee on by-laws also was appointed, consisting of Mrs. William W. Willis, chairman; Mrs. J. H. Walton, Mrs. B. H. Rose, Mrs. E. C. Butterfield and Mrs. Julian Tapp.

Charles T. Jesse, county treasurer, reports that up to Tuesday night a total of $307,187.64 in taxes had been collected as against $300,778.90 up to and including December 5 of last year, showing an increase of $6,407.74 with still another day's receipts to be reported. Indications are that the total increase over last year will reach $47,000. Beginning yesterday a penalty of 5 per cent was added to all unpaid tax bills.

The Sam Brown Club, of the Washington-Lee High School, will sponsor a dance at the school tonight. Dancing will start at 8 o'clock and continue to midnight.

New Tax Levies Will BeNeeded, Ritchie Claims

November Deficit Makes Governor Predict Need for Assessment.

Baltimore, Dec. 6 (AP).—Gov. Ritchie late today forecast that Maryland would require the levy of new taxes as a result of the State's $783,049 operating deficit for November.

The Governor made the prediction after ordering the comptroller's office to prepare a detailed statement explaining the condition.

Gov. Ritchie blamed the deficit, which occurred in the second month of the present fiscal year, on falling revenues.

"Other States had already run into the same condition before it became apparent in Maryland," he said. "We had prevented its appearance here by a policy of cautious and conservative estimates of probable revenue from indirect taxes. We are now confronted by that condition because the revenue has continued to fall and has fallen below the estimates made two years ago, when the present budget was drafted.

"It is important to remember that the State's credit is not affected. In no way at all does the present condition affect the revenue for retirement of the State's bonds, derived from the 22-cent real estate tax."

As to ways of meeting the situation, the Governor said:

"It means that expenses must be cut even more. Or that new sources of revenue must be found. Frankly, I do not believe that cuts safely can be made if the work of the State institutions—to which most of the funds from indirect taxes go—is to be maintained.

"What has happened is what I explained in my message to the special session of the Legislature in November, 1933, was happening in other States and was to be guarded against in Maryland. We are finally running rbehind in Maryland, as other States did earlier, because indirect taxes—such as those on estates and corporations—and license fees have kept falling off materially."

Play at Charles Town.

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—"Here Comes Charlie," a three-act local talent comedy drama, will be presented at the high school auditorium here December 13 and 14. The play will benefit the Citizens Fire Company.

Music will be furnished by the Virginia Serenaders.

The Men's Democratic Club of Arlington County will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the Moose Hall at Courthouse road and Wilson boulevard, in Clarendon.

Early Day Club Finally Evolves Into Auto Area

Lively Spot of Late 70's Has Interesting, but Tragic, History.

By Kay Ware.

Places, like people, have their histories—some quaint, some tragic, some whimsical. In 1876 there was a fashionable ballroom, the equivalent of today's smart clubs, located at E street above Ninth. It became a Government office, later the meeting place of the Elks, the Knights of Pythias, then a bowling alley. Finally, remembering its original purpose, its was a 10-cents-a-dance place. Then it was taken over, eight years ago, by Edgar Baum, became an office equipment wholesale house. Now Baum will have to move—the building will be torn down, and the site used as a parking lot.

Mayflower Lounge goes in for internationalism in its cocktails and musical fare. You can call for your favorite from Cairo, from Istanbul, the Polish concoction, Zubrowla, and Sidney will help out with atmospheric music to suit.

Diplomats go for it. Washingtonians take after the diplomats. Homesick foreigners forget their blues, local stay-at-homes travel in fancy.

Eddie Peabody bows mangificently, and was bowing to ladies at the Willard's Bamboo Room the other day. The ladies were Mrs. J. T. H. Mitchell, socialite composer, and her daughter, Miss Ann Mitchell. These three are collaborating on words and music to popular songs.

Fenton Froom, Ernestine Gardner, John Slaughter and band are the major attractions. Others: The bamboo trees, the fine Martinis, the light bamboo furniture and the convenience to downtown.

Seen dipping the tango at the Shoreham lounge: Mary Finley, young Dr. Sacasa, son of Nicaragua's president; the Corby sisters from Chevy Chase and that particular couple who come early and stay late almost every afternoon. Is it Tiny or Da Costa? Probably both.

By the way, Tiny wants it understood he doesn't expect tips. So don't go digging in your pocket because you'll just embarrass him.

Shoreham floor show: Janett Hackett and Ivan (pronounced Ee-vahn, Russian for John) Triesault, dance team. They do the Continental, Merry Widow waltz, savage modern number. Miss Hackett designs costumes for R. K. O. between engagements. Watch for mirror embroidery in Merry Widow gown. Ewen Hail, Horton Spurr and Toma Genero finish off the evening.

Keep your eye on that cloakroom girl at Club Habana. It isn't hard, because she's Irish, looks Spanish, wears a rose in her black hair and a smile on her lips. Name's Kitty Long, is studying to be a blues singer, and is liable to appear on a local floor show soon. Was a Foxette dancer, knows all the town's musicians—one especially—thinks Club Habana is "swell."

Troika presents a new singer tonight—Nadia, contralto, from concerts and operas on the Continent. First rate concert singer, this local appearance is the only one she is giving outside of her tour. Will appear with Feodor Chaliapin with Chicago Civic Opera later. Incidentally, it was the great Russian basso who heard her and suggested her tour.

Casino Russe opens tonight. More Russian.

The Ross Claridge Restaurant is the last word in modernistic decoration. Tradition flies out the window, design is utterly and completely whimsical. Effect nice, nevertheless. Food goes with the setting—is modern, good quality and lots of it.

Leon Brusiloff disappeared from the Madrillon a little while the other evening. Reason: he was called away by the press to play for the Newspaper Guild's dance at the Press Club Tuesday.

Trip to Sugar Loaf Mountain Planned for Wanderbirds Club

By Robert Shosteck.

The many members of the Wanderbirds Hiking Club who have been looking forward to mountain trips will give a rousing cheer for the trip to Sugar Loaf Mountain, planned for Sunday. The hikers will climb this 1800-foot peak and then visit the famous Point of Rocks quarry, from which the massive columns in Statuary Hall in the Capitol were taken.

Readers of The Washington Post and club members planning to go on this scenic trip will meet in front of The Post Building at 9:30 Sunday for the 38-mile bus trip to Sugar Loaf. The fare for this trip and the 12-mile detour to Point of Rocks will be $1. Only those making reservations at National 4200 by midnight Saturday will be guaranteed seats. There will probably be no extra seats. The group will return to Washington by 7 p. m.

The buses will pass through Rockville, arriving at Dickerson, at the foot of Sugar Loaf, about 11 o'clock. From here a wide trail leads up to the summit of the mountain, where the group will lunch and enjoy a wonderful scenic view of the Potomac valley and nearby Catoctin and South Mountain. Returning to the buses by early afternoon, the hikers will ride to Point of Rocks, 12 miles south.

Sugar Loaf Mountain is one great mass of whitish Weverton quartzite, a sandstone compressed and altered millions of years ago by the combined force of pressure and heat. This quartzite is so hard compared to other rocks that it has withstood the ravages of time. Beneath the mountain lie softer layers of conglomerate rocks of the early Cambrian era, over 100,000,000 years old.

The quarry at Point of Rocks is famous for the calico marble, so called because this marble is a conglomerate or "pudding" containing pebbles of various colors which when polished are very striking on the background of the pinkish marble. Some of the huge columns in Statuary Hall, cut in this quarry, have a diameter of over 4 feet and are about 40 feet in length. Copper ore and copper nuggets also are occasionally found in these strata.

Hikers are urged to bring lunches, a cup for coffee and to wear shoes and clothing suitable for the occasion. It is well to remind Wanderbirds that suggestions for trips are invited. Send your accounts and maps for proposed trips to the writer at The Washington Post. Trips along the Northwest Branch, and along the C. & O. Canal, from Seneca to Great Falls, Md. are planned for the next two weeks.

On the Air Today

By George M. Adams, Jr.

ATTORNEY GENERAL CUMMINGS' conference on crime, opening Monday night at Constitution Hall, will be addressed by President Roosevelt and his words will be broadcast by all major networks at 9:30 p. m.

N. B. C. and A. B. S. already have scheduled broadcasts each day of the conference until it closes December 13. C. B. S., in addition to carrying the President's speech, is planning to broadcast the addresses of J. Edgar Hoover, of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, and H. V. Kaltenborn, C. B. S. news commentator, both on Tuesday. Patrick J. Hurley, former Secretary of War, and Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of State, will participate in the opening session.

Tuesday's broadcasts at the conference will include Mr. Hoover's speech on "Detection and Apprehension," carried by A. B. S., N. B. S. and C. B. S.; journalistic meeting in the afternoon, carried only by A. B. S., and a talk by Ferdinand Pecora, of the Federal Securities Commission, "Are the Criminal Courts Doing Their Duty?" in the evening, carried by A. B. S.

Attorney General Cummings will close the conference on Thursday with a review of its accomplishments, broadcast over N. B. C. and A. B. S. at 8:30 p. m.

* * * *

THE third in the series of specially arranged concerts for Washington school children, sponsored by The Post, and presented by the National Symphony Orchestra, directed by Dr. Hans Kindler, will be broadcast today on WRC from 3:15 to 4:30 p. m.

Paul Munroe, N. B. C. announcer, will handle today's concert, which is being held at Eastern High School for children in neighboring public, private and parochial schools. The concluding concert will be presented Monday at Armstrong High School.

Today's program will include the "Fifth Hungarian Dance," by Brahms; Wagner's prelude to the third act act of "Lohengrin," and "Procession of the Sardar," by Ippolitov-Ivanov.

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT has been picked as master of ceremonies for Nash's marathon Christmas party, marking Lionel Barrymore's radio debut, on Christmas Day from 2:30 to 5:15 p. m.

Others who will contribute include Mme. Schumann-Heink, Beatrice Lillie, George Olsen's Orchestra, Ethel Shutta, Kathryn Witmer, the Don Cossack Russian Male Chorus and the famous Apollo Club of Chicago. In addition, Clyde Pangborn and Roscoe Turner, noted fliers, will narrate aviation yarns.

C. B. S. has scheduled an exchange broadcast with Japan in honor of inauguration of transpacific radiotelephone service between the United States and the island empire, tomorrow at 5 p. m.

Freddie Rich's Orchestra, Patti Chapin, vocalist, and the Gothamaires quartet will be heard in Japan. Ten minutes of the broadcast from Japan will include songs by Ichimaru, geisha singer, and a talk by the traffic operator of the telephone company in Japan. At the time of the broadcast (5 p. m.) it will be 2 p. m. in San Francisco and 7 a. m. Sunday in Tokyo.

LOCAL N. B. C. announcers are planning their own frolic as soon as radio editors have finished one tomorrow night at the Willard. The announcers will present a burlesque of "Little Women" . . . Bob Trout, WJSV announcer, will return Monday at 1:15 p. m. with his "Esperanto" series . . . A scene from Maxwell Anderson's new play, "Valley Forge," the Franco-German agreement on the Saar Basin, the assassination of Sergei Kiroff, Russian official, and the pity killing of an insane son by his aged mother, will furnish highlights for the "March of Time" tonight at 9 o'clock on WJSV . . . Curtis Hodges, secretary, the Washington Board of Trade, will speak Tuesday at 10:30 p. m. on WJSV on "Greater Washington."

Outstanding Events Today

Cumberland's W. O. W. Officers Are Elected

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Camp No. 6, Woodmen of the World, has elected the following officers: Consul commander, Orville F. Phillips; adviser lieutenant, John C. German; escort, George E. Bennett; banker, H. Bruce Scharf; watchman, G. E. Parker, sr.; sentry, Daniel E. Kitzmiller; manager, G. C. Parker; degree master, G. C. Parker; post consul commander, Paul A. Amtower; financial secretary, Stoner S. Dowlan.

Ten new members of the class of 60, written up here during the head camp convention campaign just ended, were initiated. The local uniform rank will go to Bedford, Pa., Saturday night for a class initiation and banquet.

$529,039 in Uncollected Washington County Tax

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 6 (Spl.). Washington County has $529,039.31 in uncollected taxes in eight years, William H. Cunningham, president of the retiring board of county commissioners, announced as the recently elected commissioners took office yesterday.

The county, however, has only $86,500 borrowed and $35,543.44 cash on hand, with sufficient unpaid taxes in 1934 to meet all borrowed money and other expenses. Most of the unpaid taxes are from the last three years and most of these will undoubtedly be collected, it was stated. From the 1932 levy, $102,439.69 is unpaid; from 1933, $111,129.16, and this year, $229,886.09.

Masonic Group Holds Waynesboro Banquet

Waynesboro, Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Masons from Waynesboro and nearby communities gathered at the Masonic Hall here last night for the annual banquet of the Lee Lodge. Dr. R. S. Griffith, grand master, was toastmaster. Arrangements were made by stewards committee, L. Brown Deputy, T. C. Menefee and Guy Hamilton, working in conjunction with the local chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Speakers included Dr. M. J. Payne, the Rev. W. S. Thomas and S. J. Sachs, Staunton; V. G. Harlan, Harrisonburg; C. W. Steele, Greenville; W. A. Moon, Crawfordsville, Ind.; C. B. Driebelbis, Philadelphia; James Kay, C. M. Faber, W. E. Moore, E. B. Whitesell and the Rev. C. E. Brandt, Waynesboro.

'Curley' Byrd Is Speaker At Washington College

Chestertown, Md., Dec. 6 (AP). H. C. (Curley) Byrd, vice president of the University of Maryland, told a student assembly at Washington College here today that the Nation is relying on college men and women "to supply that intelligent and courageous outlook that is a harbinger of better times."

"Although Washington College had a successful season on the gridiron," Byrd said, "football warriors should not be so proud of athletic prowess as of the record they make in later life when supreme courage is needed to meet the trying times they must face after graduation"

Budget Deficit Faced by Board In Montgomery

Shortage of Nearly Half Million Predicted on Auditor's Report.

An estimated deficit of approximately half a million dollars in the Montgomery County, Md., budget was revealed yesterday by the county commissioners at their meeting in Rockville.

The estimate is based on figures presented by the county auditor, Alexander K. Hancock, which show a deficit of $453,454.37 in the county's funds estimated for June 30, 1935, and a verbal statement by William A. Codd, chief auditor of the Maryland State Roads Commission, that the county owes approximately $129,000 more than the overdraft already made public of approximately $255,303.

To combat the situation, the board authorized the clerk to the board, Ira C. Whitacre, to request all presidents of county banks to meet with the board next Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the Rockville courthouse to discuss the county's financial situation.

To Audit Road Accounts.

The board also authorized Commissioner Paul M. Coughlan to confer with leading nationally known auditing firms to ascertain cost of an audit of certain of the county's accounts. Coughlan is to report Tuesday at the board meeting.

The board voted unanimously to authorize employment of a nationally known firm of certified public accountants to make an immediate audit of the State roads commission accounts as they affect the county finances, in connection with which, a transcript is expected to be asked of the State roads commission showing all money owed and what amounts have peen paid and for what the money has been expended.

The two minority members of the board, Robert D. Hagner and Richard H. Lansdale, opposed making public the financial statement at this time asserting that it could do little more than injure the financial standing of the county. They asserted the actual deficit would not reach more than $150,000.

Urge Emergency Certificates.

The minority members declared that a moderate operating deficit is nothing unusual in county of other governmental experience and has in fact occurred several times in the past few years due to the rigid reductions in tax rates which has been the rule of the Democratic officeholders. Similar situations have been met with issuance of certificates of indebtedness and emergency certificates and the two commissioners urged that this be done in the present situation.

Hancock's statement set forth that county receipts to December 31, 1934, of $1,115,312.57 would leave a balance over the $516,466.25 disbursements of $598,846.32 as of December 31, 1934. County receipts up to and including June 30, 1935, will total $1,994,312.47 and expenditures will equal $2,447,766.94, leaving a deficit of $453,454.37.

Warrant Renewals Possible.

County officials said they did not expect that any money would be forthcoming from the roads commission and that bonds or notes would have to be authorized by the Legislature. A possibility exists, however, that holders of certificates of indebtedness and of street improvement certificates would be willing to extend or renew their certificates.

The minority position was set forth in a letter written by Hagner and Lansdale in which they declared that the soundness of the county's financial structure was clearly indicated by the fact that county bonds sold last summer in the financial markets of Washington, New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Chicago at par with interest rates of 4 and 4½ per cent.

Preliminary estimates of receipts and disbursements indicating "an estimated cash deficit to operate the county to June 30 next of $291,-454.47," and a second estimate "raising the estimated deficit to $453,554.37," were assailed in the letter.

Hancock's figures for December 31 are as follows: Receipts—Tax receipts, $225,000; receipts from liquor sales, $50,000; fines, costs and permits, etc., $2,000; tax sale redemptions, $4,000, a total of $281,-000, to which is added the balance on hand of November 28, 1934, of $834,312.57, making a total of $1,115,-312.57.

Disbursements—Taxes to be paid to State and special areas, $60,000; bonds and interest, $26,306.25; certificates of indebtedness and interest, $179,660; liquor purchases, $44,-000; liquor warehouse construction, $26,000; school construction, $80,000; school pay roll and expenses, $60,-000; county pay roll, $24,000; suburban district expenditures other than pay roll, $4,000; pensions, $1,500; other expenditures, $12,000, making a total of $516,466.25 to December 31, 1934. This will leave a balance on hand January 1 of $598,-846.32.

The picture for the end of the fiscal year June 30, 1935, is not so bright, however. It sets forth:

Receipts—Tax receipts, $600,000; receipts from liquor sales, $350,000; fines, costs and permits, $16,000; tax sale costs, $19,000; interest on taxes, $20,000; tax sale certificates, $100,-000; tax sale redemptions, $55,000, making a total of $1,160,000, which added to the balance on hand of November 28, 1934, makes a total of $1,994,312.57.

Disbursements—Taxes to be paid State and special taxing areas, $270,000; bonds and interest, $351,-206.94; certificates of indebtedness and interest, $509,560; liquor purchases, $300,000; liquor warehouse construction, $55,000; school construction, $250,000; school pay roll and expenses, $309,000; county pay roll, $168,000; purchase of property of taxpayers, $100,000; suburban district expenditures, other than pay roll, $25,000; pensions, $10,000; other expenditures, $100,000; total, $2,447,766.94; deficit, $453,454.37.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food don't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul; skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel up and up. They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

Just don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Insist at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

Decline in World Trade Due To War, Dr. Healy Writes

Discusses Essay Topic in Scholarship Contest of The Post.

Four Washington universities—American, Catholic, Georgetown and Howard—are cooperating with The Washington Post in the second Washington Post Scholarship Competition, which calls for submission of original essays on governmental topics by high school students, and which offers as major awards eight four-year tuition scholarships at these institutions.

Social science professors at these four universities have contributed a series of articles, of which this is the fourth, bearing upon the competition's 30 stipulated essay topics. These articles, suggesting pros and cons of the problems in question, have been written for use in the several hundred civics, economics and history classes which have already incorporated the writing of these essays in their current curricula.

A general discussion of international problems presented as essay topics.

By Dr. Thomas H. Healy,

Assistant Dean and Professor of International Law and Foreign Relation of the United States, Georgetown University School of Foreign Service.

The foreign policies of the United States are either directly affected or controlled by the eight international problems included in the essay topics of The Washington Post scholarship competition.

Our foreign policies are an essential part of our domestic policies and affect in a vital way our general economic and political life. Our three most cardinal foreign policies are: The promotion of peace for ourselves and the world, the promotion of proportionate disarmament and the promotion and protection of our legitimate foreign trade, both export and import. These three are closely interlinked and all flow from important economic as well as political reasons.

Hitlerism in Germany is undoubtedly a product of the last war and the expectation of the next war. Violence breeds violence, and while we heartily deplore the despotic methods now in vogue in Germany, a student of the facts should not be completely surprised at their advent. Hitlerism is not a purely German problem. It affects the welfare and safety of every nation in Europe and has a very important bearing on the welfare and safety of the United States. The central European problem, and particularly Austria, is a direct offshoot of Hitlerism. The Far Eastern problem is vitally affected by the European situation (particularly Hitlerism) and in turn itself affects the European situation. Relations between Russia and Japan have been extremely critcial and still are critical. Our relations to those two nations are one of our big foreign problems. The internal situation in Russia today affects the general European and Far Eastern situation as well as the situation in the United States. Our recognition of Russia was a tremendous factor and likewise the significance of the recent entry of Russia into the league, and its throwing of its support to France can not be overlooked. Russia interests us and the world because of the internal economic situation and further because of the political and religious views there existing, which have had repercussions throughout the world.

Drop In World Trade.

All of these factors have had a vital bearing on world trade and that in turn has a vast significance for American recovery. World trade is but a fraction of what it was a few years ago and if we were asked for the principal basic reason, we would sum it up in one word—WAR—past, present and future. The tremendous falling off in our trade has complicated gravely our domestic economic problems. As Secretary of State Hull remarked a few days ago, "international trade is indispensable to the full and stable domestic prosperity of the United States."

The development of the "good neighbor" policy towards Latin America is of great significance. Instead of the academic discussion of the past (usually contained in flowery speeches in inter-American conferences) we actually are translating into practice the "good neighbor" policy in the ture sense of the word. Our Marines have been withdrawn from Nicaragua and Haiti, new treaties have been signed with Cuba abrogating the Platt amendment and providing favorable commercial arrangements with that country. We have substantially abrogated the Central American treaty, whereby we exercised great influence in picking the government that those countries should have. We have made it clear beyond any question that we have no intention to further intervene in the affairs of Latin America. While there are still some sources of friction between the United States and Latin America, undoubtedly there has been a tremendous improvement in our relations with that area within the past year.

Capitol Heights To Control Own Liquor Trouble

Prince Georges Officials Make Decision After Hearing on Problem.

After a long airing of the Capitol Heights barroom trouble, the Prince Georges County liquor commissioners yesterday decided to leave the affair in the hands of the town government.

The matter was brought before the commissioners in the form of a resolution from the Capitol Heights town council asking for the support of the board for their recently enacted ordinance closing all barrooms after midnight.

Although no formal decision was made, it was generally agreed that the town had so far proved itself capable of adjusting the after-midnight disturbances which allegedly led to the recent death of Bennett Wells, 28, of Capitol Heights.

Town Ordinance Passed.

The death of Wells after a barroom fight last November 24 climaxed a series of disorders against which numbers of civic and church organizations had been complaining for some time. The tragedy resulted in the passing of a town ordinance closing, from 1 a. m. to 7 a. m. on week days and from 1 a. m. until 9 a. m. on Sundays, all places that sell alcoholic beverages.

Thomas (Slim) Richardson, 23, who was accused of striking Wells with a pair of brass knuckles during the fight is being held for the county grand jury, which will convene in April.

The board of liquor commissioners, however, granted an "on sale" beer license to Herman Edward Seidler, of Greater Capitol Heights, with the proviso that no beer be sold between 1 a. m. and 6 a. m. on week days and that the establishment be closed on Sunday. The establishment is located more than a mile from the scene of the fatal fight.

Another application, submitted by A. Michael Young, of Greater Capitol Heights, was held up until further investigation could be made, while a transfer of business place was granted McKindley Curtis, 1323 Division avenue, Boulevard Heights. The transfer was made to 52 Eastern avenue.

The board also settled the question of granting a license to Eleanor S. Lovett, of Takoma Park, Md., by issuing an "off sale" beer license instead of an "on sale" license.

Fairfax Board Lauds Retiring School Teacher

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 126-J.

The Fairfax County School Board, at its monthly meeting yesterday adopted a resolution praising the work of Miss Mary M. Snead, who has taught in the public schools of the county for many years. Miss Snead last month resigned as principal of the Oakton high and elementary schools because of ill health. She was principal of the schools at Andrew Chapel, McLean, Oakton, Ox Road and Baileys Cross Roads during the past quarter of the century.

The board indorsed the action of County Superintendent W. T. Woodson in advising G. B. Faidley, of McLean, that his daughter would be barred from the Franklin Sherman High School, at McLean, because she has not been vaccinated. Under the Virginia law vaccination is compulsory for admittance to the public schools.

Samuel H. Styles, trustee from the town of Falls Church, reported that 143 children living in Fairfax County attended the town schools. Arrangements were made to reimburse the town on the basis of per capita cost of elementary pupils in the county. This will make the county contributions to the town schools approximately $5,000 per year.

Two vacancies in the teaching staff of the county schools were filled yesterday with the appointment of Miss Garnett Hodges to the Fairfax School and Miss Mary Procter to the Oakton School.

Mrs. John Middleton was elected president of the Home Demonstration Club at Floris, with Mrs. William Brodgen, vice president; Mrs. William Middleton, secretary, and Mrs. Frank Peck, treasurer. Leaders for the first quarter are Mrs. Frank Peck and Mrs. Louis Ferguson. Mrs. William H. Elimore and Mrs. Helen Peck were appointed to make plans to serve hot soups at lunch time to the pupils of the Floris School during the winter months.

M. C. Walker was elected master of Great Falls Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, at the annual meeting last night. O. K. Miller was elected overseer; Mrs. A. C. Speight, lecturer; Fred Ball, steward; Claude Jenkins, assistant steward; C. F. Henderson, chaplain; Miss Elizabeth Guilford, secretary; D. D. Cornwell, treasurer; Lacey W. McCutheon, gatekeeper; Mrs. Fred Ball, Ceres; Mrs. C. A. Pirkey, Pomona; Mrs. E. P. Orr, Flora; Mrs. Claude Robey, lady assistant steward; Miss Anne Cornwell, pianist; Mrs. Rebecca Athey, flag bearer.

The executive committee will consist of Claude Jenkins, chairman; Will Tavenner and Mrs. Mark Turner. Installation will be in January. When the National Grange executive committee holds its sessions in Washington, in order that one of the national officers may act as installing officer.

William S. Cleveland has been Slade, overseer; Mrs. Milton Hartley, lecturer; Carl Robey, steward; T. Carrico, assistant steward; Thomas I. Piggott, chaplain; W. W. Thomas, treasurer; Mrs. Fitzhugh Slade, secretary; John Murphy, gatekeeper; Miss Harriet Grover, Ceres; Mrs. Martin T. Webb, Pomona; Mrs. W. T. Carrico, Flora; Mrs. Mabel Crandall, lady assistant steward, and H. B. Derr, trustee.

The Time Comes to Pick the "Ten Best Pictures" of the Year, So It Is Done

Selections Are Based on Merit And Not Intake

By Nelson B. Bell.

As long ago as the waning days of November, it was remarked here that Mr. Jack Alicoate, a former member of the staff of this flourishing family journal and now editor of Film Daily, one of the important trade journals of the motion picture industry, had sent out his annual call to the dramatic desks of the Nation to get busy and make up their minds which were the ten best pictures released betwen the dates of November 1, 1933, and October 31, 1934.

So, futile gesture or not, here goes—and may the Lord have mercy on our soul!

In the more or less calm judgment of this column, the ten best of the past year were these:

1. Little Women.
2. The Barretts of Wimpole Street.
3. The House of Rothschild.
4. Dinner at Eight.
5. It Happened One Night.
6. One Night of Love.
7. Judge Priest.
8. The Thin Man.
9. Viva Villa.
10. What Every Woman Knows.

These, it seems to me, all were excellent pictures, distinguished by qualities that set them a bit apart from their approximately 500 eligible contemporaries, listed by Film Daily for the aid of its habitual, annual guessers, numbering 400 dramatic editors and motion picture critics scattered up and down the land.

Can't See Them All.

The futility of this enterprise lies in the fact that it is physically impossible for any single commentator upon the cinema to have seen all of the film releases from which he is asked to select the ten best—unless, of course, he dedicate his life to gazing uninterruptedly at the silver sheet and views, roughly, two pictures a day throughout the year, except Sundays.

There are, of course, numerous other titles that plead to be included in the first flight of ten—"Queen Christina," "Men in White," "Catherine the Great," "The Invisible Man," "One More River" and many, many more. All of these, however, strike this desk as falling just a shade short, for one reason or another, of deserving top ranking.

Although our choices were not primarily made with that end in view, the selections enumerated above represent a wide range of subject matter, embracing simple heart drama, romance, melodrama, comedy, music, historical drama and certain elements of farce.

We shall await the consensus of opinion of the Nation's observers of the celluloid theater with keen interest and no little impatience, but, you will be pained to learn, have no intention of holding our breath until it gets here.

Naturally, we hope to be somewhere up the running, but advise against laying any odds higher than 11 to 10!

Panjandrum Stephen E. Cochran, of the National Theater, left Washington last midnight to reopen a project that was popularly supposed to have died a natural death.

Mr. Cochran this morning is negotiating with Lee Shubert, in New York, for a lease on the Belasco Theater with a view to installing a night club such as the one with which Billy Rose startled New York when he established his fabulous Casino de Paree—with which, incidentally, he is no longer associated, I believe.

If satisfactory terms can be arranged, Mr. Cochran will toss a large crew of architects, engineers and artisans into the idle LaFayette square playhouse Monday morning with the idea in mind of staging the inaugural of his new club on New Year's Eve—which is a swell idea, even if it doesn't come off. At any rate, don't harbor the notion that old Uncle Steve isn't trying.

Time Will Tell!

In this week's issue of their newsmagazine, the editors of Time announce a new venture of interest to piceuregoers—a periodical series of motion newspictures to be called "The March of Time." The first release is scheduled for next month.

After protracted experimentation, which began last spring, it has been decided to start the series as a two-reel motion news picture, differing from the present newsreels in many major respects.

"The March of Time" will be a new kind of pictorial reporting of the news. It will begin where the newsreel camera leaves off, according to its sponsors, and by the use of background material, production footage and careful editing, will attempt to bring to the screen complete, continuous, coherent stories from the news of the day.

Each fast-moving, 20-minute picture will contain not only the news cameraman's most exciting shots, but will weld together the camera's product into vivid, significant portrayals of six or seven major events.

This should prove a welcome variation in a field of pictorial activity that now is largely repetitive. Who will book the series in Washington?

An old favorite will be exhumed to supply the framework of the overture arranged by Prof. Phil Lampkin for the new week, beginning today, at Loew's Fox Theater. Prof. Lampkin will conduct his gifted instrumentalists through a potpourri of airs from "La Gioconda," by Ponchielli, of which the familiar "Dance of the Hours" will constitute an important part. Four rising bows for the boys on this one—it never misses!

Guild Takes a Chance.

Casting is under way for "Both Your Houses," Maxwell Anderson's Pulitzer prize play of season before last, which the Drama Guild of Washington will present as the second production of its season in Wardman Park Theater the third week in January. Gerald Miller will direct the production.

This is by way of being an enterprise of some daring on the part of the Drama Guild, in that "Both Your Houses" is a stinging indictment of the lawmakers of the legislative branch of the United States Government. It has never been presented in the National Capital, either on the professional or amateur stage.

Author Applauds Daring.

When Mr. Anderson, the author, was in Washington recently keeping an anxious eye on his latest work, "Valley Forge," he commented upon this local production of his earlier play as a courageous undertaking in the very midst, so to speak, of the lawmaking bodies with which the play deals so caustically.

It will be recalled by those who follow such things that the principal role in the New York production of "Both Your Houses" was played by Walter C. Kelly, "the Virginia Judge" of vaudeville fame, who appeare' here a few weeks ago at the National in support of Fred Stone in Sinclair Lewis' "Jayhawker."

When Estelle Taylor comes to Loew's Fox Theater a week from today to headline the stage portion of the bill, it will be her first visit to the Captial in something over two years.

Her last appearance here, it will be remembered, was as a concert artiste on the same stage she once again will grace. Her "act" consisted wholly of singing ballads and the simpler standard compositions for voice, pitched within the range of her cultivated tones—which came as a distinct surprise to Washington, by reason of the fact that no one had ever suspected that Miss Taylor had a singing voice of concert caliber.

By now, it is increased in range, power and all other essential qualities. This is evidenced by the fact that Miss Taylor is soon to appear in a screen role that will afford her opportunity to sing, something she has never done, as yet, for the studio microphones.

A warm and gracious actress and a vocalist of rich endowments, Miss Taylor also is a grand person to know in her off-stage moments.

I-Wouldn't-Kid-You Note.

Of course, I was only spoofing about that Packard 12 for Christmas. Has anybody got a good scooter he doesn't want—or one roller skate? Well, how's about a street car token?

Oh, very well, I'll walk!

Straight From the Studios

Sequel Is to Be Made of "Sequoia," a Nature Film; Jan Kiepura Coming to Make One Film in June; Latest News and Gossip From Hollywood.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, Dec. 6.—"Sequoia" is to have a sequel. That's the latest word. And certainly there is no picture made this year which more deserves to have such a second edition of itself.

JOHN LODGE.

It is understood that Vance Hoyt is shortly to work on the original story with the film in mind, and that Chester Franklin will direct the picture. Also it is more than probable that Jean Parker and other members of the cast of "Sequoia" will reappear. Nor are the puma and the deer to be exceptions. Their history will be continued, although other animals will probably arrive in the spotlight simultaneously.

Hoyt, the writer, who dwells in Malibu, has quite an assemblage of animals, and he will choose his actors from among them.

Sport Writer's Daughter.

Florence Rice will very likely be a permanent addition to those rough-and-ready two-star stories in which Edmund Lowe appears.

Miss Rice played in "The Depths Below," with Jack Holt and Edmund Lowe. Then she went to Fox to appear in "East River," with Lowe and Victor McLaglen, and following this may again be seen with Holt and Lowe in "Two for One."

Miss Rice's father, Grantland Rice, is expected here about two days before Christmas, and will remain some two months, possibly appearing in a picture himself, although ostensibly he is coming West to cover the New Year's football game, the horse racing at Arcadia and to vacation.

Opera Star Coming Here.

Jan Kiepura, the opera star, is at last to come to Hollywood. Rumor declared that he would be playing opposite Mary Ellis in "Two on a Tower," but that is refuted by the facts. He is to arrive here in June, and will play in one production for Paramount. This may be any one of several musical features which are programmed.

Once Kiepura was named for the lead in "Blossom Time," at Universal, but the plan to produce that was abandoned. The actor-singer was starred in "Be Mine Tonight," and formerly was with the Chicago Opera.

Plans for Miss Michael.

Gertrude Michael has finished her rest cure, and she is now to play the feminine lead in "The Milky Way," with Jack Oakie and Roscoe Karns. She will lend the spell of romance to the picture, which will start in about two weeks under the direction of Edward Sedgwick.

While she was vacationing, Miss Michael spent some time at Soboba Hot Springs. Her last pictures before this rest, including "The Notorious Sophia Lang," "Menace" and "Father Brown, Detective," were made in fairly rapid succession, which necessitated the time off following them.

• • • •

Lodge, Venable and Temple.

John Lodge and Evelyn Venable, both former contract players at Paramount, are in "The Little Colonel," with Shirley Temple. They play the roles of husband and wife, the screen parents of the child star. Lodge just signed yesterday for his role. The other prominent member of the cast is Lionel Barrymore, as the disinheriting father of Miss Venable.

Lodge had to debate the matter of signing considerably, for the reason that he was offered the chance to go to New York to take the principal male part in "The Old Maid," a play by Zoe Akins, which Harry Moses is producing there with Helen Menken and Judith Anderson in the chief feminine parts. However, he decided that appearing with Miss Temple is no let-down from that, since she is one of the brightest luminaries of the movies today, and her pictures are assured of the widest sort of favor.

• • • •

Capra and Connolly.

As soon as he is out of the hospital, which, it is hoped, will be within the week, Frank Capra plans to go to Palm Springs, there to work on "Frisco Fury." It would appear that Walter Connolly is the actor who will be selected to appear in this picture.

New Numbers For Jolson.

Songs to be rendered by Al Jolson in "Go Into Your Dance," besides the title song, include "She's a Latin from Manhattan," "About a Quarter to Nine," "Casino de Paree" and "Whittling My Wood."

On top of this, Jolson has a new mammy number. "It's called "Mammy, I Want to Sing About You." He may do the Spanish "Cielito Lindo."

Picture Pageant In Review.

Barton McLane is considered a most acceptable candidate for the movies, following his appearance in "Black Fury." He has been given a long-term contract, and will next appear in "Go Into Your Dance."

Aloys Bohnen, portrait painter and setting designer for Florenz Ziegfeld and Shuberts, has been signed to do the art work on "The Last Days of Pompeii."

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

National Symphony Orchestra, Hans Kindler, conductor; Olga Averino, soloist. Constitution Hall, Thursday afternoon. Program: "Leonore" Overture No. 3 (Beethoven), "Traeume" (Wagner), "Canticum Fratris Solis" (Loeffler), Symphony No. 3, "Le Divin Poeme" (Skryabin).

Another vote of thanks and confidence should go to Hans Kindler for having given us the Skryabin symphony, and to the personnel of the orchestra for the excellent manner in which it was performed. Coming so soon after the fine reading of Sibelius' second symphony, yesterday's exposition of Skryabin's mystical idealism was additional evidence of the consistent advance of the orchestra toward its goal of perfection. Music lovers of Washington are at last hearing from their own musicians works of which they have long been deprived.

Dr. Kindler's choice among the symphonies of Skryabin was a wise one, for the third is the keystone of his compositions in this form, disclosing at their most advantageous point his personal qualities and the idiosyncrasies of his idiom. In this work one sees the most clearly his indebtedness to Liszt and Wagner, and the skill with which he utilized his borrowings, whether deliberate or unconscious does not matter, in the expression of his own ideas. The "Prometheus" is more arid and severe, and the "Poeme d'Extase" richer in harmony and warmer in emotion.

In the "Divine Poem" Skryabin attained his greatest clarity of eloquence; thereafter his utterances became less certain as his thinking became more nebulous and as he struggled desperately with instrumental limitations in his attempt to create a synthesis of stimuli that would appeal to all the senses at once. His grandiose conceptions eluded his efforts to confine them in forms intelligible to others.

The evolution of Skryabin from a romantic composer whose idol was Chopin to a philosophical dreamer of dreams for the liberation of the human spirit through identification with the divine is one than can be followed step by step, in his compositions. His weakness lay in his inability to execute systematically the enormous tasks that he set himself.

Because of this lack of coordination, the quality of genius in him shows only in flashes of intuition. These glimpses of eternal verities are many in his third symphony, which has spiritual rewards for those who listen for them. Stronger even than its tremendous emotional appeal is its insistence upon the divine element in man. As time passes, this symphony will probably take its rank as the composer's masterpiece.

At the opposite pole from the frenetic Skryabin is gentle St. Francis of Assisi, whose "Song of Brother Son" forms the text for Charles Martin Loeffler's lovely setting, imbued with tenderness and the ecstacy of altruism. Mr. Loeffler is a mystic also, and his music has the inner glow that bespeaks the contemplative life. Mme. Olga Averino sang the hymn of praise with fervor, intoning its measures in a clear, admirably controlled voice. The audience expressed its approval with applause that brought her back to the stage several times.

To the Beethoven and Wagner items the orchestra accorded highly sensitive treatment. The readings were nicely balanced in dynamics and the tonal nuances were shaded to a degree.

Blaze Destroys Roof Of Elevator Motor Shed

The roof of the shed housing the middle elevator motor in the old Bureau of Printing and Engraving, at Fourteenth and B streets southwest, burned away yesterday afternoon.

All afternoon laborers had been stripping away the asphalt of the yard in front of the western section of the building, preparing to repave it. Firemen theorized that a flying spark set aflame the wooden temporary covering of the glass-topped roof.

Funeral Rites Today For George E. Gilbert

Chambersburg, Pa., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for George E. Gilbert, 73, clothier here for 30 years, who was found dead in his store last evening. Dr. A. W. Thrush, coroner, attributed death to a heart attack. Mr. Gilbert's body was found by his granddaughter, Mary Jane Gilbert.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. T. M. West, of Waynesboro, and three brothers, J. Warren Gilbert, Harry C. Gilbert and Benton D. Gilbert, all of Gettysburg.

Peanut Oil Payment Offered by Wallace

Secretary Wallace announced yesterday an optional offer to make payments of $18 per ton to manufacturers of peanut oil who purchase farmers' stocks of Virginia type peanuts and divert them from normal commercial channels into oil, the Associated Press reported.

To obtain such payments, manufacturers must purchase peanuts during the period from November 21, 1934, to December 31, 1934, and must manufacture them into oil during the period November 27 to April 30, 1935.

Crash Fatal to Two; Truck Drivers Held

Victims Allegedly Drove Car Into Vehicle.

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—J. R. Brown, 25, and Lewis Flanders, 42, drivers of a truck which early this morning caused the death of two Negroes, were jailed today on technical charges of manslaughter.

The Negroes killed were Sam Gilling, New York, and Frank Leake, Wilmington, N. C. Leake's brother Bruce, was seriously injured and was taken to the Mary Washington Hospital.

The Negroes assertedly drove their auotmobile into the truck, which had been disabled and was parked on the Richmond-Washington highway. State Patrolman Sam Redding said he found a quantity of liquor in the Negroes' car. Hearing for Brown and Flanders was postponed pending the results of a coroner's inquest tomorrow. They will be arraigned before Trial Justice H. L. Chichester.

Forty and Eight Host.

Leonardtown, Md., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Forty and Eight Club of St. Marys County will be host to the State organization at initiation ceremonies here at the new firehouse Saturday and an oyster scald on Sunday at Camp Calvert, on Breton's Bay.

Circuit Court Bolsters Drive Upon Rackets

Year in Jail, $1,000 Fine Imposed on Numbers Game Runner.

In conformity with his charge to the county grand jury recently in which he promised to aid in keeping Montgomery County clean of rackets, Judge Charles W. Woodward yesterday imposed a fine of $1,000 and one year in jail on a numbers game runner in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md.

The judge said he considered this the beginning of the campaign against rackets and he wanted it understood his court was going to back up the police to the limit by imposing severe sentences.

The defendant, Richard Stewart, colored, said to have been runner for a Washington numbers game operator, was arrested several months ago in Bethesda, Md., by County Policeman Thomas DeNell. He was found guilty in county police court and sentenced to pay a fine of $250 and serve a year in the House of Correction. He appealed the sentence to the circuit court.

Stewart was found guilty in circuit court yesterday.

The judge in his charge to the grand jury pointed out that it usually occurs that racketeers who are driven from large cities by the sort of campaign being waged in Washington resort to nearby territories, and told the jury to be especially alert to ascertain if racketeering was getting a foothold in the county.

Man Denies Knowing Money Was Counterfeit

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 6 (AP).—William H. Mullens, about 50, went on trial in United States District Court here today on an indictment of passing and possessing counterfeit $5 and $10 bills in the Lynchburg area in October.

After hearing Mullens' denials that he knew the money was counterfeit and his statements contradicting testimony of Federal agents, Judge John Paul adjourned court until tomorrow morning. The first defense witness who preceded Mullens to the stand admitted he had been drinking and was not in the proper mental condition to testify.

Witthoeft Host at Tea; 200 Attend

German Naval Attache Entertains at the Mayflower.

Diplomatic, Army, Navy and Resident Sets Represented.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The Naval Attache of the German Embassy, Capt. Robert Witthoeft, entertained at a large reception and tea yesterday afternoon in the Chinese room of the Mayflower, where more than 200 members of the Diplomatic Corps, Army and Navy and resident society met to enjoy the genial hospitality of their host.

Capt. Witthoeft is one of the most popular bachelors now stationed in the Capital and, besides the delightful receptions at which he frequently entertains, most often in the Mayflower, he gives charming small dinners at his house in Foxhall Village where groups of attractive members of the younger set gather for a pleasant evening.

The Chinese room was decorated with huge masses of white chrysanthemums and red roses, and on the buffet at one end of the room was a magnificent basket of the same flowers with sprays of white Easter lilies. Silver candelabra held black, red and white tapers, the colors of the German flag.

Good cheer and conviviality were the outstanding note of the party, for most of the guests were old friends, and the conversation was bright and easy.

Mrs. Standley Among Guests.

Mrs. William H. Standley, wife of the chief of naval operations, was there in a smart black outfit, chatting with the Ambassador of Germany, Dr. Hans Luther, who was being questioned on all sides as to whether or not his son-in-law and daughter, Herr and Frau Gerrit von Haeften were coming to the Capital from their home in New York to pass the Christmas holidays. And nearby was the Third Secretary of the Embassy, Herr Gustav Struve, whose engagement to a young girl from Honolulu whom he met in California two years ago was prematurely announced this week. Herr Struve is still a bit annoyed because the news of his forthcoming marriage leaked out before Christmas Day, when the young couple planned to announce it, but is still chuckling over the fact that the papers did not get her name correctly, and that the plans for the wedding and subsequent trip have been so far kept secret.

Frau Koerner, who is a familiar figure in Washington society since she came here more than a year ago with her husband, Prof. Edmund Koerner, and the two young daughters of the Ambassador, was there. Frau Koerner, in a gown of black taffeta with a wide-brimmed hat, was deep in conversation with Frau von Boetticher, wife of the Military Attache of the Embassy.

Mrs. Walker Is Back.

Mrs. E. R. Finkenstaedt and her sister, Mrs. Harold Walker, were among the guests, the former in a dark green ensemble, the latter in black. Mrs. Walker recently returned to Washington after passing several years at her home on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and in New York, and only brief visits here. She has taken an apartment at the Hay Adams House, where she will be joined shortly by her daughter, the lovely Evie Walker, who flits in and out of town with a rapidity that keeps her friends in a whirl.

The new Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy and Marchesa Sant' Orsola arrived with the Air Attache of the Embassy, Commander Paolo Shernadori, who is leaving next month for Rome. From the Soviet Embassy there were the giant Military Attache, Gen. Vladimir Burzin, and the jolly red-haired Naval Attache, Admiral Paul Oras. Great Britain's Naval Attache, Capt. Dewar, was there, and France's Naval Attache and Mme. Sable, the latter couple having recently moved from their home in Chevy Chase to the house of Mrs. Henry Flather, in Georgetown.

Mrs. Vidal in Smart Gown.

Miss Betsy Dern and Mrs. Harry Baxter, daughters of the Secretary of War and Mrs. George H. Dern, were the center of an animated group of attractive guests, and nearby, pretty Mrs. Eugene Vidal, wife of the Director of Air Commerce, in a smart gown of black crepe trimmed with white, was chattering with the First Secretary of the German Embassy, Dr. Ernst Meyer.

Others glimpsed in the crowd were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Maj. and Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. Celeste Crosby Miller, the Secretary of the Turkish Embassy, Mr. Ibrahim Seyfullah; the Second Secretary of the French Embassy, Mr. Claude de Boisanger; the Secretary of the Swiss Legation, Mr. Schlotter; Mrs. William T. Mann, in black trimmed with silver fox; Brig. Gen. William E. Horton, the Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy and Mrs. H. O. Chalkley, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Dion Williams, Baron and Baroness von Pagenhart, Baroness von Below and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Droop.

Louise P. Alexander To Make Bow Dec. 14

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Renick Alexander and Capt. and Mrs. Stephen Clegg Rowan have issued invitations for a reception December 14, from 4:30 to 7 p. m., at which they will present their daughter, Miss Louise Piquette Alexander, and Miss Elizabeth Hamilton Rowan to society at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander on New Hampshire avenue.

Social Register For Capital Is Out

Lists Names and Addresses of Former Debutantes.

The Washington Social Register for 1935 is off the press. Marriages have had a new lease on life and the number of persons married has increased from 113 last year to 143 this year, the same figure as was recorded in the 1933 edition. Deaths have dropped from 110 in the previous editions to 86, of which 44 were women and 2 men, a much more normal proportion than the 38 women and 72 men last year.

The Social Register continues to be bound in the same black and red cover with the same typographical make-up that it has had since 1887. Full names and addresses of members of families are grouped to show family relationship and designations of clubs and societies to which they belong are added. Girls from 12 to 17 and boys from 14 to 20 are listed as juniors. In the back is a list from which it is possible to obtain the present name and residence of former debutantes. The locater lists in alphabetical order all the names appearing in the various social registers and designates the city and family grouping where they may be found.

Military Pageant Is Assuming Shape

New Fort Myer Riding Hall to Be Scene of Show.

The Fort Myer military pageant to inaugurate the new Riding Hall January 12 is assuming the proportions of a spectacular presentation, and Col. Kenyon Joyce, commanding officer of the post, and Lieut. Col. George S. Patton, jr., director, are considering details of the program, it was announced yesterday.

The hall, built to replace the one destroyed by fire last spring, will afford spectators the opportunity to see all features of exhibition as its construction permits a clear view from every one of the 1,500 seats.

Deb's Diary

Who, What and Where —as She Sees It.

DEAR DIARY:

Mary Win Brown says that ever since the Black and White Ball she simply doesn't like even to hear about silver. First it was silver locks (not the kind on doors), then this and that of the same metal, finally the climax was reached the other day when a stranger arrived on the Brown doorstep and inquired about fish of the same color. Mary Win still is a bit puzzled about it all because, to the best of her knowledge, the only fish her house boasts are on the gold standard and are quite well and healthy.

Mary Fechet seems to have been a pioneer in the field of girls in the military world. Some one was wondering yesterday whether or not Kay Pearson and Betty Cremen weren't following along the same path. At any rate they both are quite uniform in their activities, wear frocks shot with gold and adore reconnaisance tours of fortifications.

Speaking of things pertaining to the Army, weren't we all surprised and delighted the other night to glimpse Mary Henry dancing at the Mayflower. She was smartly attired in black crepe and it seemed like pre-Knox days to have her with us again.

Louise Myers To Make Bow At Tea Today

Parents of Debutante to Entertain at Home on S Street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hewitt Myers will entertain at a tea and reception this afternoon from 4 until 7 o'clock in their home on S street when they will present their daughter, Miss Louise Chase Myers, to society.

The debutante will wear a gown of lavender bagheera velvet fashioned on long lines with sleeves formed of soft loops of the same material. She will carry a sheaf of yellow roses. Mrs. Myers, who will receive with her daughter, will wear a black velvet tunic gown with gold sleeves.

Assisting Miss Myers will be Miss Ruth Sowers, Miss Ruth Ellen Totten, Miss Stellita Stapleton, Miss Marianna Dunn, Miss Valerie Prochnik, Miss Diane Rowland and Miss Mary Hewitt Myers, sister of the debutante.

At the tea table will be Mrs. Thomas Claytor, Mrs. John Hill, Mrs. William Barrett Ridgeley, Mrs. John L. Dryden, Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, Mrs. Thomas H. B. McKnight, Mrs. Ord Preston, and Mrs. Wilson Brown.

Lieut. Roy W. Conkey and Mrs. Conkey have arrived at the Martinique from Lakehurst, N. J., for an indefinite stay.

Maternity DRESS---

Sizes 14 to 20

—A far cry from the usual maternity dress with its two thicknesses of fabric in front. This dress has but one—the underneath skirt has an oval cut-out held together by tapes that tie at the waistline—thereby making one look flatter and slimmer. The dress slips over the head and the weight is on the shoulders, not at the waistline. It's not only a thoroughly comfortable dress, but very smart as well!

Colors are Green, Black and Brown.

Doll House, Only Two Feet Tall, Is Built Exactly to Scale in Every Detail

Marsden Family Aids Maginnis In Undertaking

This Ingeniously Constructed Home Has Miniature Furnishings.

Like Alice, who swallowed the cake, the adult feels like a giant before a house only two feet tall. In the case of most doll houses, the illusion is imperfect—details are incorrect. But when a British manor shrinks, and its furnishings shrink to scale, one almost believes in Alice's cake again.

This is the fifth of a series of articles on dolls.

By Katherine Smith.

WHEN THE INTEREST of an entire family, plus the knowledge and patience of an architect are combined, a model house, perfect in every detail, is the result. This is what happened in the Marsden family, when E. A. Maginnis drew plans and made a Lilliputian palace.

Mr. Maginnis' workshop is the Marsden garage. His materials are anything he can lay his hands on and his apprentices are the Marsden children. His business partner is Mrs. Roger Marsden herself, who helps with the interior decoration.

The house pictured is an English type mansion, with wainscoting, beamed ceilings, turrets and coat of arms on the windows. Little frosted bulbs light the entrance, a tiny lantern hangs at the door, the door knob turns and leads into the entrance hall, from which the tiny occupant might walk into one of the loveliest living rooms ever designed.

But, to start with the house-itself, Mr. Maginnis explains, "It's built exactly to scale in every detail. All the walls are wood and double to accommodate the 150 feet of wiring in the house. The stucco is fine sandpaper, the window glass is isinglass, painted to get the casement effect.

Several Coats of Paint.

"We had a terrible time getting the wood to look like stone. Betty (the older Marsden daughter) painted them, under my supervision, laying the paint thick, in several coats. The colors had to be put on carefully too, to give the studied careless look." Some of these stones were painted gray, varnish was dropped on while the paint was still wet, blown upon to look like the fine dark veins in stone. They were rubbed with alcohol to dull them because, as Betty explains, "stone isn't shiny."

The house is constructed ingeniously. One door handle is the end of a key, stair rails are medical swabs, chair seats are wood paddles that doctors use to hold down a patient's tongue. In the living room is a piano, with a music box inside, the ceiling is high, peaked, and beamed. The English fireplace has a hand-carved mantle, with the coat of arms, a motto and the date, 1934, on it.

Tiny andirons bear the same coat of arms. A long, comfortable sofa stands before wide casement windows. Looking into the room, from the removed wall, one almost expects to see a four-inch occupant come in, pour a cup of tea and nibble on a scone.

Bedrooms Upstairs.

Upstairs are the bedrooms, a tiny powder room with a big wall mirror (originally in a lady's pocketbook). Closets are equipped with wire hangers, a little over an inch long. Cedar chests (10-cent store ones finished in mahogany stain) stand at the foot of the hand-made poster beds. Wool coverlets look snug, warm and luxurious.

This English dwelling is just completed; there is another house, white with green shutters, that is smaller, less pretentious but none the less fascinating. The shutters can be unhinged and removed, and curtain rods are removable. A tile walk is made of pieces of colored cardboard, carefully cut to resemble stones and fitted together. One tree is a twig, with goldenrod pasted on the upper "limbs," the whole sprayed with green paint. Box clumps are sponges, painted green.

A living room lamp shade is a bicycle reflector, inverted over a tiny bulb. The table to which it is attached is the shank and one end of a wooden spool. The whole, table and lamp, plugs into the floor, the wiring runs up the center of the table to the lamp.

Tiny Pictures on Walls.

At the fireplace in the white house is a set of fixtures, poker, shovel and stand, all made by Mr. Maginnis. At the kitchen sink are spigots that turn. "No, the water won't run out of them," says Mrs. Marsden, smiling. Tiny framed pictures hang on the walls, one scene was varnished to give it an antique look.

The upstairs bedroom rug is a scrap of monkscloth for a rug, cleverly fringed at the edges. An antinque four-poster bed is covered with a patchwork quilt made by a younger Marsden.

But, as Mrs. Marsden says, "These are not doll houses. They are model homes—everything to scale."

They fool you, these homes. You wonder how the original dwelling had shrunk so perfectly. You wonder why no figures move from door to chair, you wonder why no smell of beefsteak issues from the immaculate kitchen. Like Alice, growing inside the rabbit's house, you feel huge, awkward, giant-like and intruding. You blink, stare, admire and realize that, after all, Alice was only dreaming and you are not.

"Yes, we need a family of dolls to go in the houses," says Mrs. Marsden. "But we can't get them. Those character dolls, from grandfather to baby, used to be made in Germany, but aren't available now. I'd give anything for a set."

Tomorrow—Nationalistic dolls.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: As one of the fortunate persons present at the party at the Shoreham Hotel on Thanksgiving evening, it was very amusing to read Mary Smith's discussion of the idea of attempting to help lonesome people, in your column last Sunday. You may recall she ended her dissertation: "Imagine a dinner with a lot of lonesome people as guests. My God!"

• • • •

This criticism of the idea and spirit which resulted in the strangers' dinner at the Shoreham on Thanksgiving is misleading, unreasonable and unfair.

• • • •

In the first place, the Shoreham Hotel is not noted as a gathering place for "pests" and "morons," and —so far as this writer knows—has no ambition to entertain a menagerie of queer people or to compete with the zoo. The entire group of guests seen in the hotel Thanksgiving evening, including the strangers' party, seemed to be a representative group of cultured American citizens seeking an evening's entertainment, with each contributing his part toward making the evening a pleasant one.

• • • •

It was interesting to observe that the individuals making up the strangers' party compared favorably in intelligence, appearance and conduct with other units in the large company gathered at the Shoreham for the evening's diversion. Nor did I find any member of the strangers' party objectionable either, on any of the grounds enumerated by Miss Smith as characteristic of lonesome persons, or for any other reason.

• • • •

Sponsores of the strangers' dinner gave no indication through the press or otherwise of wishing to arrogate the duties, or supplement the efforts, of any of Washington's charitable or welfare organizations, mental hospitals, or asylums for the homeless or aged; nor did they give any of the guests responding to the invitation, reason to feel that any form of charity was contemplated or offered.

• • • •

In the lovely spirit of hospitality and good fellowship so prevalent among cultured, intelligent, broad-minded American citizens, they were willing to devote an evening unselfishly to dispensing hospitality to socially acceptable strangers in Washington. There was no "brooding;" no "fretting;" no "pining," and no one seemed "bored."

• • • •

It may be that Mary Smith's lack of success in helping lonesome persons was not the fault of those "lonesome souls." After reading her criticism, one might well exclaim, if one wished to retaliate in kind, "Imagine a dinner with the hostess in a frame of mind which would prompt such criticism of guests."

• • • •

There are few people, if any, who will fail to respond with a show of appreciation to any manifestation of unselfish hospitality or friendship." One philosopher said, "We can never hope to succeed at anything until we learn to look within for the cause of every failure."

STRANGER.

And Yet You Agree.

DEAR STRANGER: In saying, "We can never hope to succeed at anything until we learn to look within for the cause of every failure," I believe you made exactly the same point Mary Smith was striving to make in her letter of last Sunday.

Her criticism, while forthright to the extent of seeming almost brutal, had the virtue of scoring self-pity, often called the most ignoble of human emotions, and one in which too many lonely persons are apt to indulge to their social detriment.

• • • •

I am sure your comments on the success of the Strangers' Dinner will be of interest to many who failed to attend, but who have maintained a lively and sympathetic curiosity with regard to the project.

Social Service Waste, Says Woman Leader

Workers Should Get at Root of Evils, in Opinion of Anna Lord Strauss, Secretary of National League of Women Voters.

SOCIAL service is a waste of time, acting only as a sedative on individuals contacted instead of remedying conditions responsible for their troubles, Anna Lord Strauss, of New York, is convinced.

"If the persons doing social work would only spend as much time and energy in getting down to the roots of things; if they would only get behind legislation and custom, righting basic wrongs, then we might make some progress," Miss Strauss declared yesterday. She is in Washington to attend a board meeting of the National League of Women Voters, which began yesterday and will continue through today.

Miss Strauss' estimate of the value of social service was made after she had spent considerable time studying industrial and economic prbolems, especially as they affect women. She believes every State would do well to have a minimum wage law; that women in industry would derive more harm than benefit from the proposed equal rights bill; that women should have as much right as men to work at night.

"Remember those are my personal opinions, not the legaue's," she explained.

Probed New York Laundries.

Her study of industrial problems led her to investigate laundries in New York State. She learned that before the minimum wage law became mandatory last July, women employed in laundries earned such low salaries as $4.50, $6 and $7 a week. Often they were required to work 13 or 14 hours at a stretch when business was at its peak the first two or three days of each week.

"The employers deplored those conditions just as much as the employes," Miss Strauss said. "But since there was no organization among the laundries, cut-throat competition was the rule, and every owner had to keep prices low and work his people overtime when business demanded it. And since most families sent their washing on Monday or Tuesday, business was always rushing on those days.

"But now the laundries are organized. They are putting on a campaign to induce housewives to send their washing at different times instead of always at the beginning of the week. The employes are working 40 hours a week and are earning from $11.50 to $12.40.

Next to laundries, restaurants present the greatest problem for women in industry, Miss Strauss believes. Instead of paying waitresses low wages and letting them depend largely on tips for their living, she thinks the only way out is for all restaurants to add a 10 per cent service charge to each check, giving the 10 per cent to the employe.

Little Chance to Advance.

The woman who works in a factory, laundry or restaurant has little chance to advance, Miss Strauss admitted.

"Girls in industry begin working at an early age and from then on it is a struggle to exist," she said. "They have no extra money for outside study. Most of them have to live at home in order to live at all. This means their environment is seldom conducive to progress. They live pretty much from day to day. Out of their small salaries they can't hope to save anything for retirement.

"Just now employers of industrial workers undoubtedly favor men," she said. "It's even easier for a single man than a woman supporting a family to get a job. But after the men are absorbed, the women will gradually come into their own."

Miss Strauss, in addition to serving the League of Women Voters as secretary, is a member of the Cosmopolitan Club, the Junior League, the Women's City Club and the Town Hall, all of New York. For six years she was with Century Magazine.

Social service is a waste of time in the opinion of Anna Lord Strauss, above. Instead of giving temporary relief to individuals, Miss Strauss believes social service workers should try to remedy conditions that create the problems.

Mrs. Stafford To Give First Lecture Here

Daughter of Admiral Peary to Review Her Book at Meeting Today.

Mrs. Stafford will review her book, "The Snowbaby's Own Story," which relates her childhood experiences in Greenland, and also tells of the erection of the memorial there to her distinguished father.

Mrs. Edgar B. Meritt, general federation director, will introduce Mrs. Stafford. The program will be given for the benefit of the General Federation Headquarters Library.

Assisting Mrs. Meritt will be Mrs. Horton H. McKeever, Mrs. John Holman Brittain, Mrs. Elliott F. Brumgaugh, Mrs. James H. Matthews, jr., Mrs. Roland Williams, Mrs. Richard Williams, Miss Marion Williams, Mrs. Walter Brake, Mrs. Lloyd W. Biddle, Mrs. Henry Fenno Sawtelle, Mrs. William Boss, Mrs. Augustine B. McManus, Mrs. Charles H. Bair, Mrs. Stanley H. Beasley, Mrs. Ruth H. Snodgrass and Mrs. Helen Morrison Hunter.

After the review, tea will be served and a program of music will be given by Marie C. Deal, concert soprano, and William Moran, tenor, accompanied at the piano by Elsie Harvey Weaver.

Nebraskans to Dance.

NEBRASKANS now resident in the District of Columbia will hold their annual fall party and dance at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the gold room of the Lee House.

Honor guests will be Nebraska's newly elected Senator for the short term and Mrs. Richard C. Hunter. Others who are expected to attend include Secretary of War and Mrs. George H. Dern, Special Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thomas Lanigan, Judge and Mrs. J. J. Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Fleharty.

School Benefit Dance.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL and Mrs. Joseph B. Keenan head the list of patrons and patronesses for the dance of the Young People's Club of the Blessed Sacrament Church to be given tonight at the Kennedy-Warren. This is the annual social event of the club and will be held for the benefit of the Blessed Sacrament School.

Other patrons and patronesses are: The Rev. Thomas G. Smyth, the Rev. Thomas J. Crowley, Dr. and Mrs. Stephen L. DeBurr, Edward Costigan, William H. Donovan, Frank Pierce, Joseph Garry, Michael M. Mrs. Everett Burroughs Hickerson will speak on the weekly "Among Women" program sponsored by the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs at 1:15 o'clock today from station WRC.

Mrs. Hickerson will discuss Gertrude Stein and her new book "Portraits and Prayers." Mrs. George Oliver Gillingham will introduce Mrs. Hickerson to the radio audience.

These programs are in charge of Mrs. Helen Morrison Hunter.

Mrs. Harold C. Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, will be the guest of honor at the meeting of the Washington Alumnae Club of Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa., today at the home of its president, Mrs. Charles W. Kutz.

Miss Enid Esseme, of Norfolk, England, will give a talk on "Christmas Customs in England" at the tea of the Faculty Women's Club of American University at 3 o'clock today at the graduate school, 1901 F street northwest.

Proper Sleep Posture Curbs Neck Wrinkles

By Frances Mangum.

SUPPOSE some one told you that you only cared for half your face. You'd say it was utterly ridiculous and you'd plead not guilty without hesitation.

But suppose it is true? Hundreds of women are guilty without knowing it. You see, beauticians regard your face and neck as one. You never hear of women caring for their necks and not their faces, but you hear of them caring for their faces and not their necks. As a result there are about twice as many old necks as there are old faces, and half of these are old 10, or 20 years too soon.

Neck Being Neglected.

This season the neck is coming in for less care than usual because of the high neck lines. After a woman is dressed, she hesitates to apply a protective lotion or powder to her neck for fear of messing up her dress. It only takes 10 seconds to put a towel around your neck and only about 20 seconds to "make it up." And those 30 seconds makes your neck look many years younger.

Many women complain of the tiny dark lines in their neck and wonder what makes them. There are three reasons. First, if you have lost weight rather rapidly the lines are likely to appear. Use a good tightening cream and astringent and they'll disappear gradually. Next, if you have very dry skin on your neck, there might be lines. In that case, never fail to use a good nourishing cream every night and morning. The third reason is neglect. When you come home in the evening and prepare for bed, you probably remove the make-up from your face, but what about your neck? And then you go to bed and perhaps sleep on a pillow, which is responsible for folding the skin on your neck into dozens of fine creases.

Sleep With Head Held Up.

Erase those lines and prevent others by scrupulously cleansing your neck every night, and by sleeping with your head held up, not turned down. A pillow, the cause of neck creases, is for the most part habit. Try doing without one.

LUXURY

By MARYSE RUTLEDGE.

"I KNEW she was up to some deviltry," Ollie muttered. "I wouldn't go to the dinner. I told her so. I waited for her to come back to the hotel. I had only to look at her to know something had happened. Gee, Lynn——" In spite of his solid, middle-aged body, he looked almost young for a moment in his wistfulness. I never could make it out—you and Glazanoff——"

Going to Leave Her.

"Well?" In her impatience, Jocelyn laid her hand on his arm. She couldn't help the quick satisfaction that rushed color to her face. Rita had been such a little beast!

"If she hadn't done that to you, I might have believed her. That's the funny part of it. If she hadn't been so afraid——' Ollie turned away. "I used to love Rita," he said brokenly.

Poor old Ollie! To her surprise, Jocelyn found her eyes full of tears. "I'm sorry," she said gently.

He lit a cigarette with shaky hands. "Rita loves only herself. She'd break anything, anyone, to get what she wants. I guess I've known that a long time. Not that I'm any saint——" His chin sank forward. "But we might have made a go of it if she hadn't been so greedy. Well, this is the time she's gone too far——"

"You don't mean——?" Jocelyn gasped. "Oh, Ollie, I'd hate to think that because of anything to do with me——"

Ollie turned savagely. "It isn't you. It's that my wife—my wife—could be capable of such things. Yep, I'm quitting. Rita goes to the Lido alone. I'll still be a—checkbook. But I don't live with her. And let her explain that away, if she can."

"But you, Ollie—what will you do?" Jocelyn felt helpless.

"I'll be all right." Ollie straightened his shoulders with a forlorn attempt at his old jauntiness. "Got plenty of clubs and places. By the way—heard about Carrie?" "She's gone off to Bucharest with some other friend."

A stale disguest held Jocelyn motionless. Somehow, it all seemed so small, stupid and cheap. Everything. Everyone. The Carries and Ritas of the world, each in their way clinging to some idea of safety. And even a love like her and Dick's cracking under the first strain, the first test of faith.

Ollie stood in front of her. "Look here, Lynn, I want you to understand what I'm going to say. You've been decent all through this. And you've been a darned good friend of mine." He looked up a little awkwardly at the clear cut of her face. "I don't know what you're planning to do, but I want you to let me help you. I know how proud you are," he plunged on under the steady brown of her eyes, "but Lynn, what's a little money among real friends?"

"Thanks, Ollie." Two spots of color flamed in Jocelyn's cheeks. She hadn't known, herself, what effect all this had had upon her until she spoke. "I shan't need anything," she said. "I'm leaving tomorrow for a trip around the world on Ogden Temple's yacht."

Jocelyn's words echoed strangely through the little pension room on that hot July morning. They took form, thrusting back the stained green walls to let in images of glamorous places, foreign lands, the romance of a white yacht sailing on blue seas.

"Say that again, Lynn!" Ollie Keene's flush deepened.

"I am going around the world on Ogden Temple's yacht." Jocelyn said it again, braced slim and girlish in her sandals and white dressing gown.

"You are not." His violence filled the room.

Suddenly, hysterically, Jocelyn began to laugh. "Oh, it's too funny!" she cried. "Thanks to Rita I've lost the last shred of my reputation. Dick, my husband, the only man I've ever loved, has left me. And there's another woman in New York you don't know about. I have no money, no place to go. And you come here and dictate to me."

Ollie pushed his head forward, his lip protruding. "If you do that, Lynn, I'll never believe in any decent woman again. Go back to that husband of yours—If he has a grain of sense he'll take you back."

Lynn Was Hopeless.

"He won't. I can't." Jocelyn's throat choked.

"Look here, Lynn——" Ollie gripped her arm. The flabby lines of cheeks tightened. "I feel a responsibility for this. You came over here with us——"

"Yes—and it's my fault, in a way, if you've left Rita." Jocelyn was near to tears.

"Never mind that," Ollie said grimly. "Rita had it coming to her. I'll still be the ol' check book," he grimaced. "But one check I'll be glad to sign, goes to you. I've plenty of money. Lynn, give yourself a break."

"I don't know what to do," Jocelyn faltered. It had seemed so clear and simple a moment ago. Just getting away from everything, everyone, sailing off somewhere——"

"You're leaving tomorrow on the Champlain—that's what you're doing," Ollie said crisply. An Ollie she had never known. "I'll wait downstairs while you get some clothes on. We're going to buy your passage. And if when you get home, you don't like it, you'll find the yacht waiting!" He stood in the door looking back, a thickset, middle-aged man with a twisted smile. "I guess you'll never know what you mean to me, Lynn."

A Mad Plan.

It was mad, it was dizzy. Jocelyn felt like a leaf among winds over which she had no further control. From the moment Ollie took hold, the hours telescoped into each other. He wouldn't let her see Ogden Temple again. She knew now she didn't want to. Was afraid to.

"I can't do this to him," Jocelyn protested. "He's too splendid a person, Ollie. It seems so cowardly."

"Better than running away with him," this new Ollie snapped. "Write him. I'll see that he gets it."

As in a dream, numb from an utter exhaustion of nerves, Jocelyn moved through the last hours in France. Ollie went to Havre with her.

"Will you kiss me, Lynn?" Mary Derby had asked Dick to kiss her when Dick sailed for Paris. And now Ollie and Jocelyn. She kissed him.

Tears came again to her eyes as she stood on the deck of the Champlain, looking back at him on the Havre docks. Her only friend. A dreadful loneliness to that dapper figure with the white carnation in his buttonhole, pouches under his eyes and those thready purple lines webbing his cheeks.

"You'll see me soon," he shouted.

Haunting Memories.

She thought, with a catch at her heart, of the Ile de France that had drawn her away from her home, from Dick. What a different Jocelyn she had been then! The pictures came and went endlessly—may Derby fastening the pearls around her neck—Dick straining her to his heart, where she should have stayed.

Once more Jocelyn fought the ghosts of memory. Carrie Franks, metallic, brittle in her fury, snatching at the pearls. The string snapping—half of the pearls falling into the sea. Rita's deep blue velvety eyes in her small white face—Rita, black and white as a swan—as smooth—with her treacherous greedy soul that had overreached itself.

Ogden Temple's huge figure moved across the screen. The black velvet room of jewels, the violins playing to the slpash of fountains in his formal garden. The figure of Faith she had posed for, crowned with stars, garlanded with flowers in the rich mantle of plenty. So far away already——

Farthest away of all was Dick. "She's got him—oh, she must have got him!" And Jocelyn hardened as she thought of Mary Derby with her pointed little face, her pale blue eyes, patiently planning, waiting for what had come.

A Great Surprise.

As the great ship drew near to the skyline, Jocelyn hid in her cabin, rigid against the pain that was growing more frightful as she realized what she was coming back to. Oh, why had she ever listened to Ollie!

Gulls dipped in the hot summer sky. The thump and thud of feet and scrape of chairs on the decks grated on her nerves with the stop of engines that was like a voice thundering the end of the trip. She didn't hear the knock at her cabin door. Listlessly she looked up as it opened. Then, tense on her feet, she stared at the huge figure that blocked the threshold. It couldn't be Temple

"Have I gone mad?" she said aloud.

"Not in the least. I came on with the pilot. When I got your letter I caught a faster boat, which docked last night." His eyes burned blue under his shaggy brows. "Do you think I give up so easily?"

Menu Can Be Varied by Meatless Meal; Macaroni and Cheese Ideal Substitute

Substitute a casserole of macaroni and cheese for potatoes and meat for an economical dinner. Add a spicy vegetable to contrast with the blandness of this dish and a green vegetable to give the menu color.

Suggestion for Saturday Dinner Tempting and Economical.

By Dorothea Duncan.

SATURDAY dinner in many homes is an unusual meal. Many housewives feel that the Saturday dinner should be especially economical because the Sunday menu is so often elaborate. If this is the arrangement in your household, why not plan to use a meat substitute for the Saturday dinner?

A meatless meal now and then will lend a bit of variety to your menus. If you plan a tempting dish to take the place of the most costly item of the meal, you will find that it will be just as popular as the missing dish and a great deal less expensive.

Macaroni and cheese will be ideal for two reasons. The cheese and the milk will be perfect substitutes for the lacking meat, and the macaroni will serve as a change from the ever-present potato. A spicy vegetable adds a piquant touch to the rather bland macaroni and cheese combination, and a green vegetable will help give the meal color.

The Saturday dinner menu included in the suggested menus has been planned to carry out the above suggestions.

Saturday Dinner.

Hot tomato juice cocktail
Macaroni and cheese
Spiced red cabbage
Buttered peas
Banana and nut salad with mayonnaise
Coconut biscuits
Tea Milk (for children)

Sunday Breakfast

Fried apples Crisp bacon
Fruit bran muffins with butter

Spiced Red Cabbage.

4 cups red cabbage, sliced and soaked 20 minutes in cold water
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
Few grains nutmeg
Few grain cayenne
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ teaspoon sugar

Cook cabbage covered, with other ingredients, except vinegar and sugar, until tender. Add vinegar and sugar. Cook five minutes.

Veal Birds.

1 slice of veal from leg (cut as thinly as possible)

Spiced Red Cabbage and Buttered Peas Solve Vegetable Question.

1-inch cube salt pork, finely chopped
Fine cracker crumbs
1 egg, slightly beaten
Hot water or stock
Butter
1 cup cream or
1 cup brown or white sauce
Salt, pepper, cayenne
Poultry seasoning, lemon juice, onion juice

Wipe veal, remove bone, skin and fat. Pound until ¼ inch thick and cut in pieces 4 inches long by 2 inches wide, each piece making a bird. Chop trimmings of meat, add salt pork, measure and add half as much crumbs. Season to taste. Moisten with beaten egg and hot water or stock. Spread thinly on center of each piece of veal. Roll and fasten with skewers. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour, and fry in hot butter until a golden brown. Put in stew pan, add cream or sauce to half cover meat, cook slowly 20 minutes or until tender. Serve on small pieces of toast, strain sauce in pan over birds and garnish with parsley. Birds may be cooked in covered casserole dish in hot oven (400 degrees F.).

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Color Blindness.

THE importance of color blindness is chiefly in certain occupations requiring the distinction of colored lights or signals. Railroads, the army and navy and aviation companies are careful to test prospective employes to be sure that they are not color-blind. Any marked defect in color vision is disqualifying. Red and green traffic lights present a problem not without danger to color-blind automobile drivers, and it has been suggested that these colors be changed or that other combinations be made that would be distinguishable to this group.

Most color-blind persons are honestly unaware of the defect. Abney, in his Tyndall lectures, tells of an old gentleman who remarked that he was sitting on a black velvet chair, whereas the seat was a deep crimson shade.

Because of the color blindness of John Dalton, a famous English chemist, the condition for many years was known as daltonism. It is related that Dalton, although a Quaker and accustomed to the gray habit of that sect, on receiving a degree from an English university, wore the scarlet academic gown for several days, sublimely unconscious of the spectacle he presented.

One may well inquire what is color. No matter how much we may speculate on the phenomenon, we finally arrive at the conclusion that color is perception, or a feature of consciousness. As Clerk-Maxwell says, "All vision is color vision, for it is only by observing differences of color that we distinguish the forms of objects."

Color blindness is 10 times more common among men than among women, and fairly accurate estimates show that approximately 1 out of every 25 males will exhibit the phenomenon. This is because color blindness is inherited in a peculiar way, the males of affected families usually being color blind while the females have normal color vision, but transmit the trait to their male children.

On being tested color-blind persons will be unable to differentiate red from green. There are, however, many variations in color-blind individuals. Some will distinguish reds and be unable to distinguish greens. Others exhibit the reverse characteristics. As a rule, the person who is unable to distinguish between red and green retains the color sense in daylight for blue and yellow. Such persons can distinguish by degrees of brightness that a red or green object is not blue or yellow, but are unable to distinguish between red and green.

Persons with the common type of color blindness usually possess normal vision for the form of objects. There are certain rare cases in which no colors are perceived and the world appears a dull gray of varying shades. In such cases the vision is usually defective.

Mrs. Roosevelt Aids Unemployed Architects

A contribution for the benefit of unemployed architects and draughtsmen was received yesterday from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, it was announced by Mrs. Joseph Urban, chairman of the women's division, architects' emergency committee, at the organization's headquarters.

In addition to her contribution to the benefit fund now being raised by architects' wives, Mrs. Roosevelt ordered one of the architects' tea sets sent to the White House. Through the sale of this china service, which was designed by and is sold through the committee for the benefit of the fund, more than $14,000 has been netted to date. Mrs. Roosevelt was presented with one of the tea sets last spring and she has used it on several occasions.

Through the courtesy of the Elsie Cobb Wilson Gallery at 1709 H street northwest, this tea set will be exhibited in Washington beginning next week.

Freshman Class At Barnard Has Few Extremists

The typical girl in this year's freshman class at Barnard College is 17 years old, likes to knit and take hot baths, seldom smokes too much or drinks coffee to excess.

This composite picture was presented by Miss Agnes Wayman, head of the physical education department of the college in her annual report to Dean Virginia Gildersleeve.

The composite collegienne is more a product of public schools and of small cities than of private schools and New York City. She has feet better than the average for girls, an excellent heart, average weight, and fair posture. She neither overplays nor overworks.

Freshmen at Barnard, according to Miss Wayman's report, seldom eat between meals. When they do, their preferences are as follows: Fruit, candy, milk, baked goods, crackers, tea, ice cream, and bread and butter.

Wool Dresses Are Flattering To Any Figure

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THERE comes a time in every woman's life when her wardrobe proves a false friend. Particularly at this season of the year when she must combine shopping with social engagements, there is difficulty in selecting a frock which is appropriate for morning street wear, luncheon, and afternoon bridge. Before she starts out for the day she views the frocks in her closet, and there seem to be dresses for all occasions, but no one dress to cover them all. Her worries are small if she can afford to stop at her favorite shop and buy whatever she pleases. But numbers of women can't. Now that they must think of Santa's fee, and presents galore, they must mind their budgets. Shopping for an all-around dress soon becomes a vexatious problem.

Here are glad tidings, needless to say of great joy. In a downtown store there's one small section called the sports department. Besides the sweaters, skirts, and typical sports outfits there are some smart two-piece wool dresses which are appropriate for a variety of occasions.

They are made of a soft Valcuna wool in bright blue, coral, brown and green. Because they're so well tailored, simple, and beautifully fitting they're flattering to any figure and particularly a plump one. If you choose a becoming color, and select the right accessories you can fill your shopping and social calendar with assurance you're correctly and becomingly garbed.

Well-Behaved Soap.

Prankish cakes of soap that bob up and down in the water and slither and slide around like a submarine expertly eluding the grasping hand are finally disciplined. A soap manufacturer decided it was not enough to sell good soap but decided likewise to sell well-behaved soap. This is what he did. With each cake he put out a clever little wooden soap bowl, which floats like a sailboat over the choppy waves of a tub full of water. When you bathe you have your soap boat and soap in with you and everything is shipshape.

You'll not only like using this fragrant, lathery soap and the clever little bowl, but you'll take a real pleasure in presenting a set to someone as a Christmas gift. Three cakes of soap and one floating bowl cost only $1 in a local store. The soap has the fragrance of flowers and is tinted in pastel colors.

Hack Saws for 8 Cents.

It isn't the season when women are searching the shops for little odds and ends that are handy around the house. But husbands, that's a different matter! They buy as the spirit moves them, and the spirit strongly urges when they see the small hack saws for 8 cents. When the man-about-the-house is called upon to repair this or that, he agonizes over the lack of proper tools. A hack saw is just one of those things he can use here, there and yon, for the sink, the refrigerator, and even the car. To purchase a small one—and a good one—for 8 cents is really his opportunity.

Christmas Stockings for Pets.

Since Santa's work shop has come under the influence of the machine age the old fellow himself has indulged in more leisure. He's found that the machines are turning out more material in a shorter time than all his helpers used to. So here's what he's planning this year. He's going to use the workmen to deliver the goods, not to little boys and girls, to be sure that's Santa's all time job. But pets, Santa can provide for them now, so the workmen are to make special calls on Christmas eve. Fido himself must have a stocking. If his mistress has $1 to spare, Fido will have a stocking cram full of all the good things dogs adore. If you're dubious drop by an F street store and see the "Doggie Christmas Stockings." They're filled to the brim with seven toys, rubber bones, cats, mice, and innumerable things that Fido likes. You can add the extras yourself, a leash, a collar and some dog biscuit.

Attractive Table Decoration.

Designers show a preference for grapes when they create models of any number of things. They made a happy selection when they designed the new centerpieces like bunches of grapes and gave them a lustrous mother-of-pearl finish.

Use a cluster of these over a mirror reflector—and incidentally such reflectors are available for as little as 50 cents—and you have a different, a striking and superlatively attractive table decoration.

Scissors Sets at 75 Cents.

Seventy-five cents buys a practical Christmas gift that is bound to prove useful. Have you ever searched your brain for something that is sure to come in handy? Well, the scissors sets do. A large and small pair with the easy-on-the-hands felt covered handles are selling for this modest price in a local store.

Christmas Beauty Kit.

It is a brand-new idea and a fine one! When a beauty specialist planned her Christmas products she was undecided what kind of kit to have. "So many of them are alike," she said, "that I'm particularly eager to arrange one that's different." One idea after another she toyed with until she finally alighted on this one. Her kit resembles an unusually attractive black portfolio. You open it up and find it highlighted with a washable white pique lining and filled with a complete treatment set of her very excellent products.

The answer to Christmas shopping problems will be found in "Holiday Hints" in Post Classified Ads.

Princess Chemise Can Be Made Inexpensively

Pattern No. 626.

IT TAKES plenty of Christmas money to buy lingerie for a long gift list—unless you sew. This princess chemise, for instance, has the air of an expensive French "trifle." Its fitted top and its smooth-fitting body sections give it that air. But it is quickly and inexpensively made. Since its yardage requirements are so moderate, one can afford really fine fabric. Size 36 requires only 1⅞ yards of silk and ⅜ yard of 35-inch lace, or for a more tailored version, 1⅝ yards of silk for the entire garment. The pattern is cut in sizes 32 to 40.

Culbertson on Bridge

A Pseudo-Squeeze.

After taking his master's degree in Bridge mathematics and all-round technique, the player who pants for the higher learning continues his studies by delving into the mysteries of psychology. It is at this stage of his education that he comes to appreciate the beauties of the pseudo, or purely psychological, squeeze—the squeeze that depends for its effectiveness not on the operation of a law of physics, but upon what the squeezee thinks.

One of the most perfect and devastating pseudo-squeezes I have ever seen occurred in the hand below. It was played in a duplicate game and practically every South player became declarer at the final contract of five diamonds, either doubled, undoubled or redoubled. With the normal opening of the heart Jack by every opening leader, every South player made his contract.

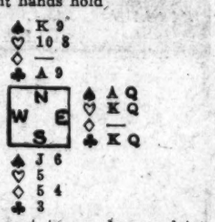
Perfect discarding by East could have set the bid. Yet, critical as I like to be about defensive play, I must admit that the correct choice of discards with the East hand is about as difficult as anything I have ever seen.

East, Dealer
Both sides vulnerable

Against South's five-diamond contract, all the West players, as I have said, made the natural opening of the heart Jack.

At every table this was won with the Ace in dummy. Now the declarer proceeded to run his eight diamonds. All the defenders holding the East hand first discarded their two small hearts and two small spades. As more diamond leads were made, the East players began to find themselves in difficulties. None of them of course knew that West held the ten of clubs and that South held only a singleton, and consequently all of them felt compelled to hold on to some sort of protection in the club suit. As a result, some of them discarded down to the blank Ace of spades, and thus the Declarer was able to set up a spade trick. Others bared down before the seventh trump was played to the Ace-Queen of spades, the King-Queen of hearts and the King-Queen of clubs. When, on the next to the last trump, the declarer, being forced to play first from dummy, threw a club, keeping two hearts, the East players unwisely threw, not a club, but one of the hearts. The declarer of course now fulfilled his contract by setting up a heart or by playing out the last trump, discarding a heart from dummy, then cashing the club Ace and winning the hand by throwing East in with the top heart for an end-play.

The proper defense is shown by reference to the best trap laid by a wily Declarer. After seven tricks, the relevant hands hold



On the next trump dummy lets go a heart. Now if East, fearing that South holds 10 x in clubs, lets go a heart also, he is ruined. A lead to the club Ace and return club lead for ruff bails him out of the suit, and he is then thrown in with the blank heart honor. Hence East's only defense is to discard a club on the penultimate trump. No continuation can now limit declarer's loss of two tricks.

A very good player should have been able to discard correctly and defeat the contract. However, with any players but experts defending, the pseudo-squeeze on this hand is almost sure fire.

Tomorrow's Hand.

South, Dealer
Neither side vulnerable

This hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

IF DECEMBER 7 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 a. m. to 1:15 p. m., from 3:15 to 5:15 p. m., and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m., from 5:15 to 7:15 p. m., and from 10:15 p. m. until midnight.

Watch the pennies on this December 7, for there may be the temptation to let money dribble away in small amounts that in the aggregate are likely to become a fairly substantial sum. Conditions conducive to waste of time, material and money can only be prevented from prevailing by prudent management and exercising vigilance.

Glib speech will break down sales resistance, unless common sense is used in trade transactions. Holding fast to high ideals in both social and business contacts on this date will probably prevent a slip that might cause keen regret. There is a possibility that Dame Fortune has a pleasant surprise up her sleeves for you in either the form of an unexpected gift of some sort, or money. An invitation well worth the accepting will probably be extended to you.

Married and engaged couples, as well as those making love in hope of being accepted, can avoid friction by not attempting to direct their adored one's personal actions in matters that are not of mutual concern.

If a woman, and December 7 is your birthday, your busines judgment should be well balanced and your foresight keen. Be careful not to let money interfere with love, or desire to gain wealth cause you to sacrifice happiness by ignoring any opportunity that presents itself because, from a financial viewpoint, it might not measure up to your requirements. Banking, bookkeeping insurance and real estate should prove both attractive as well as profitable to one of your mentality. Married life may likewise have a great deal to offer you.

The child born on December 7, when it reaches its teens, must be taught the importance of being both unselfish and generous. Let it learn that it is as much of an art to know how to spend wisely as it is to save.

If a man, and December 7 is your natal day, you can get a great deal of joy out of life if you do not measure things in the terms of dollars and cents. Promotional work in industrial lines might offer you a profitable field of activity. Publicity, literary and engineering also offer opportunities. Manufacturing and merchandising are promising lines in which to display your business astuteness. A wife should prove to be both a companion and an inspiration.

Writer Gives Suggestions on Infant Feeding

DESPITE the almost perfect set of formulas worked out for infant feeding by the medical profession, a writer in the December issue of The Parents' Magazine calls attention to the strange spectacle of babies starving in the midst of plenty. She believes an overanxious mother is usually at fault when a child goes on a hunger strike and she urges less forcible feeding and more consideration for the young epicure's tastes and natural disinclination to be hurried.

This close observer of quaint infant customs reveals that, unlike the adult, the baby clings to his first loves and often does not take readily to new things. He does not tire of the same food, rather he likes it better day after day. So don't try, at first, to serve baby spinach one day, carrots the next, and tomatoes the day following. Changing flavors is upsetting and annoying to him, early in the game of life, and may prevent him from liking any one thing well.

"Go slowly with new flavors," the writer advises. "If you discover there really is a food which makes baby shiver and shake and weep when he tastes or smells it, remove it for a time from his diet. Allow him to have a few preferences. Remember, small as he is, he is an individual with his own likes and dislikes.

Art by Children Will Go on View

Paintings to Be Shown Here Beginning Dec. 15.

The international exhibition of children's paintings, which has been at the Rockefeller Center in New York, will open December 16 at the Art League of Washington, 1503 Twenty-first street northwest. A preview will be held December 15.

The exhibition will remain open until January 3. It will be for the benefit of the Children's Club.

The paintings are by children from 6 to 12 years old. Forty-two countries are represented.

PIGGLY WIGGLY

Owned and operated by Sanitary Grocery Co.

And what housewife doesn't like to "browse" when she has the time? To wander leisurely through wide aisles banked with good foods—to read this label then that—to compare prices—to really shop — that's the Piggly Wiggly way. Of course if you're in a hurry again Piggly Wiggly is a life saver—you wait on no one but yourself.

Why, I've been paying 35c for this same Caviar!

Here it is at Piggly Wiggly for 23c!—Sa-ay—that's a worthwhile savings—think I'll look around some more. A one-pound jar of Welch's Grape Jelly for 17c—another find! And look at that whopper can of Stokely's Tomato Juice for 39c..... 100 ounces! That's what I call a real buy.

Artichoke hearts in a can

That's a good one on me—John just loves them, but they're always so much trouble to prepare—and here they are in a can... "Eveready." Well, if they're as good as the Eveready Fruit Cocktail I use, I'll be back for more.

There's the recipe I've been looking for!

It's a liberal education to wander through Piggly Wiggly reading the labels. There's many a time that an old family favorite, long since forgotten, reveals itself on a can or package. Then there are hundreds of delightful new dishes on labels and in packages awaiting their opportunity to delight the family.

"I think I'll try a new cereal."

and that's the beauty about the Piggly Wiggly system—all of the cereals together for comparison. If the family appetite seems to be growing "cereal stale" it's easy to switch to a new one in the cereal section at Piggly Wiggly.

State Grange Urges Slash In Farm Tax

New Levy on Wealth Is Asked at Maryland Conference.

Economy in Relief and Government Also Is Recommended.

Frederick, Md., Dec. 6 (AP).—The Maryland State Grange, at the closing session of its sixty-second annual convention, today urged new State taxes on wealth, reduction of taxes on farm land, decrease of State and local governmental salaries and the adoption of a State relief policy which would require Baltimore City and each of the counties to provide its own supplement to Federal relief funds—from sources other than a tax on land.

The grange made its recommendations in adopting, section by section, the report of a joint tax committee of the State grange and the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation.

Tax Recommendations.

The recommendations included:

More drastic economies in State and county governments.

Reduction of the salaries of governmental employes—rather than reduction in number of jobs—to a level "comparable to farm incomes."

The passage of an amendment to the State constitution to allow enactment of a State income tax law.

The amendment of the State inheritance laws to allow levy on estates of direct heirs.

The consideration of proposals to collect more revenue from the Maryland race tracks, with care not to adopt measures which would reduce the income by injuring the tracks or would work hardship on Maryland breeders.

School Tax.

The use of State revenue in the public schools to require not more than a 30-cent tax levy by any county for school purposes.

Stringent economy in relief administration and adoption of a policy which would not require the counties in any way to come to the support of Baltimore relief, or Baltimore to aid the counties.

The taxation of farm lands and farm buildings as a unit, uniformity of tax collection in the various counties and a general effort to reduce ad valorem taxation on property.

Miss Nettie Hume Dies at Warrenton

Paralytic Stroke Is Fatal to Woman at 75.

Warrenton, Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Miss Nettie Hume, 75, died early today in the Fauquier County Hospital here after a stroke of paralysis which she suffered about six weeks ago.

Miss Hume was the daughter of the late Mary Stewart and Robert Hume, of Fauquier County, was one of five children, and spent virtually her entire life in the county, 22 years of which she has been at the home of her sister, Mrs. Roberta Hume Curtis, in Warrenton. Mrs. Curtis and a number of nieces and nephew survive Miss Hume.

Miss Hume was a life-long member of the Methodist Church. The funeral will be held at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow at the home of a nephew, Dan P. Wood, High street, Warrenton, and will be conducted by the Rev. Glenn Cooper, of the Methodist Church, and the Rev. Julian Lake, of the Presbyterian Church. Interment will be in Warrenton Cemetery.

Lions Clubs Hold Banquet and Dance

Winchester, Dec. 6 (Spl.).—A banquet and dance at the George Washington Hotel featured the intercity meeting of the Lions Clubs in zone 5 here tonight. Zone 5 includes clubs in this city, Front Royal, Alexandria, Culpeper and Harrisonburg. In addition, the Romney, W. Va., and Charles Town, W. Va., clubs were invited as were representatives of several clubs in nearby Maryland. Members of the Charlottesville club, the "baby" organization in Virginia, attended.

The Keystone quartet of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Handley High School Glee Club participated in the entertainment as did a radio troupe from York, Pa.

League Forms to Fight For Lower Gasoline Tax

Clarksburg, W. Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Organization of the Gasoline Tax Reduction League, a State body, has been effected to seek a reduction of the West Virginia State gasoline tax of 4 cents a gallon to 2 cents. It has been granted a charter of incorporation.

The league, according to J. F. Rust, its secretary, is sending agents throughout the State to obtain signed petitions to the Legislature asking for the halved tax. Another movement is under way among members of the Legislature to increase the existing gasoline tax to 6 cents a gallon.

Leading Actors in Manassas Play Tonight

4 in Virginia Die; Pneumonia Claims 2 Lives

J. W. Howard, Jos. Toms, W. S. Norford, Mrs. J. A. Frensley Expire.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Pneumonia proved fatal yesterday to one resident of the city and one of Albemarle County; another native of Albemarle died in Richmond, while a Red Hill farmer expired from apoplexy just as he dismounted in front of a filling station not far from his home.

John W. Howard, painting contractor, died at his home on Belmont avenue. The funeral was held at 4 p. m. today at the residence, the service being conducted by the Rev. W. A. Orser, paster of the Hinton Avenue Methodist Church. Burial was in Riverview Cemetery.

Mr. Howard was born at Proffit, but made his home at Burnleys for some years before moving to Charlottesville. Besides his wife, he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Llwellyn D. Booth, of Richmond; Mrs. G. E. Herman, of Geneva, N. Y.; Mrs. E. L. Blake, of Richmond; three half-sisters, Mrs. J. G. Brooks, of Monroe; Mrs. Marvin Glennum, of Lynchburg, and Mrs. Oscar L. Mayo, of Roanoke.

Funeral services for Joseph Toms, a resident of the Covesville section, were held at 2 p. m. today at Bethel Methodist Church, at Covesville, with the Rev. W. H. Weston officiting. Burial was in the cemetery at Rock Springs, near Faber, Nelson County.

Mr. Toms was a native of Albemarle, son of the late Wilson and Leona (Fields) Toms, of Covesville, and was 62 years of age. He married Miss Roberta Mawyer, of Red Hill. She survives, with nine children, Marshall, Russell and Philip Toms, of Covesville; Joseph and Bledsor Toms, of Heards; Mrs. Noel E. Toms, of Red Hill; Misses Lula, Ruth and Annie Toms, all at home. Mr. Toms also leaves four brothers and one sister.

William S. Norford, who died suddenly near his home at Red Hill, was buried at 4 p. m. today in the cemetery at Hardware Church, in the southern end of Albemarle, the service being conducted by the Rev. R. J. Mann, of the Baptist Church.

Mr. Norford was a native of Greene County, son of the late Mathew Norford, and was 70 years of age. He is survived by his wife and several children.

The body of Mrs. Fannie Smith Frensley, widow of James A. Frensley, for years a merchant at Earlysville, in northern Albemarle, was taken to Luray, Page County, for burial.

Mrs. Frensley was Miss Fannie Smith, daughter of the late David H. and Mary (Parrott) Smith, and was born and reared near Earlysville, this county. She was 79 years of age. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. W. S. Marshall, of Charlottesville.

Relief Maps to Depict Civil War Battlegrounds

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Relief maps depicting the terrain on which two important Civil War Battles were fought are being prepared for installation in the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park administration building to be erected here this spring.

The maps will portray the battle grounds of the Battles of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Spotsylvania, the Wilderness and Salem Church. One model will show the ground which relates directly to the Battle of Fredericksburg, from below Hamilton's Crossing to Hunter's Island and the Stafford Hills to back of Marye's Heights. The entire areas of all battles in this vicinity will be shown on the second map.

$7,500 Fire Destroys McGaheysville Store

Harrisonburg, Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—The N. Wilson Davis general store, at McGaheysville, was destroyed by fire early today, entailing a loss of $7,500, partly covered by insurance. The Rockingham County fire truck saved the adjoining property. It was rumored that the store was robbed and then set afire, but officers have found no clews.

Maryland News Told in Brief

(Associated Press.)

Frederick.—Republican campaign expenditures totaling $4,662.13 and Democratic expenses of $5,009.12 are enumerated in Frederick County State central committee reports filed with the clerk of the court here. The county G. O. P. closed the campaign with a balance of $3.15, to $21.16 for the Democrats.

Baltimore.—Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the University of Maryland Extension Service, and R. M. Benjamin, president of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, are among the speakers scheduled at county farm bureaus annual meetings this month. The Frederick County bureau will meet December 19, and the Washington County bureau December 20. Carroll and Wicomico County bureaus also will meet during the month.

Easton.—An active campaign inaugurated against stray dogs by civic authorities here has been announced by a warning to dog owners that they must take action to quiet noisy pets or pay fines. Complaints have been made, police say, that groups of marauding canines also have been killing sheep in the rural districts.

Hagerstown.—Billy Winders has a valid claim to being the season's youngest successful hunter, Billy, all of 7 years old, went hunting with his father near Smithsburg and killed two rabbits.

Salisbury.—Official commendation has been forwarded to city authorities here by the National Fire Protective Association for its record during the recent fire prevention drive. No fire losses were reported here during the entire campaign.

Postmaster Gets Year for Frauds

Hayden Man Charged With Defalcations of $293.

Baltimore, Dec. 6 (AP).—D. Algernon Benny, 34, former postmaster at Hayden, Queen Anne's County, today was sentenced to a year and a day in a Federal penitentiary by Judge W. Calvin Chesnut.

Benny was charged with defrauding the Government by issuance of bogus money orders, falsification of records, and the retention of proceeds from the sale of stamps.

Benny admitted sending money orders to his creditors, using fictitious names as the remitters. Postal inspectors became suspicious when so many money orders began to issue from the small Hayden office, and a subsequent check-up revealed shortages and defalcations amounting to $393.40.

Benny is married, and supported his wife, mother and one child. Hayden now is without a postoffice.

4,215 in FERA Classes.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 6 (AP).—A total attendance of 4,215 students was recorded in the 256 sessions of FERA education classes in Washington County in November, a report prepared by the county board of education indicated.

Road Spending Not Explained, Smith Declares

'Overheads' No. 1, 2 and 3 Too Much for Commission to Understand.

Salisbury, Md., Dec. 6 (AP).—M. Clifford Smith, president of the retiring board of Wicomico County Commissioners, said today that, so far as Wicomico County was concerned, "we never knew how much money the State roads commission was spending."

"We would ask them for a statement, and eventually we would receive one, but nobody could read it. It contained such items as 'overhead, No. 1,' 'overhead, No. 2,' and sometimes 'overhead, No. 3,' without further explanation of what items were included in the overhead charges."

$10,000 Added to Cost.

A specific instance, he said, illustrated his point:

"On one section of road recommended by the county board to the roads commission we estimated the cost at $13,000. When the commission's statement came through, Wicomico's account was charged with $29,000 for that section. The difference was represented by overhead charges.

"I know very little about actual road construction, but I feel sure I could have had that road built for much less."

Smith reiterated a stand he said was taken by the county commissioners two years ago when county roads maintenance was placed in the hands of the State roads commission.

Still For Gas Tax.

"The Legislature should give the gasoline tax funds collected for county roads maintenance and debt service to the county boards. We advocated it in 1932, but the administration fought it. I have not changed my belief that it should be done.

"The county commissioners were supposed to designate what roads were to be improved, but actually the roads commission told us where and how roads funds were to be spent."

Charlottesville Host At I. O. O. F. Session

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Delegations of Odd Fellows from Gordonsville, Batesville and Green Mountain lodges attended a special meeting here tonight of Monticello Lodge, No. 97, at the Odd Fellows Hall, Fourth and Market streets. Addresses were made by several of the visiting officers, and following the business session there was an oyster supper, with more than 100 in attendance.

Present officers of Monticello Lodge, one of the largest in the State, are: Ira Davis, past grand; J. A. Utz, noble grand; J. B. Mann, vice grand; Dr. J. C. Coulter, chaplain; F. M. Thomas, financial secretary; Frank Ricardy, recording secretary; C. E. Birch, treasurer.

Nice to Tour State to Map '35 Budget

Will Visit Institutions to Investigate Need for Funds.

Eastern Shore Will Be Included in Trip to End Dec. 17.

Baltimore, Dec. 6 (AP).—Gov.-elect Harry W. Nice plans to begin a tour tomorrow of State institutions to obtain first-hand information to aid him in passing upon their requests for appropriations in the budget to be sent to the next Legislature.

Nice made this announcement today at the second session of a two-day meeting of the board of State aid and charities he is attending.

Two institutions not formerly asking for aid were present to make requests to the board and the governor-elect. They were the Maryland League for Crippled Children and the Baptist Children Aid Society.

Others Asking Funds.

Other institutions on hand to present requests during the day for funds included Henry Watson Children Aid Society, St. Francis Infant Asylum, Prisoners Aid Society, Southam Hospital and Home, Union Hospital of Elkton, Children Hospital School, Hebrew Home for the Aged, Kernan Hospital School, Home for Incurables, St. Mary's Female Orphan Asylum, and Cheltenham Negro Reformatory.

The Governor-elect said he would be accompanied on his tour of State institutions by Walter N. Kirkman, State Budget Director in the present Administration, and J. Purdon Wright, who is aiding him prepare for the budget-making task he will face upon taking office in January.

To Visit Eastern Shore.

The tour will continue until December 17. It will begin with a visit to the Confederate Soldiers Home at Pikesville.

It will be interrupted Saturday and Monday by other duties, and on Tuesday Nice will inspect the State tuberculosis sanatorium at Sabillasville and the school for the deaf at Frederick.

He plans to go to the Eastern Shore December 17 and visit the Eastern Shore State Hospital at Cambridge; the Salisbury State Normal School and the Princess Anne Academy, the Negro branch of the University of Maryland.

Virginia Finds New Coal Area

Peery Approves Opening Up Field of 'Smokeless Bituminous.'

Richmond, Va., Dec. 6 (AP).—Gov. Peery announced today that the State had indorsed the application of the Norfolk and Western Railroad for permission to open a new and vast coal mining area in Buchanan County. The company is asking permission of the Interstate Commerce Commission to build 38 miles of new line into eastern Buchanan County.

"The new railroad line would open up a large field of 'smokeless' bituminous coal, and should be of benefit to the whole State as well as Buchanan County," the Governor said. "The largest block of 'smokeless' coal in the country is reported in Buchanan County, and the railway development may be followed by major mining operations in a region now unsuited to agriculture, timberless and almost barren.

"We hope that the project will be approved, for it will mean employment to many people during the coming winter."

Along the Tri-State Trail

with

C. B. Carr

Post State Editor

DR. WILLIAM A. WALLACE and Stephen Bowers claim the distinction of having driven a motorboat through a cornfield. During the recent floods near Martinsburg, W. Va., they left the swollen course of a river and cruised through the nearby fields. Their biggest hazard was the tops of stacked cornstalks several hundred yards from the river's edge.

The tables were turned on Howard Cowan, 28, of Danville, Va., when he took his first trip in an ambulance—as a patient. Cowan, an ambulance driver, has driven the siren-voiced cars for many years through the thickest of city traffic and has never had an accident. The other day a light car which he was driving collided with a street car. His condition is not serious.

A belief prevalent on the Eastern Shore of Maryland is that if a person deliberately kills a cat or dog it will bring bad luck. So the practice of leaving surplus cats and dogs in the vicinity of another's house, hoping they will be adopted, is often used. The following advertisement was recently found in a county newspaper:

"The undersigned will pay a reward for proof of the identity of the person who dropped four setter pups at his gate on Thursday night. Apply with proof to Philip F. Bounds, Route 2, Princess Anne County."

The Antietam mill, one of the landmarks of Washington County, located at Funkstown, has been sold at public auction in front of the Hagerstown courthouse for $775. The mill is over a century old.

Geese and duck hunting along the tributaries of the Chesapeake shows promise of picking up, according to reports from Walter P. Chrysler's country estate, Pokety, near the Choptank River. Chrysler and several friends bagged 15 Canadian geese and 45 ducks on Bloodsworth Island, where Col. Albanus Phillips, president of the Phillips Packing Co., maintains a 6,700-acre wild game retreat.

Haysi Prepares To Rebuild, Aid Fire Homeless

Red Cross Sends Aid From Richmond; Bank Vault Still Unopened.

Clintwood, Va., Dec. 6 (AP).—The people of Haysi, the town burned out yesterday east of here, surveyed their shattered fortunes today and made plans to carry on and to care for those in need. The estimate of damage remains at $350,000 with $50,000 insurance.

Representatives of the National Red Cross arrived from Richmond, about 1 p. m. today, surveyed the situation, called in business men for consultation and plans were made for taking care of about 20 families temporarily, and perhaps some of them for an extended period. It was suggested that local Red Cross chapters in southwest Virginia counties be asked to conduct a campaign to give permanent relief to the few who will need it.

Some of the homeless slept in the Haysi High School building last night and some in a church, while many were cared for by neighbors. A number of the unfortunates, however, have gone, or are planning to go, back to country homes or homes of relatives for a time.

The situation as to relief is said to be well in hand and there is no suffering. The school did not reopen today and it was said it would remain closed until next week.

The vault of the Cumberland Bank & Trust Co. will not be opened for a few days, the debris still being too hot to permit work on it. The associate bank of the same name here is handling the Haysi business, but plans are making to provide temporary quarters at Haysi some time next week.

Several of the leading men of Haysi are making plans to rebuild on a more substantial scale.

Mrs. Edith H. Reinhart Dies at Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Mrs. Edith Holzen Reinhart, 54, wife of Joseph H. Reinhart, merchant and real estate dealer, died yesterday at Allegany Hospital after a heart attack. Besides her husband, seven children survive: Joseph H., jr., Eugene L., Thomas A., James B., John and Margaret M. Reinhart, this city, and Edward Reinhart, Baltimore. She was a sister of Edward A. Holzen, of the Cumberland police department; Mrs. Dix Barrick, Baltimore; Mrs. Nell Hocking, Washington, and Mrs. Ray Frantz.

The Rev. Thomas D. Reinhart, rector of St. Marys Catholic Church, Hagerstown, cousin of Mr. Reinhart, will conduct the funeral service at SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church tomorrow morning.

'Possum Hunters Receive Warning On Forest Fires

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Coon and 'possum hunters, who have been blamed in past years for many forest fires in this section, were warned today by District Forest Warden William C. Renner that the practice of leaving a camp fire as soon as the dogs bark when they have treed their quarry, must be stopped.

Investigations, Renner said, showed that in the excitement hunters forgot about their fires and as a result a number of disastrous fires have resulted. The fire menace has been alleviated for at least a week due to the heavy rains.

Railroad Veterans Choose Officers

B. & O. Association Names Barnett President.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Veterans Association last night elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Joseph F. Barnett; vice president, Myer Light; treasurer, George Light; secretary, Christopher R. McCullough; recording secretary, H. W. Bloss; guard, Robert Turner; delegate to convention at Baltimore, December 7 and 8, M. J. Welsh.

The following officers were elected by Allison Auxiliary, No. 4: President, Mrs. George Crass; vice president, Mrs. Jasper Flora; secretary, Mrs. Myer Light; treasurer, Mrs. Carrie Heron; marshal, Mrs. Carrie Hobday; guard, Mrs. M. L. Turner; chaplain, Mrs. Aria Grimm; social committee, Mrs. A. Souders; entertainment committee, Mrs. Joseph F. Barnett and Mrs. Elizabeth R. Menefee, who is Democratic national committeewoman for Maryland; delegates to grand lodge convention, Mrs. John W. McMakin and Mrs. Barnett.

Warrenton Boys Win Citations at V. M. I.

Warrenton, Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Two Warrenton boys are on the honor citation list at the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, which requires an average of 90 or more on all academic subjects and conduct records not impaired by excess demerits. A. M. R. Charrington, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. R. Charrington; C. S. Welton, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Welton, formerly of Warrenton, now of Richmond, Va., are on the list. Both are freshmen.

Laundrymen Hear Talks On Business

Maryland, Virginia, District Owners Meet in Charlottesville.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—The midwinter meeting of the Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia Laundry Owners Association was opened today in the Monticello Hotel, with G. Y. Klinefelter, of Baltimore, president, presiding.

Other officers of the association are C. Archer Smith, vice president, and John A. Archer, secretary, both of Baltimore, and R. A. Stowe, treasurer, of Richmond. Executive board members are O. L. Roach, of Danville; Stanley Taylor, of Washington, D. C., and Walter McCord, of the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

The visitors were welcomed to the city by J. C. Quarles, of the Young Men's Business Club, following the invocation by Dr. Henry Alford Porter, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

The business session opened with a visual sales demonstration of an associated industry by T. J. Murvin, of Pittsburgh, and was followed by a talk on "Applied Psychology," by Dr. Wayne Dennis, acting assistant professor of psychology at the University of Virginia.

Other speakers of the afternoon were F. N. Cannon, of Washington, who discussed "The Combination of Laundry and Dry Cleaning," and Mrs. Elmer E. Burruss, wife of a Charlottesville architect, who spoke from the standpoint of a customer of the laundry.

The annual banquet of the association was held tonight in the rose room of the Monticello Hotel.

A number of members participated in a blind bogey golf tournament this morning on the links of the Farmington Country Club. This event was followed by an assembly luncheon at the Farmington Club. The meeting will end tomorrow afternoon.

Jacob Loy Freed In Workers' Deaths

Acquitted on Involuntary Manslaughter Count.

Chambersburg, Pa., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Jacob Loy, 60-year-old foreman on the Waynesboro sanitary sewer job, a jobless relief project in which three men were killed in a ditch cave-in last July, has been acquitted in Franklin County court of a charge of involuntary manslaughter. The jury deliberated an hour and a half.

Loy's acquittal closed the State's effort to establish criminal liability for the death of the three men, George J. Moudy, George A. Hartman, and Edward G. Miller.

Charges were made against Loy and Ralph Whisler, construction engineer, in the case of each of the victims, but they were tried only in the case of Miller. Binding instructions were given by the court to clear Whisler because of insufficient evidence.

Monkton Postoffice Looted by Safeblowers

Monkton, Md., Dec. 6 (AP).—The robbery of the Monkton Postoffice of $350 in stamps and $40 in cash was discovered today by Meredith Pearce, postmaster.

The stamps and cash were taken from the safe, which was destroyed by an explosion. Entrance to the building was gained by forcing open a side door. Postoffice inspectors were called to investigate.

Fight to Keep U. S. Out of Olympics in Berlin Seen at A. A. U. Parley

Jewish Issue Is Not Yet Settled

Debate Is Seen Despite Nazi Assurance of No Discrimination.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP).—Despite strong pressure to avoid further controversy over American participation in the 1936 Olympic games at Berlin, based on charges of German discrimination against Jewish athletes, opposition to this country's formal acceptance of Germany's invitation probably will be carried to the floor of the Amateur Athletic Union's annual convention, starting at the Miami Biltmore tomorrow.

The A. A. U. went on record at its Pittsburgh convention last year as strongly opposed to sanctioning America's entry in the 1936 games so long as evidence of alleged German racial unfairness in athletics existed. Delegates arriving tonight from all parts of the country indicated there is still considerable question over Germany's attitude or good faith on the Jewish issue, despite the assurance brought back from Europe last summer by Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Association, as well as chief executive of the A. A. U.

Bid Already Accepted.

Subsequently the Olympic Association officially accepted the German invitation on the strong recommendation of Brundage as well as William May Garland, of Los Angeles, American member of the international Olympic committee, but it appears now that the A. A. U. will not consider the issue closed without further debate, at least.

Brundage, on his arrival today, expressed the hope the remaining opposition to American Olympic cooperation with Germany would be quashed in executive committee session tomorrow. The A. A. U. president declared flatly he felt no further ground existed for keeping the Jewish issue alive, so far as international athletics are concerned, and decried political propaganda on the subject.

"Anti-German Block."

While the majority of the delegates likely will follow Brundage's leadership or yield to the pressure of those seeking to avoid another outbreak of controversy on the convention floor Saturday or Sunday, spokesmen for the "anti-German bloc" probably will demand a hearing. Among those expected to raise further issue are Charles Ornstein, of New York, who led the previous opposition to acceptance of the Olympic invitation, and Joseph Dresner, of New Orleans, president of the Southern Association of the A. A. U.

"My feeling is the A. A. U. before lending its support to the next Olympics should be absolutely sure there will be no racial or other discrimination against athletes in Germany," said Dresner. "Because of racial discrimination, the A. A. U. has to my knowledge twice declined to award the national track and field championships to a Southern city. The A. A. U. has stood firmly for competition for all—regardless of race, color or creed, and should continue to do so."

Brundage has notified delegates that he wishes to relinquish the presidency of the A. A. U. after holding office for six years, longer than any previous chief executive, but there is nevertheless strong sentiment to prevail on him to continue until after the 1936 Olympics.

Heckman Annexes Honors in Scoring

Waynesboro Star Tops Loop With 37 Points.

Waynesboro, Pa., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—By scoring three touchdowns against Hagerstown High on Monday, George (Ducky) Heckman, Waynesboro High full back, annexed the 1934 Cumberland Valley Athletic League scoring championship with a total of 37 points, or an averge of 9 points per game.

Boor and Jordano, both of Allegany High of Cumberland, were second and third, with 27 and 21 points, respectively.

For the first time in the league's history, the season ended in a deadlock, with three of the five teams tied for the honor—Waynesboro, defending champions; Handley, of Winchester, and Cumberland. Waynesboro led in team scoring with 76 points.

Bethesda Five Schedules 20 Contests

Opens With Poolesville Next Week; Coach Eyes Crown.

FAVORITES over Poolesville in the season's opener next week, Coach Tony Kupka of Bethesda, Chevy Chase High, is looking beyond this game to the toughest basket ball schedule in the history of the school.

Kupka's court teams have a .750 average in county crowns in his sojourn at the institution, and now that the league has disbanded and the schools are playing by invitation only he is eyeing the mythical title.

Eddie Johnson, son of the former Washington pitching ace and now manager of the Cleveland Indians, will be back at the forward post.

Harris, Lodge Back.

Bob Harris and Tom Lodge are back at their respective guard and center posts. The places left vacant by the graduation of Royer and Brown, both all-county guards, will, in all probability, go to Tom Finlayson and Frank Lozupone.

The latter two have to better the drive for posts of several candidates who have their hearts on varsity berths, among them Foulks, Putman, James, Stone and Collings, formerly of the Celina (Ohio) High squad.

Twenty games are scheduled for the Lelanders, with the possibility of more being added.

The schedule:

December 13, Poiesville at home; 14, St. John's Prep at St. John's; 18, Roosevelt at Roosevelt; 21, alumni at home.

January 4, Western at Western; 8, Annapolis Prep at Annapolis; 11, Damascus at home; 14, Georgetown Prep at Garrett Park; 16, Silver Spring at home; 18, Gonzaga at Gonzaga; 21, Eastern at Eastern; 23, Washington and Lee at Ballston; 25, Rockville (pending); 29, St. John's at home.

February 1, Annapolis High at home; 6, Washington and Lee at home; 14, Western at home; 18, Gonzaga at home; 20, Georgetown Prep at home.

Shepherd to Play In Game on Coast

Bogdanski and Border Also Added to Line-up.

Hamilton, N. Y., Dec. 6 (U.P.).—The all-East eleven which plays the all-West at San Francisco New Year's Day will be flanked by two of the best ends in the country, Joe Bogdanski, Colgate, and Lester Border, Fordham, have accepted invitations to appear in the Eastern line-up now being formed by Andy Kerr, Colgate, and Dick Hanley, Northwestern, co-coaches.

The coaches announced that the first string rapidly is taking shape. Lew Brooke, Colgate tackle, and Bill Shepherd, Western Maryland half back, who led the Nation in scoring, also have agreed to play.

Others previously announced for the Eastern line-up include Hartwig, guard; Weinstock, full back, and Munjas, quarter back, all of Pittsburgh.

Mount Rainier High Five in Opener

Only 2 Veterans on Team Facing St. John's Today; Other County News.

MOUNT RAINIER HIGH SCHOOL'S basket ball team will take the court in its opening contest of the season against St. John's this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock on the latter's floor, with only two members of last year's quint in the line-up.

The Mounts, who won the Prince Georges County scholastic championship in 1933-34, will have Tillie Scott, veteran guard, and Jimmy Glynn, last season's forward, playing their old positions. The other places in the starting combination will be filled by Jimmy MacGregor, center; Steve Miller, forward, and George Taylor, guard.

Five other members of the squad are likely to be sent into action by Coach Perry Wilkinson. They are Steve Ager and Bernard Todd, centers; Earl Miller and Leo Baldwin, forwards, and Dick Roland, guard.

Wilkinson is completing the Mount Rainier schedule, which will include approximately 22 games. Four games will be played before the Christmas holidays. Next week Roosevelt High will be engaged Tuesday at Mount Rainier and Alexandria High on Friday, also on the Mounts' court. Roosevelt will be met in a return contest December 18 in Washington and on December 21 the Mounts will face an alumni quint on the home floor.

Practice for the Mount Rainier High girls' basket ball team started yesterday at the school under the direction of Mrs. Mabel Wilkinson, member of the faculty. Twenty-five girls reported.

The Mount Rainier High girls' field ball team, which has just finished a successful season during which it won the Prince Georges County scholastic championship and its opening game in the State title tournament, will lose heavily by graduation next June.

Seven regular members of the team will be graduated. They are Ina Sager, Mabel Wynn, Dorothy Bauman, Jeanette Katz, Helen Mollohan, Edith MacGregor and Margaret Miller. Regulars who will be available again next season are Marion Miller, Louise Rocker, Eleanor Gagnon, June Keesee and Anna Mae O'Brien. Virginia Miller, leading reserve who played in many of the games the past season, also will be back next year.

Court Season to Open In Washington County

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—The Washington County Basket Ball League will open its season next Monday, when the De Molay and Funkstown and the Woodmen and Y. M. C. A. will meet. The season will be a split one, with the second half opening on January 21.

Besides these four teams, those in the league are Boonsboro and Company B.

Big 'Bamans Stage Drill In Capital

Crisp and Pixlee, Rival Coaches, Confident of Victory.

ALABAMA's All-Star eleven, a collection of Rose Bowl stars to warm the heart of any dyed-in-the-cotton football fan, worked out at Griffith Stadium yesterday before the all-seeing eyes of the press, and the press saw plenty.

To begin with, the Alabamans have several thousand pounds of real football talent on the hoof, and those hooves can carry the mail. Big, powerful and fast, they have everything a coach could desire, and Hank Crisp, Alabama director of athletics who is tutoring the boys, is satisfied that the school's unblemished record in District competition will remain unblotched.

It will be a colorful game with the Marine and Almas Temple bands manufacturing music for the occasion. Representative "Billy" Bankhead, full back on Alabama's first team, will tee up the first kick-off. Prior to that the Merrick and Northeast Boys Club teams meet for the 100-pound title of the Junior Colonial League.

Both Coaches Confident.

Although Crisp confidently predicted an Alabama win, Jim Pixlee, coach of the Washington team, was just as confident that Washington would be returned the victor. Alabama has Cain, Suther, Hubert and other notables in its back field, but the District will have some just as good if not as widely publicized.

Johnny Fenlon and Tom Whelan carry the local team's hopes for victory. Speedy, shifty men who are almost impossible to stop in a broken field, the entire attack has been built around them. Both have displayed old-time form in practice and will be ready for the gun tomorrow.

With Pearce, Stewart, Roskowski and other huskies well known to local fans in the front line trenches, the G. W. coach is satisfied that Alabama will make little headway through it. It is a big and rangy line with an innate love for the game. That's a hard combination to beat.

To Drill in Secret.

Alabama will work out this afternoon behind locked gates at the stadium. At this final dress rehearsal Crisp will hand out final instructions for the big battle.

Washington drilled against the National last night, working its own plays in dummy scrimmage. It will taper off this afternoon after the Tide has left the field.

A noticeable spurt in the sale of tickets was observed yesterday as Alabama arrived. The pasteboards are still selling for $1.10 for reserved seats. Today the reserved section will sell for $1.65 a ticket.

Hancock Booters Take Shore Title

Score Near Finish Wins Over Greensboro, 3-2.

Easton, Md., Dec. 6 (AP).—Hancock High School defeated Greensboro, 3 to 2, on the Easton High Athletic Field here today to win the State Playground Athletic League Soccer championship for the Western Shore. Little, at center half, scored all of Hancock's goals.

Greensboro, Eastern Shore champion, fell behind the Western Shore champs early in the opening half on two penalty kicks by Little and was unable to score until the second half when Murphy, opposing Little in the line-up, tied the count with a pair of penalties.

With the score knotted at 2-all, the two elevens seesawed back and forth unable to break the ice until Little registered again on another penalty in the closing minutes of the game.

Boxing Champs Are Crowned At V. P. I.

More Than 60 Participate in 4-Day Competition; Nine Teams Vie.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Seven intramural boxing champions were crowned at Virginia Tech in the final round of the annual tournament held under direction of M. Buford Blair, assistant professor of physical education. Four days of competition attracted more than 60 candidates and drew hundreds of fans to the matches in War Memorial Hall.

The champions:

128 pounds—W. J. Blaiklock, Washington, D. C., of Battery O.
138 pounds—R. W. Souder, Roanoke, Battery L.
168 pounds—W. S. Ross, Skipwith, of Company A.
Unlimited—J. E. Bennett, Gretna, of Battery N.

The tournament attracted many entries with boxing experience and proved a popular sport on the intramural program. W. J. Blaiklock, the 128-pound champ, was the only titlist of 1933 to retain his crown.

Battery N, by scoring 14 points, won the team championship, dethroning the nonmilitary titlists of last year. The champions were hard pushed by Battery L with 13 points, with nonmilitary Frosh-Sophomores a close third with 12 points. Company E scored 9 points; Battery O, 7; Company A, 5; Battery I, 3, and Company G, 1.

Battery N, the championship team, is composed of Capt. G. M. Robeson, Monteverde, Fla.; J. E. Bennett, Gretna; R. D. Cloud, Drewryville, and O. W. Johnson, Drewryville. F. L. Martin, Washington, D. C., is manager.

The final bouts:

128 pounds—Blaiklock defeated O. W. Johnson, Drewryville, of Battery N, in two rounds.
138 pounds—Souder defeated G. M. Robeson, Montverde, Fla., of Battery N, three fast rounds. Robeson was 1932 champion and runner-up in 1933.
158 pounds—Sheppard defeated C. H. Bowles, West Graham, of Company E, in fiercely fought two rounds.

Hubbell Not For Sale, Manager Terry Asserts

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 6 (AP).—Bill Terry took time out today from his latest interest—a 100-acre farm—to announce that with an additional outfielder he hopes to acquire soon the New York Giants will be ready and waiting for the 1935 season.

Shepherd Wins Vote of C. U. Players

Rado, of Duquesne, Second in Balloting for All-Opponent Team.

FIVE of the nine teams on Catholic University's football schedule place men on the all-opponent team selected yesterday by the Cardinal letter men. Twenty players balloted.

Bill Shepherd, Western Maryland, was the only unanimous selection, although Rado, Duquesne's hard-hitting guard, polled 18. Most surprising revelation of the tabulation, however, was Kadlubosky, La Salle end, who was selected on 15 votes.

Curiously enough, Art Strutt, of Duquesne, chosen as the outstanding full back to oppose the Redbirds this season, staged a nip and tuck race with the Terror ace for scoring honors. Shepherd, however, forged far ahead of his rival on the strength of two additional games in which he did the bulk of scoring.

The teams:

First team.	Position.	Second team.
Kadlubosky, La S.	L E	Connell, Manh.
Harvey, Holy Cr.	L T	Johnson, Duq.
Rado, Duquesne	L G	Moran, Holy Cr.

Providence, R. I., Dec. 6 (U.P.).—Donald M. Emery, of Marshfield Hills, Mass., varsity center for the past two seasons, was elected captain of the Brown 1935 football team today.

Prince Georges Cage League To Meet

Reorganization Will Be Effected Tonight at Guard Armory.

A REORGANIZATION meeting of the Prince Georges County Basket Ball League will be held tonight in the Hyattsville National Guard Armory at 8 o'clock. Managers of all teams desiring to join the loop are asked to be present.

The league proved a decided success last season, when it was reorganized after several years' lapse. Keen competition was shown all the way, with Company F, National Guard, of Hyattsville winning the title after a close battle.

Candidates for the first and second court teams which will represent Company F have started practice, with high hope of repeating their triumph of a year ago in the county loop.

The Guardsmen will have all their players of last season available, and it is likely that Rufus Vincent, former University of Maryland high-scoring center, a Hyattsville boy, will perform with them. Barker, who has had experience with the Hyattsville High School team, is another newcomer.

Company F tossers will open their season at 2 p. m. Sunday with the Mount Rainier Athletic Club quint on the armory court. Other games are sought for Thursday nights and Sunday afternoons. Call Lieut. Hugh McClay, athletic officer, at Hyattsville 521-J, after 6 p. m.

Mount Rainier Athletic Club basketers, who will pry open their season Sunday against Company F at Hyattsville, are after games with unlimited quints for Monday nights at the Mount Rainier High School gymnasium and for other nights with out-of-town fives. Call Manager Robert Bellman at Greenwood 2477.

Gomez Holds 2.33 - Run Average

Won 26, to Top League; Also in Lead With 25 Complete Games.

Russell, of Nats, Hurled in 54 Contests for Season Record.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (AP).—Something should be done about rechristening of star ball players.

Vernon Gomez, star southpaw of the New York Yankees, is called "Goofy," but he won the American League pitching championship last season by a margin of 94 percentage points. Jerome Herman Dean, of the world's championship St. Louis Cardinals, known far and wide as "Dizzy," was easily the greatest pitcher of the year in the National League.

Final official averages, released by the American League today, proved that Gomez was far from "goofy" when he got out on that pitching hill for the Yankees. Not only did he win the most games, 26 in all, as against 5 defeats, but he also had an earned run average of 2.33.

Twenty-five Complete Games.

He led the league with 25 complete games and hurled 9 games in which the opposing team made less than 5 hits. He pitched the largest number of innings, 282, and topped the circuit in the art of striking out batsmen, fanning 158. His control was so good that he didn't hit a single batter.

Mel Harder, Cleveland's right-hander with a roundhouse curve, ranked second to Gomez in the earned run average with a mark of 2.61. But Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe was runner-up in the matter of games won and lost with a record of 24 and 3 for .750. The Detroit star, who tied the record by winning 16 consecutive games, had an earned run average of 3.45.

Lefty Grove, of the Boston Red Sox, victim of an ailing arm, finished the season with an even record of eight victories and eight defeats. Gomez and Harder were the only ones to beat the three mark in earned runs.

Jack Russell, Washington relief pitcher, was the "workhorse" of the league, pitching in 54 games, as against 47 by Buck Newson of the St. Louis Browns, who issued the most walks, with 149. George Blaeholder, St. Louis, allowed the most hits, 276, while Milt Gaston, of Chicago, allowed 146 runs.

District 43 Carriers Win Post Grid Game

Alexandria, Dec. 6 (Spl.).—District 43, local branch of The Washington Post, nosed out District 42 by a 7-to-6 score, in a football game at Baggett's today.

Eddie Nolan drew first blood for "42" late in the second period, on a brilliant broken-field sprint from midfield. Nolan started his march through center, but once in the open, cut to the sidelines and outstepped the secondary defense.

British Group May Buy Mount for Donoghue In $100,000 Stake, Veteran Jockey, Here, Says

By Bill McCormick.

STEVE DONOGHUE, the 52-year-old English jockey who has won every major riding honor in the Right Little, Tight Little Isle, probably will pilot a horse owned by a British syndicate in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap in California February 23, he told The Post yesterday.

Donoghue, who paused here briefly yesterday en route by plane from New York to Miami, said the syndicate is negotiating for the purchase of Badrudden, a highly regarded English thoroughbred. If their plans materialize, the horse will be shipped here to be ridden by Donoghue in the field which generally is expected to attract the best the United States has to offer in the way of horseflesh.

Silent on Backers.

The mighty midget of the British turf refused to disclose names of any members of the syndicate.

"H'I cawn't aye ooze be'ind the syndicate," he announced flatly in a very Whitechapel accent. "Awfter they complete theah plans everyone will be taold 'oo they are."

Steve, who was England's leading jockey for ten years, holds the record of having ridden six Derby winners and was presented a gold whip by King George, who is by way of being one of Great Britain's leading lovers of the turf. He also refused flatly to name the best horse he had ridden.

"Such things annoy so many people, daonchknaow," he grinned in a very Disraeli manner. "H'I ride for so many people, H'I cawn't h'afford to h'offend 'em, can I?"

Won Three Derbies in Row.

Donoghue will leave Miami Sunday morning for Jamaica for a few weeks complete rest. From Jamaica he will return to Florda, but does not expect to ride there. From Florida he will go back to New York, then to California to ride in the Santa Anita classic—if the syndicate obtains a mount for him.

Donoghue won the Englsh Derby in 1915 on Pommern. In 1917 he again won the Derby on Gay Crusader. For the next four years, he was unable to boot one home in the British classic, but in 1921 he started an unprecedented winning streak. That year he won on Humorist. The following year he won on Captain Cuttle, and in 1923 he brought Papyrus home a winner—making it three in a row in the Derby.

In 1925, he galloped Manna home ahead of the field for his sixth Derby winner, breaking a record set by Fred Archer, who rode five winners in the event back before the Gay Nineties.

"H'I won the Grand Prix on Admiral this yeah," he points out. "So, I guess H'im far from done. We English jocks lahst longah than you American chappies becawse the weights are 'igher over theah." Donoghue weighs 108 pounds, dripping wet.

As American as "Old Black Joe"

PAUL JONES is real old-fashioned American whiskey with that full-bodied, hearty flavor that the American taste has always demanded. Because Paul Jones is made the only way truly great whiskey can be made—by the costly, old-fashioned method. Paul Jones is made with Kentucky and Maryland limestone water which adds a richness you can get in no other way. Every drop is naturally aged in charred oak barrels. And Paul Jones is a blend of all straight whiskies! Try a bottle and discover how much finer real old-fashioned whiskey is—in flavor, in bouquet, in ever way! Reasonably priced.

Tight Wad Defeats Campagna by Head as 3,500 Watch Feature at Charles Town

$40,000 Bet On Opening Program

Variety of Finishes and Mutuels at Mountain Race Track.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Writer).

CHARLES TOWN RACE TRACK, Dec. 6.—The sun came over the mountains, some 3,500 customers gathered, the horses circled the track, real money was bet down under the stands and a good time was had by all—the winners. After a delay of five days, horse racing came to this picturesque track here in the Shenandoah River Valley, and it seems to have taken a tight grip.

Although the crowd was rather small, the betting, which makes the wheels go round, totaled more than $40,000 for the day—a sum, which, if averaged throughout the meeting, would insure the financial success of the 13-day venture.

The racing resulted in a variety of finishes and a wide range of mutuel prices. There were both front-running and fast-closing victories, and the pay-off graduated from the $3.90 mutuel on Diaquiri, winner of the first race, up to the $70.50 pay-off on St. Claire, winner of the fourth event.

Track Free From Holes.

The racing oval was in good shape despite the fact that it had been partially washed away by the deluge which forced the meeting to be postponed last Saturday. The track was what the chartmakers call "heavy" in spots but it seemed to be free from holes and the horses appeared to be running smoothly.

Washington was heavily represented in the crowd, more than 400 making the trip on the special train while the yellow District tag was much in evidence in the parking space.

It was only fitting that the most exciting finish of the day came in the feature race. Tight Wad, the property of G. L. Hamilton, and Campagna, operated by W. D. Hines, fought a thrilling stretch duel in which the former carried off a head decision. Third in the field of eight was Caloric, a keen figure in the running and only beaten by half a length.

Longshot Takes Lead.

The race was "The Panhandle," over the 6½-furlong course and for the usual $300 purse. However, the contest could not have been more interesting had it had the word "Derby" tacked on the end.

Red Riot, a longshot, was first to show in front as the mad rush for the first turn began. Campagna was close on his heels, with Caloric and Glendye ahead of the ultimate winner, Tight Wad. Along the back stretch Atkins allowed Tight Wad to hold his fifth position while Campagna raced Red Riot into defeat to take the lead.

Caloric soon replaced Red Riot to force the pace of Campagna. Rounding the turn, Glendye shook off Caloric and went after the flying Campagna. However, the real punch of the field was Tight Wad. Atkins turned him loose entering the stretch and he fairly ate up ground to draw into a head and head battle with Campagna. In the ensuing struggle Tight Wad had a little more left than his rival.

Races Return to the Mountains as Charles Town Opens Meeting

Post Staff Photos.

The thud of hoofbeats is heard again in the mountain country of West Virginia, where the thoroughbreds entered on a 13-day meeting yesterday. Nay Nay is seen leading the field around the first turn of the second race, a 7-furlong sprint, with Star Queen and Donna Dulcin (the winner) in closest pursuit. Bright Pattern, which finished third, was fourth at this stage. At right—Apprentice Jockey Frank Weir, a Baltimore youth, who brought St. Claire home at a $70.50 mutuel, the longest price of the day.

Only Tech and Western Map Court Schedules as Pretentious as Last Year's

Reasons Vary For Slashes In Cards

Eastern, Roosevelt and Central Each Cut Off 10 Encounters.

EASTERN, Central and Roosevelt High Schools are announcing a new policy calling for sharply reduced basket ball schedules this year, but Tech and Western are plunging into campaigns equally as long as, if not longer than, those of the 1933-34 season.

The 1934-35 schedules of Eastern, Central and Roosevelt are 10 games shorter than those played last year. In giving the reasons for the pruning, Coaches Charlie Guyon of Eastern, Jack Ray of Central, and Lynn Woodworth of Roosevelt, gave varied explanations.

Declaring that his boys "were pretty well roughed and bruised" by the college freshman teams they played last year, Coach Guyon said that the yearling fives of George Washington, Catholic University and Maryland had been dropped from the Eastern schedule. This slices eight games off the Lincoln Parkers' program and leaves the Georgetown freshmen as the only collegiate combination to face the inter-high champs during the coming season. The Hoyas were scheduled some time ago.

Play 22 Contests.

The other two games shorn off the Eastern schedule are with St. John's and Warrenton (Va.) High. This leaves a program of 22 conflicts facing the Lincoln Parkers.

Coach Ray is listing only 19 games for his Central five, about 11 fewer than the Mount Pleasanters played last year. He is cutting off two games each with Mount St. Joseph's of Baltimore, Washington-Lee High of Ballston and the George Washington and C. U. Freshmen, and one with the Maryland Freshmen.

Too Great a Strain.

The Central coach views a heavy schedule with disfavor. He says it puts too great a physical strain upon a growing youth. Basket ball, in his opinion, is no game to be played every two or three days.

Roosevelt is going forward with a long schedule though cutting ten contests off the 37-game program it waded through last year. The reduction knocks off two games each with Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Takoma-Silver Spring and Emerson Institute and one with Jefferson High, Alexandria Firemen, Washington Boys Club and Maryland Freshmen. The Rough Riders are adding the V. M. I. Freshmen to their schedule.

May Schedule More.

Coach Artie Boyd, of Tech, has scheduled 25 games and expects to list four more, which will give the Engineers a program of about the same proportions as last year. Tech has cut off one game with McDonogh and two with Baltimore City, but Southern High and Baltimore Poly have each been scheduled for two games. Both are new opponents for Tech. Gonzaga and the George Washington Freshmen will also be scheduled.

Western High faces a longer campaign than it played last year. A list of 23 games has already been scheduled. Coach Moore believes a big scedule is good for a big squad. Bethesda-Chevy Chase and Friends are new teams on the schedule. All of last year's opponents were rescheduled.

Alexandrians Bow to Gulli And Sugrue

Capital Bowling Stars Win by 66 Pins; Celtics Plan for Court.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Misses Lorraine Gulli and Polly Sugrue, of the world championship Lucky Strike Bowling Team, defeated Misses Mildred Miskelly and Gladys Lynn, of the local Health Center Team, by 66 pins tonight, in a special exhibition on the Health Center alleys.

The Lucky Strike pair fell one short of 700, while the local champions were bowling 633. Miss Gulli bowled the high game of 145, and high set of 376.

The scores:

Lucky Strike.
Sugrue	104	108	113
Gulli	121	145	110—699
Health Center.
Miskelly	96	114	113
Lynn	109	94	105—633

The St. Mary's Celtics, missing from the basket ball circles for the next Thursday night, at Bolling past three years, open their season Field, playing the team representing the Aviators.

Columbia firemen definitely decided to have a basket ball team this season at a meeting held in the firehouse last night. Manager Billy Padgett and Director Sammy Berman are mapping plans for the Firefighters.

Captain at Clarksburg.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Dec. 6 (Spl.).—Frank Fragale, junior tackle, has been elected captain of the 1935 football team of Washington Irving High School team here, outstanding team of the State, which went through the year undefeated.

On Their Mark for Little Generals' Strenuous Schedule

WITH only two letter men back in harness, and five regulars lost through graduation, Washington and Lee High School's basket ball team is pinning its hopes for a successful season on the shoulders of a bevy of substitutes from last winter's squad.

The Little Generals are rounding their third week of practice under the protective eye of Coach J. C. Lewter, who is greatly encouraged by the performance of his players in daily workout.

Five Men Lost.

Lost via graduation were Capt. John Kaminski, Clayton Long, Eddie Marcus, Lawrence Ball and Johnny Ours.

Substitutes from last year who are displaying much ability these days are Ward Boswell, Ray Wheeler, Bob Blake, Sonnie Rice, Ralph Cooper, John Copeland, Bobby Biggs and Jimmie Fixx.

When the team embarked on its first week of practice three of the basketers were still playing on the football team, but their return to the court came as cheering news to the rest of their teammates.

23 Games Slated.

Twenty-three games have been arranged by Manager Archie McPherson, two of which will be played prior to the Christmas holidays. In the intersuburban league Washington and Lee will engage Alexandria, Silver Spring and Hyattsville.

The schedule:

December 17, Falls Church, at W. L.; 20, Western, at Western; January 4, Hyattsville, at Hyattsville; 8, Silver Spring, at Silver Spring; 9, Eastern, at Eastern; 11, Alexandria, at W. Women Plan Bigger Golf Program

Mrs. C. K. Wing Installed; Philadelphia Matches May Be Resumed.

A BIGGER and better program of golfing events for 1935 was promised yesterday as Mrs. Charles K. Wing, of Army and Navy Country Club, took office as president of the District Women's Golf Association, succeeding Miss Elizabeth C. Harris, of Kenwood.

Mrs. Wing, who has served on numerous golf committees and in various capacities with a Bar Mrs. Burl and De Grasse's Sister From Corners Here.

THE Boxing Commission yesterday frowned on the "feminine influence" in the local biff business by refusing to allow Mrs. Bonnie Burl to second her husband, Eddie Burl, or Miss Vera DeGrasse to second her brother, Pete DeGrasses, in the feature bout at the Riding and Hunt Club Monday night.

Miss DeGrasse previously had been denied permission to second her brother, whom she manages, in New York, but requested the District commission to allow her to work in his corner against Burl. Not to be outdone, Mrs. Burl immediately filed application for permission to work with her husband.

The commission gave no reason for declining the applications.

The two six-rounders and a four to support the ten-round main bout were added to the card yesterday. In one of the sixes, Roddy Davis, the lightweight star of Harry Groves' stable, will graduate from the welterweight ranks against Sid Silas. Silas fought a rousing draw with Timmy Bashara in his last appearance. In his last fight as a lightweight, Davis was given a decision over Lou Terry.

In another six-rounder, Joe Ferrone, one of the most promising welterweight prospects yet developed locally, will meet Joe Morrow, of New York. Chester Fouble and Sam Sweet will meet in an opening four-rounder. Fouble decisioned Sweet in a previous bout.

The date for the Jay Mecadon-Phil Furr welterweight brawl at the Auditorium definitely was set for Wednesday, December 19, yesterday.

Mecadon held Bob Wilson to a draw in the debut here and later soundly trounced the transplanted Floridian. Furr recently successfully defended his District welterweight championship against Wilson.

A license was granted yesterday to the Washington, D. C., Athletic Boxing Club, Inc., a colored organization. The club will hold its opening show at the Auditorium December 18 for the benefit of the Boys Camp of the District of Columbia.

Calvin Reed and Georgie Gibbs will appear in the headliner.

Although Steve Dudas, Billy McCarney's sensational heavyweight hope, has not yet definitely agreed to meet Buck Everett, a license was granted to the Riding and Hunt Club to hold the bout December 17.

Assured of being assigned some outstanding heavyweight on that date, Everett started heavy training yesterday as Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn continued trying to snap up Dudas from under the nose of Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston, the Madison Square Garden impresario. Johnson is seeking Dudas for a return bout against Abe Feldman, who was awarded a very dubious ten-round decision over him at the Garden last Friday.

Stocks Revert To Losing Side In Profit Sales

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—The stock market reverted to a cautious mood today and profit-taking hampered its main lines in efforts to extend a previous advance.

Rails and some of the industrial leaders of the preceding rise dropped to the rear, while individual issues and secondary groups pushed forward for additional gains, notably farm and rail equipment, metal and preferred stocks.

Trading quieted as the forward movement exhausted its drive in commodities as well as stocks. The volume in the stock exchange, however, was comparatively large, totaling 1,420,355 shares, against yesterday's 1,630,913, which was the largest since last July. The list was down one-tenth of a point.

Capital in Idleness.

With more gold engaged for shipment to the United States, the pressure of idle capital was felt in the demand for both preferred stocks and bonds. Visions of dividend resumptions and payments on accumulations intensified the hunt for senior issues.

American Car & Foundry preferred spurted about 5 points and Curtis Publishing more than 3 to a new peak for the year. Senior issues of P. Lorillard, Fairbanks Morse, General Motors and Johns Manville sold at top prices for 1934.

Equities did not have the support of grains, as they did in the previous session. The majority of the cereals dipped moderately under realizing.

English Pound Rallies.

Sterling rallied in terms of the dollar, and some of the gold currencies improved. Among share gainers of 1 to 3 or more points at new highs for the year were Curtis Publishing preferred, National Lead, McKesson & Robbins and Briggs.

Others, up around 1 to 2, included Liquid Carbonic, Peoples Drug, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Interboro Rapid Transit, Kennecott, Anaconda, Deere, International Harvester, Allied Chemical and U. S. Industrial Alcohol.

Stocks of United Air Lines & Aviation Corporation were unusually active at advances of fractions. U. S. Steel, Du Pont, National Distillers, American Commercial Alcohol, Cerro de Pasco, U. S. Smelting and Case were a bit higher.

Such issues as Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Union Pacific, American Telephone, Western Union, Loew's, American Can, American Tobacco B, Bethlehem Steel, Western Union and Consolidated Gas were somewhat lower. U. S. Tobacco lost about 15 points on a few transfers in the face of yesterday's extra dividend.

Investment Banking Practices in United States Found Approaching Traditional British Course More Than in Former Years.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

New York, Dec. 6.—Investment banking practices in the United States are coming to resemble the traditional British course of procedure in this field more than at any time in several decades. There are not a few observers in the financial district who believe that the tendency in this direction will persist, rather than diminish.

In the past, the origination and distribution of new security offerings in this country was marked quite frequently by "high pressure" methods designed to effect the quickest possible sale to investors. In order to effect such rapid distribution, the major reliance was on large corps of salesmen, who went out and aggressively sought to induce prospective purchasers to buy each new issue as it came along. The average investor in securities came to rely upon and to be guided by security salesmen to a very large extent, despite the fact that these salesmen were not always qualified to give advice, and were interested in the distribution of certain specific issues which their houses were originating and distributing.

In Great Britain, on the other hand, the average investor does business with a "broker" who does not, as a rule, participate in the origination of security offerings or in syndicates formed to distribute them. He gets a fairly uniform and disclosed rate of commission on the sale of various securities, so that he does not have a financial incentive for pushing the sale of certain issues to the exclusion of others. This permits the British broker to be a more disinterested adviser of his clients than the bond salesman has been in this country.

Several Factors Cause Shrinkage in Investment Funds.

The banking act of 1933, the Federal securities act and, above all, the shrinkage in the volume of funds available for new investment have caused a marked contraction in the number of active bond salesmen. Since such salesmen were compensated chiefly or exclusively by commissions, their earnings varied with the volume of business. Very many of those who were engaged in such work have found it unprofitable to continue under prevailing conditions.

On the other hand, there has been a notable expansion latterly in the investment counsel profession. Many salesmen and analysts formerly employed by investment houses have organized investment counsel firms, offering to manage the funds of their clients for a fee which consists of a stated percentage upon the amount of funds managed. This percentage generally declines as the volume of funds managed increases.

The investment counsel possesses a basic advantage over the bond house under the Federal securities act. He is not engaged in the selling of securities or in the solicitation of an order to buy. Hence, he escapes the liabilities which are imposed by that act upon those who do so and are found to have made a material misstatement or an omission of a material fact in a registration statement or prospectus, if they cannot sustain proof that they acted in good faith.

A recent survey indicated there were some 3,000 separate investment counsel organizations in operation, varying in size from single individuals to substantial concerns with large staffs of analysts for various types of securities. Six years ago there were less than 100 such organizations in existence. This enormous expansion in the number of investment counsel reflects the desire of investors for more disinterested counsel than they have obtained from bond salesmen in the past.

Investment bankers who know both the American and the British capital market point out that there is a considerable and growing resemblance between the average small investment counsel firm here and the British broker. Both represent the viewpoint of the client, rather than the issuer of securities. Both are so organized as to be in position to give relatively disinterested advice.

Differences Cited in Fees Paid to Security Brokers.

A difference exists, however, in that the British broker is compensated, when his client buys a security, by obtaining a broker's discount. American investment counsel organizations, like our trust companies, obtain their compensation by charging their clients a fee. It remains to be seen whether, in time, they can maintain their independence while shifting the cost of their service to those who seek to raise capital, as is the case in Great Britain.

Another development in the security business in this country, which is a step towards British practice, is the growing tendency for most bond houses, especially those of moderate size, to avoid underwriting commitments. As a result, these houses receive merely a selling commission on securities which they actually dispose of to their clients. While the size of this selling commission lately has differed widely for various issues, a return of settled financial conditions may witness a standardization of such commissions. In that event, the average bond house would no longer have a powerful incentive to push certain issues while neglecting others, as in the past. Instead, it would obtain about the same commission regardless of the issue which the customer purchases, and thus, it could be about as independent and as interested in the client's welfare, in giving advice, as the investment counsel.

Bonds Drive Forward Again At Faster Pace

Rails Reflect Hope of Aid; Sales Volume Rises to $14,966,000.

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—The bond market continued to push forward today at a pace that was just a little faster than that of the previous session.

Transfers totaled $14,966,000, par value, against $14,648,000 yesterday, and the Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced two-tenths of a point to 86.

This composite is now only about 2 points under the year's high. The industrial average recorded another new 1934 peak at 85.

Bullish Sentiment Prevails.

While news of interest to the loans market was scarce, bullish sentiment was still predominant in view of the fact that the recent heavy oversubscription of new Treasury obligations offered convincing evidence that a huge amount of idle funds in this country is still hunting for profitable employment.

Rail liens again reflected hope that the Government would soon announce a plan to give material assistance to the carriers.

Among the best of the transportation group, up 1 to around 2 points, were Alleghany 5s at 70, Boston & Maine 5s at 74½, Chicago & Northwestern general 4¾s at 58, Great Northern 5½s at 87¾, Hudson & Manhattan refunding 5s at 88½, Kansas City Southern 5s at 73, New York Central convertible 6s at 113½, Northern Pacific 4s at 101, Pittsburgh & West Virginia 4½s at 62 and Union Pacific 4s at 103½.

Among the better utility and industrial bonds were some of Western Union, New JerseyPower, Kelly-Springfield, Interborough Rapid Transit, Gulf States Steel, Consolidated Gas, Columbia Gas, Childs Co. and American Telephone.

Issues of International Telephone and Postal Telegraph eased under profit taking, as did a number of other loans.

United States Government securities were not especially active, but advances of 1-32 to 7-32ds of a point were in the majority.

A firm tone was displayed by the foreign division. Argentine issues edged up into new high territory for the year, and gains of 1 to 2 points were shown by some bonds of Germany, Berlin, Copenhagen, Dresden and Kreuger & Toll. Siemens & Halske 7s spurted 7 points, to 63.

Curb's Prices Advance Under Metals Lead

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—Metal shares rallied briskly on the curb market today but advances in other sections of the list, including alcohols, oils and utilities, were mostly small. Trading was active throughout the session.

Prices were steady at the opening and the list worked moderately higher during the early hours. The improvement continued in the afternoon but profit taking appeared at the finish.

Among nonferrous issues, Newmont showed a gain of 2⅛ points. Bunker Hill & Sullivan was up nearly as much and Lake Shore and Wright Hargreaves closed fractionally higher. United Gas preferred rose more than a point in active trading. Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric both ended unchanged.

Sherwin Williams, Celluloid Corporation, Swan Finch Oil and Cord Corporation got up about a point or so each. Singer Manufacturing dipped 4½ on a small transfer, while Pan-American Airways was down 1.

Transfers which approximated 220,000 shares were about the same as yesterday.

Radio Capital Plan Reported in Street

Corporation Said to Be Considering Stock Reorganization.

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—Radio Corporation of America, it was reliably reported in Wall street today, is considering plans for a capital reorganization.

The plans are in the hands of a special committee of directors which is giving special attention to the question of eliminating accumulated dividends on the two classes of preferred stock.

A move toward rearrangement of the radio capital set-up has been expected in Wall street for some time, although officials continued to withhold comment on the reported plans.

Bank Rate Unchanged.

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—The New York Federal Reserve Bank today announced no change in its rediscount rate of 1½ per cent.

Gossip of New York Markets

By Claude A. Jagger.

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—The most impressive evidence thus far that the rapprochement between the Administration and the bankers is real, according to some important quarters in Wall street, is the heavy oversubscription for the Treasury's new offer of bonds and notes.

The fact that total subscriptions for the Treasury's two new offerings, aggregating $900,000,000, ran to $5,300,000,000, appears to have astonished both Washington and Wall street. The demand from banks for the long-term Government bonds was said to be particularly impressive.

It was only a few months ago that many banks were actively shifting their investments in long-term Government bonds to short-term issues.

Last September, when 3½ per cent 10-12 year bonds were offered in exchange for maturing Liberty bonds, only $354,000,000 worth were taken, while twice as many Libertys were exchanged into 2½ per cent four-year notes offered as an alternative exchange.

Declines	282	133
Unchanged	174	169
Total issues	806	824

Stocks—Traders became cautious again and profit-taking threw the list back into the losing trend. Declines averaged one-tenth of a point and sales volume dropped to 1,420,325 shares.

Bonds—Loans continued to push forward at a fast pace. Rails reflected hope of Government aid. The list advanced two-tenths of a point. Sales increased to $14,966,000.

Curb—Metal issues rallied and led the curb in an advance. Although price changes were small, sales volume increased to 220,000 shares.

Wheat—Futures of both wheat and corn weakened. While No. 1 white corn sold at $1.11; December wheat sold at $1.02; May at $1.03⅜.

Cotton—Trading in cotton was less active and part of recent gains was lost. The general market was 7 to 13 points lower. December contracts sold at 12.46, January at 12.40.

Sugar—Raw sugar declined to 2.97½; refined remained unchanged at 4.40.

Silver—Bar silver was one-eighth higher in New York at 55 cents per ounce. It stood in London at 24⅞ pence.

Gold—Bar gold was slightly lower in London, selling at 140 shillings and 7 pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar was forced slightly downward on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $4.96⅛ to the English pound, 6.59¼ cents to the French franc, 40.20 cents to the German mark.

Week's Bank Clearings Rise to $4,511,624,000

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—Bank clearings in the principal cities of the United States during the week ended December 5 totaled $4,511,624,000, an increase of 7.2 per cent over the $4,207,350,000 reported in the same week last year, according to reports to Dun & Bradstreet.

Clearings in New York City totaled $2,974,264,000, against $2,932,449,000, an increase of 1.4 per cent. All the principal cities outside of New York reported gains, with Pittsburgh in the lead, clearings in that city showing an increase of 33.3 per cent over the same week last year.

Union Pacific President Expects Earnings Drop

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—Carl R. Gray, president of the Union Pacific Railroad, said today that with car loadings in November below those of a year ago, he expected the road's earnings during the month would be under those of last year.

He added, however, that there was a better feeling among business men in the territory served by the system and that retail sales were holding up well.

General Aviation Calls Meeting.

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—A special meeting of stockholders of General Aviation Corporation of Delaware has been called for December 21 to vote on the immediate distribution of the company's holdings in North American Aviation, Inc., and eventual dissolution of the company.

Daily Credit of Reserve Banks Averages Five Million Lower

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve bank credit outstanding during the week ended December 5, as reported by the Federal Reserve banks, was $2,459,000,000, a decrease of $5,000,000, compared with the preceding week, and of $144,000,000, compared with the corresponding week in 1933.

On December 5 total Reserve bank credit amounted to $2,452,000,000, a decrease of $8,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with a decrease of $35,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and increases of $49,000,000 in monetary gold stock and $9,000,000 in Treasury and national bank currency, offset in part by increases of $29,000,000 in money in circulation, $43,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks and $14,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts.

The system's holdings of bills discounted decreased $2,000,000, while a decrease of $5,000,000 in holdings of United States Treasury notes was offset by an increase of $5,000,000 in Treasury certificates and bills.

Changes in the amount of Reserve bank credit outstanding and in related items during the week and the year ended December 5, 1934, were as follows:

London—Trading was quiet on the stock exchange today. German bonds were firmer on the Saar developments, while gilt-edged securities and gold-mining shares recovered their early losses. Transatlantic issues were strong on Wall street news. Motor shares were good, while other industrials were easy. The market closed easy.

Paris—Prices on the bourse opened strong today on the improvement in Wall street and the better feeling regarding the Saar situation, but profit taking toward the close wiped out most gains. The closing was irregular.

Berlin—New financial measures produced further increased firmness in the loan market, with corresponding dullness in the share market, on the boerse today. The closing was fairly steady.

Paint Company Declares Extra 25-Cent Return

Devoe & Reynolds Board Votes Also Regular Dividend.

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—Directors of Devoe & Reynolds today declared the usual extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the class "A" and "B" common stocks and the regular quarterly disbursement of 25 cents on each class of stock, all payable January 2 to stock of record December 18.

For the 12 months ended September 30, Associated Electric Company reports total operating revenues of $19,711,995 comparing with $19,123,129 a year ago. Improvement was noted in both the electric and gas divisions. Operating expenses were $8,610,321 comparing with $8,450,134 last year. Maintenance and provision for retirements—renewals and replacements—were moderately above a year ago. Taxes rose 21 per cent to $1,344,430, the highest ever reported by the company and subsidiaries for a 12-month period.

After deducting these items and adding other income of $423,794, gross income remained of $7,623,462. Deductions from income for subsidiary companies left balance applicable to the debt of Associated Electric Company in the amount of $5,704,173.

Florida Public Service Company reports total operating revenues for the 12 months ended September 30, 1934, of $1,631,780, approximately $100,000 below a year ago. Operating expenses were up 17 per cent to $952,657, due to higher costs for fuel oil and additional provisions for uncollectible accounts. The decrease in provision for retirements—renewals and replacements—resulted from the increased maintenance and lower revenues. Taxes rose 23 per cent to $153,196, a new high for the company. This increase was due to the 3 per cent Federal energy tax as well as higher State taxes.

Directors of Selected Industries, Inc., have declared a dividend of 87½ cents a share on account of the quarterly dividend on the $5.50 dividend prior stock, payable January 1 to stockholders of record December 15.

Wheat Futures Weaken; Spot Corn Up Again

Cotton Turns Less Active; General Market Drops 7 to 12 Points.

Chicago, Dec. 6 (AP).—Notwithstanding that No. 1 white corn, immediate delivery, sold here today at $1.11, the highest price since 1928, futures both of wheat and corn weakened.

Profit taking induced by yesterday's sharp bulges in values tended to make the leading grain futures average lower for at least the time being. Disappointing action of the Liverpool wheat market had a bearish influence, and so too did liberal deliveries today of 1,135,000 bushels on Chicago December wheat contracts.

Wheat closed easy at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 cent lower, May, 1.03⅜ to 1.03⅝; Corn, ⅝ off to ⅝ up; May, 92 to 92⅛; oats, ⅛ to ¾ down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

Although dips in prices revealed that commission houses had numerous orders to buy wheat as well as corn on recessions, resulting upturns of quotations to above yesterday's finish were hard to maintain. A feature of the day's dealings was considerable selling of wheat against simultaneous equal purchases of corn. Trade as a whole was on a broad scale; but less active than yesterday. Some Eastern houses were buyers of wheat on a scale-down.

Cotton Market

New York, Dec. 6 (AP).—Cotton was less active today and prices lost part of yesterday's advances under slightly increased Southern selling and realizing or liquidation. March contracts sold off to 12.52 in the late trading, making a net decline of 10 points, and closed at 12.55, with the general market steady at net declines of 7 to 12 points.

The early market held fairly steady within a range of 3 or 4 points, but the South continued to sell in small lots while the demand tapered off and prices gradually yielded in the late dealings. December eased off to 12.45 and May to 12.53, while October declined to 12.22, making net losses of 9 to 12 points on the general list. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the lows on most positions.

Another of the private end November crop report was published, placing the indicated yield at 9,685,000 bales compared with a report of 9,479,000 by the same authority last month. Members of the New York Cotton Exchange on the average are expecting a crop of about 9,709,000 bales.

Exports today, 19,725, making 2,051,682 so far this season. Ports receipts, 14,332. U. S. port stocks, 3,130,516.

Railroads Earn 1.75 Per Cent On Investment

Returns Drop Under Income for 10 Months of '33; 147 Lines Report.

Class 1 railroads of the United States for the first ten months of 1934 had a net railway operating income of $391,234,826 which was at the annual rate of return of 1.75 per cent on their property investment, according to reports just filed by the carriers with the Bureau of Railway Economics of the Association of American Railroads and made public today.

In the first ten months of 1933, their net railway operating income was $393,823,841 or 1.77 per cent on their property investment.

Property investment is the value of road and equipment as shown by the books of the railways, including materials, supplies and cash. The net railway operating income is what is left after the payment of operating expenses, taxes and equipment rentals, but before interest and other fixed charges are paid.

147 Roads Report.

This compilation as to earnings for the first ten months of 1934 is based on reports from 147 Class 1 railroads representing a total of 239,209 miles.

Gross operating revenues for the first ten months of 1934 totaled $2,756,973,536, compared with $2,-592,587,825 for the same period in 1933, an increase of 6.3 per cent. Operating expenses for the first ten months of 1934 amounted to $2,048,-849,186, compared with $1,870,595,-233 for the same period in 1933, an increase of 9.5 per cent.

Class I railroads in the first 10 months of 1934 paid $209,389,781 in taxes compared with $220,894,173 for the same period in 1933, a decrease of 5.2 per cent. For the month of October alone, the tax bill of the Class I railroads amounted to $20,-646,435, a decrease of $614,135 or 2.9 per cent under October, 1933.

31 Fail to Earn Expenses.

Thirty-one Class I railroads failed to earn expenses and taxes in the first 10 months of 1934, of which nine were in the Eastern, seven in the Southern, and 15 in the Western district.

Class I railroads for the month of October alone had a net railway operating income of $48,624,984, which, for that month, was at the annual rate of return of 1.46 per cent on their property investment. In October, 1933, their net railway operating income was $57,366,045, or 1.71 per cent.

Gross operating revenues for the month of October amounted to $292,902,774 compared with $294,-351,521 in October, 1933, a decrease of 0.5 per cent. Operating expenses in October, totaled $212,571,743, compared with $204,713,070 in the same month in 1933, an increase of 3.8 per cent.

Art.

Today, while I was shaving, I saw a fine engraving that hung upon the wall; its title was "Suspended," the execution splendid, though it was rather small. An English bank was busted, a bank that had been trusted for quite a hundred years; there stood its ruined patrons, old men and stricken matrons, who shed all kinds of tears. On those astounded faces there were the deep hewn traces of tragedy, despair; and toil-worn fists were shaking, and weary hearts were aching, and gloom was everywhere. It was profoundly human, and every man or woman was such as you will meet, wherever banks are broken and words of doom are spoken along the mourning street. The old engraving thrilled me, and with compassion filled me, I've seen just such a sight; I've seen the mourners weeping before a bank and keeping their vigil day and night. And all day I've been thinking of poor ones, mute and shrinking, before a bolted door; in vain is all their hoping, for signs of comfort groping, and vainly they implore. A year from next November that picture I'll remember, those faces I shall see, the bank that is suspended, the safety that is ended, the hopeless misery. That sort of art I treasure, the art that gives a measure of life as it goes on; so many artists tinker with flowers that grow pinker until their paint is gone. So many artists fiddle with such a paltry riddle as palms on islands parked; their skill to trifles giving, they let the life we're living go sliding by unmarked.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-Mark Applied For.)

By Morgan Baker.

AS a moral example the Government, the largest employer of labor, should restore the 5 per cent salary cut and repeal the law authorizing it. This is the gist of a Nation-wide campaign just launched by the National Association of Letter Carriers.

BAKER.

"The Government is urging private industry to raise wages and increase employment by codes and agreements," it is stressed by M. T Finnan, secretary. "The fundamental economic logic of the New Deal is applicable to Government employes as well as to wage earners in private industry."

The association attacks the furlough system as "iniquitous" and denounces "sweatshop" methods in the service.

According to Mr. Finnan, branch officers throughout the country will appoint committees to see that each carrier and his neighbors will write to their Senators and Representatives, informing them of the injustices of the economy act and asking for its immediate repeal. Attention will be called to the loss of purchasing power of the employes and the resultant harm to business, Mr. Finnan says.

Employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Government Printing Office, City Post Office and several other agencies attended a class ceremonial of the National Union Assurance Society last night at the Pythian Temple. A class of 35 was initiated, under direction of Everett M. Pershing (P), City Postoffice, head of the degree team. Arthur S. Brown, retired, superintendent of the Petworth postal substation, was chairman of arrangements.

Retirement Mass Meeting.

Employes at Naval Gun Factory invite all Government employes to join them in a mass meeting Sunday morning for an analysis of the Civil Service retirement law. The program of speeches and music will begin at 10 o'clock at the Avenue Grand, Pennsylvania avenue near Seventh street southeast.

Harry Dehler (F), Boilershop, chairman of arrangements, outlines the following program:

1. Preliminaries. 2. Invocation by the Rev. Freeley R. Rohrer, pastor of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church. 3. Solo by Jesse E. Veitch, accompanied by Mrs. Pearl Hauer, organist and director of the Metropolitan Quartet. 4. "The Fight for Retirement Legislation." 5. "The First Retirement Law." 6. "The Present Retirement Law, the Benefits and Application of the Law." 7. "Employes Who Come Under the Law." 8. "Annuitants on the Retirement Roll." 9. Questions and answers.

As noise-makers, we all agree that pneumatic and electric hammers are efficient enough. But Bernard F. Jenkins (F), Navy, comes along this week with an invention for testing the driving or striking efficiency of these prosperity-ear-splitting instruments.

Execs Clinch Bridge Lead.

The Agriculture team, after climbing to within three boards of the Execs, could not maintain their pace, and fell behind this week in the Federal Bridge League, winning only 6 out of 14 boards. The Execs sealed their title to championship of the first half, with only one more night's play to go.

Rush Buckley's General Accounting Office team struggled back into section A.

In section A, the Marines, XYZ's and Internal Revenue won 10 out of 14 boards. High North and South honors went to A. B. Galt and E. P. Brooke, Execs, with an average of .725. High East and West score was made by W. Roy Astleford and H. A. McElroy, Marines, with an average of .720.

In section B the high North and South score was made by Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Owens (P), Doublers, with an average of .561. High East and West score was made by G. L. Bitzer and F. C. Reich with an average of .588.

For a time we thought Commerce Department was going ultra-modern. The other day two chromium-piped chairs, of severely modernistic lines, were unpacked in the Commerce shipping room. However, we were told that they were merely a part of the Commerce exhibit at A Century of Progress Exposition and no plan is under way to replace the traditional wood and swivel chairs in the vast Commerce Building.

Nelson's Wife Gets Sentence Today

Madison, Wis., Dec. 6 (AP).—Helen Gillis, widow of "Baby Face" Nelson, will appear in Federal court tomorrow to be sentenced to a year and a day in reformatory for harboring Dillinger gangsters.

A squad of Government agents rushed her secretly from Chicago by automobile. She was put in a cell and a cordon was thrown around the jail

Blonde Fliers Sure They'll Break Rcord

Oklahoma City, Dec. 6 (AP).—Jean la Rene and Henrietta Sumner, who hope to fly longer without landing than any women ever have done, continued their monotonous round tonight after six days aloft.

Enjoying fine weather and the comforts of cosmetics, if not of home, the two blonde fliers were confident of breaking the record of 9 days, 23 hours and 45 minutes,

Texas Negro Asks Court To Enforce Voting Right

Another Texas Negro asked the Supreme Court yesterday to compel the acceptance of his vote at Democratic primaries, the Associated Press says.

R. R. Grovey, of Harris County, Tex., told the court he had been prevented by Albert Townsend, county clerk, from casting his vote in the Democratic primaries last July.

He pointed out he was the fourth Negro to complain to the high court of alleged discrimination because of race and color.

Seized in Hoodlum Drive.

Police of the First Precinct, in rounding up hoodlums in their district, yesterday took seven white men and a colored man to headquarters, where they were booked for investigation. The prisoners were fingerprinted and photographed.

Animal Trainer Dies After Lion's Attack

Detroit, Dec. 6 (AP).—Wounds inflicted last Friday by a lion which refused to go through with its part of an act, had proved fatal today to Joseph Murray, 43, animal trainer for the Lewis Brothers Circus.

Murray's arm was so badly mangled before other members of the troupe could drive the lion back that amputation was necessary.

Alabama Ex-Governor Reported Near Death

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Dec. 6 (AP).—Former Gov. William W. Brandon, 66, was reported in a critical condition tonight at a Tuscaloosa hospital and his physician expressed doubts as to his chances for recovery.

Mr. Brandon's illness was diagnosed as a "brain complication, possibly a hemorrhage," and described as "very critical."
